CHARLESTON.
TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 21, 1867.

JOB WORK.—We have now completed our office so as to execute, in the shortest possible time, ALL KINDS OF JOB WORK, and we most respectfully ask the patronage of our friends.

HUMANITY.

We do not generally care to reproduce the violent and vindictive language in which some of the Northern press still indulge. It can minister neither to our comfort nor to our interest to know that there are men in whose hearts hate can never be quenched. For our part, we are anxious to do all that can be done to restore those relations of mutual good will which alone secure peace and prosperity for the future, and not to prevent the healing and consoling work of time. Besides, the tone and temper of the Northern press have been growing steadily kinder and fairer.

But there is one notable exception. The Evening Post is edited by a man whose hair is grey with the experience of a long life, to whom God has given those large and generous sympathies which belong to the poet, and who has, in the exercise of his genius, clothed pure and noble thought in immortal verse. Surely, if there was a man to whom the American people might have listened for the eloquent utterance of a lofty generosity—for the sweet pleading of that humanity to which, in all times and among all people, the sorrow of a great and broken nation have been peculiarly sacred—that man ought to have been WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT. Surely, in all history, there has not been so noble a soul, so full of contrasts and contrasts which touch even the most stolid natures, than JEFFERSON DAVIS standing as a criminal before Judge UNDERWOOD, in Richmond.

And yet this is Mr. Bryant's comment: "Jefferson Davis will, it is reported, arrive in New York to-day. As it is possible that our journal may fall under the eyes of some of his friends, we suggest to the proprietors of trying to get the chief to the most modest demeanor while he is here. The public is greatly and justly outraged at his release; it desires to see him brought before the people, and condemned to punishment which the laws decree for such crimes as his."

It is so ill-advised and foolish as to attempt any public appearance here, he will not improbably excite a public commotion and tumult. When just laws are violated, and when the rights and interests of the community are injured, and when the authorities are called upon to punish, the sense of outrage is not to be quenched by the sense of outrage to the most modest demeanor while he is here. The public is greatly and justly outraged at his release; it desires to see him brought before the people, and condemned to punishment which the laws decree for such crimes as his."

good, and the text books all that could be desired, unless the teachers be competent, in character, habits, native intelligence and acquirements for a proper discharge of their duties, failure must be the result.
We are glad, therefore, to have it in our power to state that we believe our Commissioners have succeeded in making judicious appointments for the schools under their charge. Mr. HENRY P. ANCKER, the Principal of the St. Philip street school, has served a regular apprenticeship at teaching. He was vice-principal at the Friend street school as long as that establishment was in existence, then was elected one of the assistant teachers at the High School of Charleston, which position he filled at the time he was elected to his present post. We have been several times at the St. Philip street school, and have come away every time with a better opinion of the system in use there, and the admirable manner in which it is carried out. As in all other educational establishments we have visited, since the close of the war, College, High School, and Female Seminars, so here also we noticed the effect of the war. It is safe, we believe, to assume that our youth of both sexes, and of every condition, have lost at least two years in their scholastic progress. Boys, of an age and size who would be in the Fifth Reader, "through all the sums" in Davis, in algebra, Sallust and Xenophon, now read in the Third Reader, pursue long division, or are beginning to feel their way in decimal fractions, and know nothing of "grammar," save as it is retailed in catechetical doses by one ROWELL C. SMITH. There are individual exceptions, of course, but we believe our statement is correct as a rule. While this retardation is certainly to be regretted, it is not necessarily an irreparable loss. Many of the greatest thinkers on these subjects, who, were, moreover, practical men, hold that a boy, whose physical education has been well cared for, who commences his school education at twelve years of age, other things being equal, in the long run usually has the advantage over him who begins school at five or six. Every one can call to mind instances of this character. If, therefore, our boys and girls shall, during the next few years, have the benefit of regular attendance at school, taught by good teachers, every trace of this loss will soon be obliterated.

The St. Philip street school has had 7000 pupils on its roster since July, 1856; when it opened. The average attendance last month was 968.
The Friend street school opened May 23, 1859, and was burned December 12, 1861, continued in the building of the German Friendly Society until August, 1863, when it was discontinued. Up to that time the number of pupils enrolled had been 2368.
The Girls' High and Normal School of the State of South Carolina opened May 23, 1859, and closed in August, 1864; up to which time the entire number of pupils had been 481. This institution, under the charge of Mr. F. A. SAWYER, took rank with the very best of its kind in the land, and its graduates may now be found engaged as teachers in every State of the South. This school was reopened in January last, Rev. H. M. MOORE being the Principal. The average attendance at this school last month was 99.
The Morris street School opened in October, 1860, and was discontinued February 18, 1865. Up to that time it had 3200 pupils. It was under the charge of P. F. SMITH, Esq.
During 1861, when all these schools were in full operation, they had an average attendance of 2373, the maximum being in March of that year, 2690, with 75 teachers. The number of teachers engaged at present is 35, inclusive of 5 connected with the Meeting street school, which is in charge of Mrs. ISABELLA BLAIR, and last month had 212 pupils.

The present buildings are inadequate to accommodate the half even of the children who have been applying for admission; and we earnestly hope that the Board of Commissioners will soon have it in their power to put other buildings, and thus increase the facilities for common school education to the full extent of the public demand. We feel the importance of this subject—an importance that cannot be overrated. Our people must be educated, and the education of the State, like the education of the individual, must commence with the foundation. Educating from above downward is a very slow process, as has been repeatedly and abundantly demonstrated. The beginning must be with the common school, and we hope our future legislators will bear this fact in mind.
The present Board of Commissioners of Public Schools for this city consists of the following gentlemen: Hon. C. G. MEMMINGER, Chairman, Hon. HENRY BRIST, Hon. W. D. PORTER, Hon. W. ALTON PHINLEY, Hon. W. S. HENRY, Hon. C. H. SIMONSON, and Messrs. P. J. COGAN, FREDERICK RICHARDS, JOHN RUSSELL, C. M. FURMAN, W. J. BENNETT, F. A. SAWYER, and BENJ. LUCAS.
