How Indians Catch Eagles.

The son of a physician of Dubuque, who is now stationed at Fort Buford, Dacotah Territory, has written a long letter to his father giving some interesting items with regard to the Indians. An extract is appended:

The camp of Indians which we visited were chiefly engaged in catching war eagles, to make head dresses. They have a wooden lodge built in the camp where the medicine ceremony necessary to catch is performed. No woman is allowed to enter the lodge. They can come to the door and hand in provisions, but must not cross the threshold. You will not be allowed to spit on the floor, and must set in a certain position of the lodge. You must enter and pass out at the north door. Wash and I were let in to see the ceremonies.

When a man goes to trap the eagles, he first goes to the medicine lodge, and is not allowed to go to sleep until midnight; he then eats a little and sleeps until the morning star rises. He, with his comrades, then goes out to the traps without food or drink, and they set all day in the traps watching for the eagles. At night they return and enter the medicine lodge, and at midnight only do they eat and drink, and break their long fast of twenty-four hours' duration. They then are allowed to sleep until dawn, when they go out again, and stay four days, during which time they have food and drink four times and have never entered their own lodges or spoken to their friends, unless such as may be trapping with them. After the four days are up, they go back to their lodges, lean, and tired and sleepy, and sleep and eat and hunt deer until they are able to try another four days' trapping excursion. The eagles are brought alive into the camp, and after some ceremony the tails are pulled out, and they are let go to grow another tail for the next year. The traps consist of a hole in the ground covered with sticks and grass. A dead rabbit, fox, or prairie chicken is tied to the top; the eagle swoops down and fastens his claws into it and tries to fly away with it, but the Indian who is concealed in the hole puts out his hand, catches the eagle by both legs, hands him into the hole and ties him. He then fixes the top and waits for another eagle. We saw one man there who had caught six eagles in one day in this way.

They say if they do not hold fast and do their medicine properly the eagle will get one of his claws loose and tear their hands. Some have had their hands ruined forever in this way. If a man does not catch an eagle during the day, he is obliged to moan and cry all night; we could hardly sleep with the noise made at night by the unsuccessful hunters.

Wendell Phillips.

Mr. Wendell Phillips has made another speech, under the charge of Gen. Butler, which he closed in this joyful and lyric strain:

"The reason why I support the Republican party is that, to my utter surprise, to my utterable delight, to my relief, I have at last found a party that is willing to execute all the laws that are given them. It is for that reason that I say 'Long live Ulysses Grant! May he continue to be President for the United States until every white man over 40 years of age who lives south of Mason and Dixon's line has been forever put in the ground.' There you have the programme. The late Emperor Napoleon, the most remarkable duce who ever talked politics, used to say the United States would soon become an empire. Mr. Phillips proposes to start us on that road by making Grant President of life, for there are hundreds of thousands of Southerners over forty who will outlive him. If Mr. Phillips's words ever meant anything, they would mean that. He merely wanted to say something startling and brutal, and will not remember to-morrow that he said it. But what did New-England people mean by applauding such a suggestion?"—N. Y. Tribune.

How Napoleon is Annoyed by Bored.

It is said that Napoleon III. finds it no easy task to get sea air and repose at the same time. He went a short time ago to Bangor, and had to leave in an account of being continually mobbed by the curious and vulgar. He and the Empress are now at Brighton; but they can never appear in public without being instantly surrounded by gazers. Even at the British Association meeting, the other day, they were not exempt from intrusive impudence. They had no sooner taken their seats than the Mayor appeared, and first introduced himself and then planted his wife down beside the distinguished party. In consequence of these annoyances the Imperial party contemplate another removal.

A story is told of a father in a church, who, when the marriage service came to the point where the clergyman asks, "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?" replied, "Well, sir, I am called to do it, although it goes agin' the grain. I wanted her to marry Bill Blower who is worth twice the money of that ere man."
