

THE METEOROLOGIST

Miss Sophia Nichols was a lady of great modesty and of a very retiring disposition, and as she had passed the age of "fair, fat and forty," wasted few glances on men. She had lately established herself in a suit of rooms on the southeast corner of Laurel street, facing the lovely little Beech park. It was just the place for a quiet spinster who loved nature and retirement, and she enjoyed it with unusual quiet for a few days.

father? Does the gentleman want something? "I think he does, Bertha, but I cannot understand what." After one glance at the girl's face Jack "sized himself up as an ass," as he would have expressed it, and he knew she had overheard the whole interview. He really had not the courage to tell her outright that her father was accused of flirting with his Aunt Sophia or else he was a lunatic, and that neither he nor his aunt approved of his conduct.

BUTTERMILK.

Some of the Ways in Which It Promotes Good Health. Buttermilk as a remedial agent cannot be praised too highly. The lactic acid, the sour of the buttermilk, attacks and dissolves every sort of earthy deposit in the blood vessels.

THE NEEDLE.

One of the Most Ancient Implements of Which We Have Record. The needle is one of the most ancient implements or instruments of which we have any record. The old time needles were unlike the modern luxury, they having been made of wood, bronze, bone, etc., and without eyes, a circular depression at the blunt end having been so fashioned as to enable them to carry the thread.

HUSTLING TO THE GRAVE.

A New Yorker's Defense of the Methods of the Metropolis. Travelers between New York and Philadelphia who do not read or sleep during the run may not have noticed that a large number of cemeteries are to be seen from the train. There are probably more "cities of the dead" along that line than are to be found during any other journey of the length in this country.

WOMAN AND DIRECTION.

A Reflection Upon the Feminine Bump of Locality. Why is it that a woman's bump of locality is so much more feebly developed than a man's? asks the Baltimore News. Put a man down on a country road and the probabilities are that he will find his way wherever he wishes to go without having to ask at nearby farm-houses for directions.

Don't Hurry.

Any one can hold out a dumbbell for a few seconds, but in a few more seconds the arm sags; it is only the trained athlete who can endure even to the minute's end. For Hawthorne to hold the people of "The Scarlet Letter" steadily in focus from November to February, to say nothing of six years' preliminary brooding, is surely more of an artistic feat than to write a short story between Tuesday and Friday.

All in the Pronunciation.

A young lady was once talking with a very young and very smart man who was inclined to air his knowledge of the languages a little beyond what she felt that modesty required. She therefore said to him, with an air of deference to his superior attainments: "You are a Latin scholar. I wish you would tell me how to pronounce the word 'so-met-i-mes'."

America's Grandest Peak.

Of our thousands of high mountains the loftiest, so far as known, is Mount McKinley, in Alaska, which reaches an altitude of 20,464 feet. Asia, with Mount Everest, in the Himalayas, 29,002 feet high, and South America, with Aconcagua, in the Andes, 22,900 feet, alone exceed this continent of ours in extreme altitude, according to Everybody's Magazine.

A Maori Legend.

The Maoris believed in the immortality of the soul long before the arrival of the missionaries, but the spiritland to which they imagined all men journeyed after death was as grossly material as the "happy hunting grounds" of the North American Indians. Such a legend as the following, which contains an instance of singularly determined parental interference, is sufficient evidence of this: A young chief of high rank fell in love with a Maori maiden of great beauty, but of low degree. His father "forbade the unions," thereupon the usual results followed.

The Men and the Notes.

Two men went into the world to seek their fortunes. While one was singing with his eyes upturned the other was looking on the ground for what he might find, and was fortunate enough to discover a ten dollar bill. His first delight was turned to disappointment when he thought that it might as well have been a hundred dollars. Then, actuated by avarice, he dexterously changed the figures, pasted a "0" over the "X" and raised the note tenfold.

Chinese Widows.

In China, that land of contradictions, it is not considered to be good form in good society for widows, however young, to marry again. By way of compensation, however, the estate of widowhood is held in the highest esteem, and widows are more honored as they advance in years. A widow of mature age, in fact, is regarded somewhat in the style of the finest port wine very old in bottle. If the lady reaches the age of fifty, she can obtain an imperial certificate of her age and virtues, and this tablet is put up prominently over the door of her house so that all may read.—London Times.

Sour Cranberries.

A gentleman wishing to send to a friend in England a present chose a barrel of cranberries as his gift. It was in the early days before they had become well known in that country. To his surprise he received a letter from his friend in which he said: "Your present of a barrel of berries arrived safely, but we were obliged to throw them all away, as they had soured upon the journey."—Lippincott's.

Reparation.

A gentleman in London called on the celebrated editor of a well known newspaper and said, "Sir, your paper has announced that I am dead."

Discouraging.

William E. Chandler and Henry W. Blair, the New Hampshire statesmen, were bitter enemies for a time, but have become reconciled in a measure since the former's defeat for re-election to the United States Senate. Meeting recently Chandler said to Blair: "I'm not feeling well this morning. A awful pain in my back—lumbago or something, I fear!"

Better Pies Than Mother Made.

Fond Mother—Well, how do you like married life by this time? Son—Oh, first rate. Fond Mother—Is your wife amiable? Son—Extremely so. Fond Mother—Economical if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature on every box. 25c.

Beating the Law.

In Arkansas there once lived a certain judge strongly opposed to the game laws who presided at the trial of a man against whom it was proved, first, that he had been in a field with a gun and two pointers; secondly, that he had fired his gun at a covey of partridges, and, thirdly, that two of the covey had fallen. The judge told the jury that, in absence of direct evidence as to the cause of death, it was its duty to assume that the birds died of fright.

Seoul.

This item is from a Korean newspaper, published in English, at Seoul: "Lately the Police Headquarters ordered to forbid the servants & to run the horses fastly on the big streets as they sometimes pressed the children down and hurted them on the ground and the police stopped a mappo running a horse hardly on his back, but a number of soldiers came along quickly and captured the police away."

House of the Skull.

Wardley Hall, six miles from Bolton, England, dates from about the time of Henry VI. In the staircase was a recess containing a skull supposed to belong to Roger Downes, a roisterer in Charles II.'s time, and Wardley Hall became known as the Skull House, as, according to the legend, whenever the skull was removed from its resting place trouble would befall the inmates of the dwelling. On one occasion the relic was lost in the moat, which had to be dragged for its recovery.

The Very Best Kind of Pills.

A story is told that Thackeray left on the mantelpiece of an indigent and invalid friend a little round box full of sovereigns, with the inscription, "These pills are to be taken when required." It was a plagiarism from Goldsmith perhaps, but you cannot be wrong if you imitate good things. We should never be tired of plagiarizing from the good Samaritan.—Exchange.
