

PICKENS SENTINEL.

PICKENS COUNTY, S. C. J. B. HOGGS & CO., Proprietors. Entered at Pickens Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 23, 1894.

There are thirty-one candidates in Anderson county.

Day by day, and one by one, the Toronto excursionists are returning. Many candidates will wake up on the night of the 28th, and be glad that they are rid of the nightmare.

Be sure to take your choice on the 28th. If you do not, don't begin to kick about the choice others make for you.

We were looking for a light in the west, not in the north. It is hard for the State newspaper to get its compass right.

An Elberbe reformer says there is a world of significance in the time of holding our primary elections. It will be during dog days.

Tom Watson is making a lively kick over in Georgia, but the dem. crats feel sure that he will be badly left in the general election.

Last Friday Darlington county reformers held a mass meeting and put out a Pope electoral ticket to be voted for in the primary of the 28th.

The Piedmont Headlight should be required to keep a red lantern on its rear platform, so that it may not suffer any more rear end collisions.

Whether he gazes at the landscape, politics or parties, the editor of the Journal now sees things through different glasses. He sports a hand some gold rimmed pair.

Three or four buildings were fired so nearly at the same time last Saturday night in Florence, that it was thought a gang of fire fiends had broken loose on the town to destroy it.

Congress will adjourn this week and nearly everybody will be glad thereat, as the congressmen themselves. They will have another little bout, then the republicans will take charge again.

Ultimate, irredeemable and irrevocable defeat awaits all political trimmers. A man had better be run over and crushed by a steam engine than to have his conscience and judgment to be warped by the hope of temporary advancement.

The esteemed Cotton Plant is in line and will support John Gary Evans. Dr. Pope stands a good chance of winning the fight, however, as there is not a newspaper in the State advocating his election, and we know of no newspaper which has collected an announcement fee of him.

We have often heard white men speak of their wives by the use of the very comprehensive term "they" when we knew certainly that the speaker had but one wife. The Cotton plant now uses the term in speaking of Governor Tillman in connection with gubernatorial politics.

We have heard and read of all kinds of reunions, associations and conventions. The one which was held near Galveston a few days ago, caps the climax. It was a reunion of the ex-slaves of John Sims and their descendants. The meeting was largely attended, and the professors among the young Africans made some fine speeches.

There is no doubt that trade conditions will be greatly relieved by the settlement of the tariff question. The prolonged uncertainty has caused more stagnation and disaster than the iniquitous McKinley law could have produced in two years. The settlement is not what we wanted in but one respect, and that is it settled the suspense, ended the agony.

When the result of the reform primary was generally known, a citizen reformer remarked that it was just the luck of Pickens county to have its man beaten, and that it generally voted in the minority in such things. That is no sign that Pickens did not vote right. We do not expect her to apologize to anybody for her course. It may cause disappointment to individuals, but it will never cause any one to think less of her judgment or patriotism.

The meetings of the reform executive committee have all been held behind closed doors. We do not hesitate to say that such practice is pernicious and is bound to work injury to the party that does its business in that hidden way. In the meeting held on last Tuesday, seven counties had instructed their delegates to do certain things. How are these people to know what their representatives do when such tactics are being used? When the victory of 1890 was won the people hoped that they had seen the last of such methods, but it seems that politicians of all persuasions are prone to the same faults and it will need a little more tramping up by the people to set the matter straight. - Cotton Plant.

There is a paper published in Richmond, Va., by Woman Publishing company, called Woman. We do not know whether the company is composed of women or men, but its avowed object is to make woman what she ought to be. If it is run by women we are glad to know that woman will remain as she was and is. If it is run by men it will soon collapse, because woman's work for woman has fully occupied the field. Good men can suggest no improvement on woman and bad men ought to keep their thoughts to themselves. Has there been a resurrection of that philosopher who thought he could set the spheres to a sweeter and more harmonious tune?

The United States court after investigating many jug cases, last Saturday, went off like a jug handle Judge Brawley announced that all who had been selling whisky or ne-cused of it, who would come up and plead guilty, should have their sentence suspended until they were again found guilty of offending when they would receive the maximum punishment in addition to the suspended sentence. So many defendants adopted the suggestion of the court that the petit jury kept up with the grand jury, and both were discharged the same day. Judge Brawley was so severe in his criticism of the practice of sending trifling cases to court, that he aroused the indignation of many of the officers, who complained that his remarks were too general. The next day the Judge explained that he only meant to reprove those who were apparently looking more after their interest than that of the government.

The politicians who have not good, fat jobs, and those who are afraid of losing jobs they have, will continue to abuse Cleveland and the democratic party about the miserable apology for a tariff bill which has been passed. We have a poor excuse to offer the country for the failure to redeem the platform pledges. An alliance congress would have just as good excuse for not passing the sub-treasury or railroad ownership schemes. But millions have been gained to the people when we come to compare the Senate tariff bill with the McKinley law. It is, or will be, something like horizontal reduction of the protective tariff. A few of the old senators will have to be left at home. Then a still better law can be passed. But there will be a tremendous effort to obscure the issue with finance. There will doubtless be such a clamor of politicians, such a clashing of interests, and such confusion of tongues that the well equipped, well organized republican party will come in and take the administration of affairs to itself again. Then all the rest of the parties are done for. The benefits of the new law will not be felt till after the next election.

A CONVERTED COTTONTOT. Though the cotton crop, in our judgment, is not near as good as it has credit for being just at this time, the circumstances point to a six cent market. If this should prove true, the less a man has the better off he will fare. A few years ago a farmer in York county saw the danger which attended the success of any farmer who relied upon one crop, and he decided that he would be sure each year to raise enough corn and meat to do his place, and all the time he had over to be devoted to cotton. He held himself down firmly to this practice. At the end of each year his cotton money represented clear profits and was put in bank. He has found that it can be profitably raised even at six cents, by a man who does not have to buy corn and meat. Such an experiment is well worth the attention of any farmer.

ANOTHER DISPENSARY DECISION. The Mayor of Aiken had the dispenser and his clerk arrested for selling whisky without a license from the city council. The dispenser and his clerk had the city council prohibited by a writ from interfering with them in the discharge of their duty under the act of 1893. The case came up before Judge James Aldrich, and he decided that the act of 1893 is unconstitutional, and that the State can not sell whisky in the city of Aiken, and that if she wants to sell wine and beer, she will have to procure license to do so.

A Light in the North. At 1:10 this morning the skies to the north and for two points east and west, were illuminated in a most remarkable manner. They had somewhat the appearance of reflecting the glow from a great conflagration, but the coloring was softer and constantly changing. At times the reddish-purple light would fade and become dim; then it would flash up again. There were different shades and the changes were continuous. Streaks of yellow or orange light, extending from the lower margin of the illumination, towards the zenith, would from time to time app ar.

The phenomenon was observed in all the Atlantic States of the South. From Washington it had the appearance of being almost due north, occupying almost the same relative position from there as it did from here. The telegraph wires all over the country and particularly in the west, worked very poorly and the officials attributed it to the effects of the atmosphere, supposed to be heavily charged with electricity. The light faded away entirely at 2 o'clock this morning. - State 20th.

Indiana Money in Oeocne. The Wallaha Mining Company was chartered last Thursday by the Secretary of the State of Indiana. The company will have its home office at Indianapolis, Ind., with a branch office in Wallaha, S. C., the mines being located on Barbecue branch, about a mile from Salem, in Oeocne county. Capital stock $10,000, with privilege of $1,000,000. Directors, J. T. Barker, C. B. Feibleman, Carl Willauer, Haymen Cohn, and S. S. Gorby.

Mr. Carl Willauer, of Wallaha, is general manager, and will have charge of operations at the mines. He has been assaying there for several months, and has opened up a very valuable gold mine. The mill will be in operation as soon as the machinery can be shipped from Chicago. Mr. Willauer thinks he will have the mills running in about a month. Twenty hands will be engaged at the beginning and the force will be increased later as required. The company own three other gold mines in Oeocne county, which will be worked in regular order. As soon as one mine is opened and working well another will be opened, and thus it will not be very long until this company will have four mines in the county, and all of them being worked.
