— Deputy Revenue Collector Gus Aiken seized an illicit steam distillery near Greenville, and also seized over fifteen hundred gallons of beer. Three negroes were seen in the distillery but all except one managed to make their escape.

— The State campaign of 1906 is going to be a hummer. About eight prominent names have been mentioned in connection with the governorship and half a dozen men are measuring Ben Tillman's shoes. There will be something doing that year.

— General Willie Jones, the State Democratic Chairman, is working on an address to be given out to the Democrats of the State, urging them to vote in the general election. The address will not be issued until just a few days before the election, and will be sent out all over the State.

— There has been some discussion as to whether any vacant Clemson scholarships can be filled from some other counties. Attorney-General Gunter has decided that such vacancy cannot be so supplied. Any county not supplying applicants for any year merely loses the scholarships for that year.

A prominent farmer was in the city to secure help, and failing to secure it he called upon several Sunday School teachers who responded by taking their classes to the fields and working, spending the day in picnic fashion.

— Manning, S. C., is an enterprising town. She has a stump factory, which is fast clearing away the old stumps left by the turpentine industries of that section. It has been found by scientific investigation that the pine stumps are rich in spirits of turpentine, oil of tar, creosote, acetone, acetic acid, etc., and that these substances can be obtained by a process of distillation.

— At Kershaw, in Lancaster County, last Saturday night John Morrison, a white man, was lynched within four hours after he had killed Will Floyd, another white man. This was the fourth man Morrison had killed, having been acquitted only a few months ago of killing a negro at Camden.

— Sam F. Hurst, town marshal of Mayesville, was killed last Thursday night by J. Ed. Anderson, the railroad agent at that place. Hurst made threats against Anderson during the evening, and waited on the platform until he started home. Hurst is said to have provoked the difficulty and advanced on Anderson with a pistol. Anderson shot him six times with a Colt's automatic pistol, every bullet passing through Hurst's body. Hurst's pistol was found lying by his body.

— Rev. W. R. Hemphill, father of General Hemphill, while pastor of the lower Long Cane Church met a man in the road who showed a disposition to stop and talk. The stranger told Mr. Hemphill of his great misfortune in the burning of his house. He lost everything. Mr. Hemphill was sympathetic in his speech and generous in gift. Handing the old unfortunate man five dollars, all the money he had in his pocket, he asked him when the fire occurred. The reply was: "Twenty-eight years ago last March."—Abbeville Press and Banner.

— The railroad commission has received from A. H. Plant, auditor of the Southern Railroad, a communication in regard to the rules as to the collection of claims. The commission in its last annual report called attention to the fact that the legal machinery for collection of claims against the road was slow and cumbersome. The auditor states that since this report was put in the road has changed its system of paying claims, and has established the office of special route agent for this State. This agent has visited 110 stations in the State, and has paid 13,764 claims. In addition to this the Southern has on deposit with connecting lines over $600,000 for other claims.

— In a rainstorm at Marietta, I. T., twenty miles north of Gainesville, Texas, lightning struck and killed three small boys and seriously injured two others. The boys killed were all riding on one horse at the time, while the two were on another horse. Both horses were killed instantly.

— Twenty thousand dollars to establish a home for drunkards' wives in the State of Iowa is one of the bequests of the late James Callahan, the eccentric philanthropist millionaire. Mr. Callahan was a strong advocate of temperance during the latter years of his life and gave freely to the cause.

— According to railroad men, the wreck on the Southern Railway near New Market Tenn., will cost the company nearly one million dollars in settling death and injury claims. The disaster was the most serious ever known on the Southern. The destruction of property will be a small consideration compared to the amount which will have to be paid.

— An insect supposed to be a boll-weevil has been found in Covington, Ga., on the plantation of L. F. Duke. Charles G. Smith subjected the insect to a microscopic examination and compared it to an enlarged picture of the boll weevil issued by the department of agriculture and he finds it to be practically identical with the genuine Mexican boll weevil. They had not been discovered until the recent hot, dry weather, but they are becoming quite numerous now.

— Rev. C. C. Jacobs, colored, has been nominated by the Republican convention of the Seventh District as a candidate for Congress.

Corner Creek Comments.

It is hot, dry and dusty—well, everybody knows, we presume, hence there is no use commenting on the weather just now.

Our farmers are being kept quite busy now picking out their cotton, which is opening so fast. About half of the crop has already been gathered, and the fields are heavily laden with the white fleecy staple.

Miss Madena Bigby left last week for Greenwood, where she has accepted a nine-months' school several miles below that point.

Quite a number of our people will attend the fair this week at Anderson and expect a royal week.

Our public schools will soon open, as the cotton picking season is almost over, and the many children should be ushered into the schoolroom and there receive instructions from those who are fully capable of imparting knowledge to them so they may become better men and women. The McAdams school of our immediate community will again be under the efficient control of Miss Lanie Wright, the Barker's Creek school will be taught by Mrs. A. B. Shirley, while the patrons of the Long Branch school have secured the service of Miss Lizzie Gassaway.

Tom Jones, from near Brewerton, spent Sunday here very pleasantly with the fair sex.

Messrs. Jackson and Dusenbery, two young sports from Anderson, were here for a few hours Sunday afternoon.

The Barker's Creek Church has unanimously called Rev. Chas. E. Burts for another year, and it is to be hoped he will accept.

Our good friend and neighbor, F. A. Shirley, has recently beautified the appearance of his premises greatly by having his house re-painted. Mr. Shirley truly believes in having things fixed up in proper style and consequently secured the very best painter to be found; hence he employed W. H. Amerson to do his work. Tyro.

At Hyman's Altar.

Last Wednesday morning at 9.30 o'clock a large congregation of friends and relatives of the happy couple assembled in the Methodist Church here to witness the marriage of Rev. S. H. Booth, of Boykins, S. C., and Miss Pearl Russell, daughter of our clever postmaster, B. F. Russell. The ceremony was impressively performed by Rev. A. J. Cauthen, and at its conclusion the contracting parties departed immediately for the home of the groom.

Miss Russell, the bride was acknowledged by all who knew her to be one of our fairest and most lovable and accomplished daughters, being a graduate of Williamston Female College. She is cultivated in mind as well as heart, and being possessed of rare personal beauty, she is well calculated to adorn the home of the young minister who has won her heart. For several years Miss Russell has taught in the graded schools of our city and she was one of the most zealous workers in the church and Sunday School.

The groom is one of the most promising young ministers of the South Carolina conference, and indeed the happy couple start life's journey under most favorable circumstances. They were attended by sincerest congratulations and best wishes from their numerous friends. A Friend. Williamston, Oct. 1.

Latest War News.

Chefoo, October 3.—Chinese who left Port Arthur October 1 and were previously engaged in burying the dead says the effect of the Russian shells and machine guns is terrible. The slopes of a high hill were littered with mangled bodies and severed heads and limbs.

In one trench the Chinese buried 300 Japanese and 200 Russians.

While it is true that the regular water supply of Port Arthur has been stopped by the Japanese, the fortress has other supplies which can be taken only when the city falls.

The garrison of Port Arthur now has sufficient food, but the supplies of tinned meats are nearly exhausted and the troops are now slaughtering thirty donkeys daily for fresh meat, which is worth $1.20 per pound.

A private letter received here today from Port Arthur, dated September 23, gives further details of the fighting from September 19 to September 22. The attack began with a heavy bombardment directed against nearly all the Russian outposts and many of the main forts. The shelling of the redoubts protecting the water supply of Port Arthur was tremendous and highfall of September 19 found them reduced to the mere heaps of debris. The garrison of the redoubts thereupon retreated safely to the main fortifications under the cover of darkness. At 4 o'clock the same afternoon the Japanese assault on High Hill began. The Japanese plan of attack never varied. First a bombardment again and another assault. The desperate determination of the Japanese to capture this position amounts to fanaticism, their efforts never ceasing during four days.

Tokio, Oct. 3.—The navy department reports the destruction of another Russian steamer while clearing the mines at the entrance of Port Arthur. The report of the loss of the Japanese gunboat at the Port is unfounded.

Rome, Oct. 3.—A telegram from Chefoo, asserts that General Stosel, in command at Port Arthur, has ordered all the women and children except the nurses to leave the Port in order that food and water, which are scarce, may last longer.
