A HOUSE WHERE MEN NEVER LAUGH. How do you think you would like to live, fearing every moment to be blown up; not daring to speak loud, to jar any thing, for fear of starting an explosion that would send you in an instant to the other world?

You don't think it would be very pleasant? Well, it isn't; yet hundreds of men live in just that state, work, receive pay, and live, year after year, in the very sight of death, as it were; all that the world may have gunpowder.

You can easily guess that those men go about very quietly, and never laugh. You know that gunpowder is very dangerous in a gun, or near a fire, but perhaps you don't know that it is equally dangerous all through the process of making.

A powder mill is a fearful place to visit, and strangers are very seldom allowed to go into it. They are built far from any town, in the woods, and each branch of the work is done in a separate building. These houses are quite a distance from each other, so that if one blows up, it won't blow up the rest. Then the lower parts of the building are made very strong, while the roofs are very lightly set on. So that if it explodes, only the roof will suffer.

But in spite of every care, sometimes a whole settlement of the powder mills will go off almost in an instant, and every vestige of the work of years will be swept away in a few seconds.

But though you feel like holding your breath to look at it, it is really a very interesting process to see. It is made, perhaps you know, of charcoal saltpeter, and brimstone. Each of these articles is prepared in a house by itself; but the house where they are mixed is the first terrible one. In this building is an immense millstone, rolling round and round in an iron bed. In this bed, and under the stone, are put the three fearful ingredients of gunpowder. There they are thoroughly mixed and ground together.

This is a very dangerous operation, because if the stone comes in contact with its iron bed, it is very apt to strike fire, and the nearest suspicion of a spark would set off the whole. The materials are spread three or four inches thick in the bed; the wheel, which goes by water power, is started, and every man who enters the place, the door is shut, and the machinery left to do its terrible work alone. When it has run long enough, the mill is stopped, and the men come back. This operation leaves the powder in hard lumps, or cakes.

The next house is where these cakes are broken up into grains, and of course is quite as dangerous as the last one. But the men can't go away from this, they are obliged to attend to it every moment; and you may be sure no laugh or joke is ever heard within its walls. Every one who goes in has to take off his boots, and put on rubbers, because one grain of the dangerous powder, crushed by the boot, would explode the whole in an instant.

The floor of this house is covered with leather, and is made perfectly black by the dust of the gunpowder. It contains a set of sieves, each one smaller than the last, through which the powder is sifted. And an immense graining and laboring mill, where it is ground up, while men shoveled it in with wooden shovels. The machinery makes a great deal of noise, but the men are silent, as in the other houses. The reckless crashing of the machinery even seems to give greater horror, and one is very glad to get out of the house.

The glazing house comes next. Glazing is done by mixing black lead with the powder, to give it a black and shining look. The powder is put into barrels, which revolve for several hours. That polishes the grains by its rubbing together. Then black lead is put with them, and they revolve several hours more. Of course the dust flies from all these operations, and the workmen, silent like the rest, look like very black negroes, working in the blackest of powder, in a room whose walls and floors are blacker than the rest, if possible. It has a very singular look to a stranger, and added to the horrible silence, makes one feel that the whole world has gone into mourning. Often the gunpowder, revolving so rapidly in the barrels, gets very hot; so that it is a dangerous operation.

HOW NEW JERSEY GOT OUT OF THE UNITED STATES. The origin of the allusions to New Jersey as a foreign country is said to be as follows: After the downfall of the first Napoleon, his brother Joseph, who had been King of Spain, and his nephew, Prince Murat, son of the King of Italy, sought refuge in this country, and brought much wealth with them. Joseph Bonaparte wished to build a palatial residence here, but did not desire to become a citizen, as he hoped to return to Europe. To enable him as an alien to hold real estate required a special act of the Legislature. He tried to get one passed for his benefit in several States, but failed. He was much chagrined, especially because Pennsylvania refused. After this he applied to the New Jersey Legislature, which granted both him and Murat the privilege of purchasing land. They bought a tract at Bordentown, and built magnificent dwellings, and fitted them up in the most costly manner. Rare paintings, statuary, &c., were profuse, and selected with care, and the grounds laid out with exquisite taste.

Joseph Bonaparte's residence was, perhaps the finest in America. Thousands of people visited it from all parts of the country, and were treated courteously. He was profuse with his money, and gave a great impetus to business in the little town. The Philadelphians, finding that he had apparently no end of money, and that he used it to benefit business generally, regretted, when it was too late, that they had refused to let him locate among themselves; and, to keep up their mortification, would always taunt Jerseymen with having a King—with importing the King of Spain to rule over them—they were called Spaniards and foreigners on this account. But these taunts harmed no one, as the Jerseymen lost nothing by their allowing him to settle among them, and the term "foreigner," jokingly applied to Jerseymen, has come down to us long after its origin has been forgotten, except by a few men of the past generation. Many years ago—during the reign of Louis Philippe, we believe—both Bonaparte and Murat found they could not return to Europe, so they sold out and returned.—Nesbitt Courier.

QUEEN VICTORIA. Some singular stories are told about Queen Victoria, and it is hardly surprising that the sober and rather stupid English people should regard her as insane. She has, it appears, a firm conviction that Prince Albert is never away from her, and that she can hold communion with him. A chair is placed for him opposite her's in the library; his favorite books are on the table, and it is an ordinary practice with her to address him aloud, as if he were really present. At dinner a knife and fork are laid for him, and the servants are directed to even go through the formality of helping him. Every morning a pair of boots are cleaned and set down before the door of the chamber he occupied, and at breakfast he not infrequently waits a considerable time for his imaginary coming. It is said that she derives a great deal of comfort and consolation from this belief. Entertaining, as she does, these sentiments, it is no wonder that Buckingham Palace is closed, and that royal fetes are only a memory and a tradition in England.

SPECIAL NOTICES. EL VINO CATALINA. The announcement that has been generally heralded throughout the country that an American company has again commenced importing this celebrated Wine Tonic is a matter of small importance, and will be hailed with joy by all those seeking a pure and invigorating tonic; also, those who need a pure, pleasant and refreshing stimulant will find in the El Vino Catalina, or Brown's Catalina Wine Tonic, what they want. It will be remembered that importations were made in 1856 of this noted brand, but in consequence of the high duty then demanded by this government, the enterprise ceased, to the regret of thousands who had learned its value. It is the oldest tonic in the world, and doubtless the most invigorating, the purest and best, and of importation continues at the rates now started, it will take its place in every family in this as well as in the old countries. Its merits will make it a household article, and we hope that every one who has ever used any Bitter or compound tonic, will be at least try one bottle of the Catalina, and then decide for themselves whether they will use this tonic, prepared from the pure juice of the Catalina grape, with Calysa and the spices of Ceylon, or a bitter made of common whiskey and bitter field herbs. This is an invaluable preparation for weakness and debility; it relieves morning languor and gives freshness and appetite, not followed by an unpleasant reaction.

It cures Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation, Bilious Disorders, Cramp Colic, Flatulency, Diarrhea, Dysentery, Nausea, Vomiting, Morn Sickness, Chills and Fevers, Headache, Nervous Irritability, Anemia, Heart Disease, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Diseases of the Skin, and all Eruptions, either caused by other diseases or impurity of the Blood. As a Tonic in Consumption, it has no superior of which thousands believe themselves to have been cured by its use. We do not claim that it will prevent it, but we are sure that it will present it if taken in time. For sale by L. A. McKAGN, Druggist, Sumter, S. C., J. M. CONRAD, 48, 19 Light Street, Baltimore, Md. FOUND AT LAST. AN ANTIDOTE FOR FEVER AND AGUE. It is WARRANTED ENTIRELY VEGETABLE. It contains no arsenic or poisonous ingredients of any kind—nothing in the least degree injurious to the system, and may be administered with perfect safety to an infant. It never fails to cure the most obstinate case, it cures immediately. In no case will the patient have more than one chill after the first dose, and in the majority of cases not even this. It accomplishes the work by destroying the cause of disease, which no other remedy pretends to do. It is an official preventive, neutralizing the malarious poison in the system, and thus averting its consequences. CHAPPELL'S DEPOSIT, S. C. September 1, 1871. Notice, Dowie, Moise & Davis: A course of MOISE'S FEVER AND AGUE PILLS with a guarantee, and not a single call has been made for a return of the money paid; but on the contrary, they have been used with great success in many cases of this disease. Forward two dozen as possible. Yours are truly, DOWIE, MOISE & DAVIS, 157 N. 2d St., Baltimore, Md.
