ON THE WING.

DARLINGTON C. H., S. C. July.

On Sunday last I had the pleasure of attending service in the Methodist church in this place. This being the time for the quarterly meeting of the circuit, the Presiding Elder, Rev. J. R. Boyn, preached. The life and character of JoB formed the subject of his very interesting discourse. Warm as it was, I listened for one hour with unflagging attention, wondering all the while that the idea had never struck me before of considering JoB as one of Us-a Southern man. Dr. B. drew a striking analogy between the fate of the man of Uz and of our country, between his friends and comforters and ours. By the latter I presume he meant the 'Democratic party, though he did not say so. May the parallel hold good in the part for us yet to come, and our latter end be more prosperous than we were before the misfortune of war overtook us. The Methodist Church in Darlington is a large, commodious, and handsome structure, presenting both within and without a neat and tidy appearance. They have an excellent choir here, supported by a melodeon, which was skilfully played by a lady formerly of Charleston. Of religious denominations the Baptist, I believe, takes the lead; being the first established and the most numerous. They also have a handsome church, but are at presnt without a pastor; the Rev. Mr. BEALER; who for a number of years had sustained that relation to the congregation, having recently accepted a call from Norfolk, Va. The Rev. A. J. STAFFORD, a graduate of Wofford College; S. C., is the pastor of the Methodist Church: and the venerable Rev. WM. BREARLY has for years been the shepherd of the Presbyterian flock at this place.

The colored people have two churches of their own, one Northern Methodist and one Baptist. The black sheep appear to have no predilection for white shepherds. On the contrary they are decidedly homochromatic in their tendencies, believing that a colored preacher only can fully appreciate the doubts and perplexities that harrass the colored mind; he alone can minister comfort to the troubled colored soul. Owing to the foreign influences that have been brought to bear upon the negroes, they have almost everywhere become entirely alienated from their former pastors; especially is this the case in the Methodist Church. There are, however, two pretenders to the vacant throne: Northern Methodism on the one hand, and African Methodism on the other, both of whom are industriously presenting their several claims. The former has the advantage of superior organization, and an unlimited command of men and means, counterbalanced, however, in a great measure, by the prejudice in favor of the color of the African M. E. Church. It is fair, therefore, to assume that as soon as the students of the colored Theological Seminary in Charleston (under the auspices of the white Northern Methodist Church) shall go forth, the field that is black for the harvest will be almost exclusively

There was a good academy here formerly but the building was seized by the military as public property on the occupation of the village, and the teacher and school turned out of doors. It has served as a barracks ever since. A large and handsome United States flag is floating to the breeze in front of it on top of a tall liberty pole. -

Like every visitor to his town, I was struck by its many large and handsome shade trees. Such oaks (water and willow oaks mostly, I believe), are rarely to be met with away from their native forrest. These trees are seen all over the place, in the front yards of the private residences, and on the public square. Some of them, we were informed, had been transplanted hither from their native seaside soil in Christ Church Parish. For the comfort of the Dryads which remained behind, we will here state that the emigrants are in a most thriving and flourishing condition in the home of their adoption. A few trees were destroyed by the fire last year; others have been planted in their stead, in greater number and regularity, and in a few years this square will present one of the finest oak groves in the State.

Darlington is the military centre of the Eastern sub-District, and the headquarters of Capt. H. S. HAWKINS, of the 6th U. S. Infantry. The garrison is composed of one company. The men are said to be very orderly and under excellent discipline. Indeed I should have been surprised to have heard any other report of The sad particulars, as communicated by teleany part of the regiment commanded by Gen. graph, are as follows: CLITZ. Captain or Major HAWKINS (I forget which is the correct title); is very much liked, spoken of among the citizens as a high-toned gentleman, and as offering a striking contrast to some of the officers who preceded him. The notorious Rev. WHITTEMORE has his headquarters here. I did not learn his exact | Sunday .- Savannah Advertiser. position. But from all I could gather, I came to the conclusion that he sustains the triple character of preacher, teacher and bureau agent, and is ambitious, moreover, to engraft a fourth role—that of politician—upon his already multifarious engagements. I was told that he is the superintendent of a large and well-governed school, taught by several Northern ladies. Mr. W. is active and energetic, and has given proof of considerable talent for organization in the establishment of schools. That his effort at religious propagandism have not been crown- at Astria, which have been carried on princied with equal success is perhaps due, first, to pally at the Pope's expense, have lately been the fact that he is of the wrong color, as we rewarded by important discoveries. These inpected to be the case in a religious teacher. In short, Mr. WHITTEMORE wants to go to Congress, and from what we have recently seen by his tour to Bennettsville, he clearly prefers the African route. He is conscious of being of the wrong color; but if there is any cure for leucophobia, Mr. W. is determined to find and apply it.

He eschews all intercourse with "plain' people, associates, eats and sleeps exclusively with the newly enfranchised-at least he does so when on his travels-leaving nothing untried in order that he may overcome this unaccountable prejudice of his friends against men of white complexion.

Poetic justice requires that such assiduous devotion should not go unrewarded; but, alas! that we should be compelled to say it, the sky looks dark. Mr. W. will not find the canvass as smooth sailing as he had a right to antici pate. The primeval curse will often suggest itself to him, apropos of his new-born opposition, "In the sweat of thy brow," etc. There is in the northwestern part of Marlboro District an old colony of free negroes, who have, for three generations, enjoyed all the privileges and immunities of their white neighbors. One of these has taken the stump for Congress Aaron Sweat is the name of this colored Moses, who is to take his people unto the promised land. And by way of fully acting out the analogy, it is understood that he tells his ignorant and credulous hearers that they are the people of God, and we the Canaanites, who must be dispossessed from the land and exterminated. This is a formidable opponent, calculated to throw a damper on the ardor of the too sanguine WHITTEMORE.

I would not wish to be misunderstood. Mr. W. has a right to run for any office he likes, and to choose his associates, wheresoever, and from among whom he pleases, and what I have said above, Mr. EDITOR, is merely for the information of your readers, who I think should be put in possession of every movement of a political, or even quasi-political character. TRAVELLER. More anon.

IGNORANT PEOPLE are always prejudiced against what they do not understand, and not unfrequently conceive a superstitious antipathy to things very innocent in themselves. We all know the difficulties of the census takers. Sam. Loven tells a good story in his "Irish Legends," illustrating this point: He took a sketch of a pretty group of dogs at an Irish country inn. While doing it, noticed the people of the house looking mysteriously at each other, and then at him; but he paid no attention to it. In the evening, when he returned from his day's jaunt to this same village and inn, he saw a number of dead dogs hanging from trees. What could it mean? He inquired, and, after considerable trouble, ascertained that he had been the innocent cause of this nurder of canine innocents. The people who saw him take his note book, and "take down" the dogs in it, instinctively came to the conclusion that he belonged to the "Internal Revenue Bureau," and was going to report them for a tax. This spread in the village, and so all dogs that were not "down" already went "up." The London Times notices the absurd and unreasonable prejudice of farme against statistics of stock, crops, &c. England cattle were dying at a frightful rate, and if Government had to see to compensation and face the gap in the supplies, it had a right to ask for figures. So they returned their cattle, and by this time they are sensible of the fact that no harm has come to them in consequence The real confusion in their minds has always been that they could not distinguish between general and local information, and imagined somebody wanted to pry into their private affairs, and to turn the knowledge against them. They did not see that all the returns would pass through one office, and come out in comprehensive results, that would do nobody any harm, and might do everybody some good. Indeed, there is no one who is so much interested in knowing the prospects of the harvest as the farmer himself. Of course he wants to know whether to sell or not, and what crops to try his luck with next year. State Items.

THE CROPS.—The accounts that reach us from all parts of the District in relation to the crops, since the recent rains, are very discouriging. In some sections of the District the rospect is represented to be less favorable han at this time last year. The corn crops are said to have sustained great damage by the recent prolonged season of wet weather, and lt is estimated that this crop will fall at least onethird short. In the neighborhood of Black Mingo it rained fourteen days consecutively, and the water reached a higher mark in Mingo Cre: k than has ever been known before by the 'oldest inhabitants." In this section particularly the crops are greatly injured.

COMPLETION OF THE CONGAREE RAILROAD Bridge.-We have received an invitation from the "venerable" Mr. Thomas W. McKewn, and Mr. J. W. Lassalle, one of the contractors, to be present this morning, at 9 o'clock, and witness the crossing of the passenger train over the new and substantial bridge which has just been erected over the Congaree River for the South Carolina Railroad Company. A barbecue is to be given on the occasion, and we have no doubt that a pleasant day will be spent. In our next issue we shall endeavor to give a full description of the bridge-likewise the barbecue.—Phanix.

AN UNFORTUNATE STRANGER .- We are informed that, some ten days ago, a man named Mc-Ilwaine was found lying at the gate near the residence of Rev. J. R. Millhouse, on the Pendleton road, evidently poor and in a distressed condition. He was quite ill, and was taken into the house and was cared for by Mr. Millhouse and family. On Sunday night last the unfortunate man fell from an up-stairs window and dreadfully broke and mangled his thigh, and consequently greater attention is requisite than before.—Anderson Intelligencer.

Neither the favorable harvest weather nor the arrival of a further quarter of a million of gold from America have had the slightest influence on the funds. The public, who purchased largely a month ago, are unable to resist the temptation to realize the five per cent. Profit that has accrued, and are satisfied for the present to let the proceeds lie idle at their bankers, who in their turn find it difficult to obtain employment for it at two per cent. Thus far it is evident the revival of financial confidence has scarcely made any progress either in Paris or London. The unparalleled accumulation of bullion, and the low rates of discount, have rendered it impossible to obstruct a certain advance in the prices of the funds; but the inherent teeling of distrust is almost as strong as ever, and consequently when holders discover that they can actually obtain a fair profit on their original investments they rush to secure it as if there The English Money Market.

can actually obtain a tair pront on their original investments they rush to secure it as if there could be no hope of its permanence. A similar tandency pervades every department of trade, and by checking all orders for foreign goods, except such as are indispensable, increases the prospect of a large continuance of the influx of bullion. The possibility of another indifferent harvest constituted the only apparent contingency that might be likely to turn the tide, and now that the promise of abundance seems to be daily strengthened the problem as to the point the plethors in the money market is likely to reach, and the mode in which it will utimately find de-velopment, becomes more than ever interesting.

BEWARE OF A COUNTERFEIT.

December 10 AT A YOUNG LADY RETURNING TO HER country home, after a sojourn of a few months in the city, was hardly recognized by her friends. In place o a coarse, rustic, flushed face, she had a soft ruby complexion of almost marble smoothness, and instead o. tw nty-three she really appeared but eighteen. Upon inquiry as to the cause of so great a change, she plainly told them that she used the CIRCA MAN BALM, and considered it an invaluable acquistion to any lady's toilet. By its use any Lady or Gentlemen can improve their permal appearance an hundred fold. It is simple in it combination, as Nature kerself is simple yet unsurpass ed in its efficacy in drawing impurities from, also healing, cleansing and beautifying the skin and complexion. By its direct iction on the cuticle it draws from it all its impurities, kindly healing the same, and leaving the surface as Nature intended it should be-clear, soft, smooth and beautiful.
