NEWS SUMMARY.

Gold yesterday, at New York, closed at $16 1/2.

The New York cotton market was a shade lower; sales 1800 bales, at 28 1/2, closing a little more steady.

As Liverpool cotton closed quiet; uplands 12 1/2; Orleans 12 1/2; rates 8000 bales.

Schneider has a handsome portrait of the Prince of Wales, given her by that promising youth, accompanied by his autograph and some truly poetry.

Considerable light is thrown on the case of the missing United States Marshal at Atlanta, by the discovery of the fact that between fifty and sixty thousand dollars, belonging to other parties, was in his possession just before his mysterious disappearance.

A lot of cotton, consisting of one hundred and fifty or two hundred bales, was destroyed by fire at Fernandina last week. The cotton was on the wharf where the New York steamers load, and the flames communicated to the steamship Flax, which was in port, but were extinguished before she had sustained any great damage.

According to the results of late recent deep sea soundings, it is announced that the bottom of the sea, at great depths, is covered by a continuous mass, extending over miles in extent, of what may be considered as one single animal. It is thought to form the lowest stage of animal life on the globe, and is supposed to derive its nourishment directly from the mineral world, as in the case of plants. The new animal has been baptized by the euphonious name of Bathybius.

The New York Home Journal says that the newest idea in walking exists that, instead of clasping the lady's hand, or even her finger tips, the gentleman shall bend his left arm at about the same angle with which a fashionable girl carries her parasol, the lady supporting herself by placing her hand against his arm, in the hollow of the elbow. Thus he carries her around delicately, without any of that contact which condemns the round dances. This mode is introduced by a singular set of enthusiasts, but its propriety must commend it to all.

The changes on the earth's surface during the glacial period are strikingly illustrated by a boulder of a peculiar variety of granite, fifteen feet high and seventy feet in circumference, perched upon the top of the Hoosac Mountain, one of the highest peaks in Massachusetts. This boulder, it is conclusively proved, was clipped off the apex of another mountain at Stamford, Vt., and transported by the ice to its present position. The Stamford Mountain is now a truncated cone, and the boulder is composed of the same kind of granite, which differs in every respect from the Hoosac rocks.

Los Angeles County, California, has hitherto been celebrated for its wine product, and it is now proposed to add that of the cultivation of silk. A leading firm in the new enterprise are putting out sixty thousand mulberry trees, as a first instalment towards making silk, as a very extended scale. They have a beautiful ranch at San Gabriel Mission, nine miles above Los Angeles. They have hired forty families of Chinese, skilled silk workers, who are engaged for four years, and will be comfortably housed in adobe cottages, with ample gardens. At the expiration of the term each family will be entitled to a deed of ownership for its house and garden.

The tea plant is in successful cultivation some ten miles from Knoxville, on the farm of Captain James Campbell, where it has been grown for about ten years. It is said that East Tennessee tea drinkers can easily raise their own tea with very little cost or trouble. The plant is a deep evergreen shrub, and grows about five feet high. It is hardy, and needs no protection from frosts. It bears an abundant crop, with beautiful fragrant flowers, in October. The following season it matures a seed, somewhat resembling the seed of our native hazel, and grows up readily. The rigour and hardness of this plant, and its adaptation to the climate, have been tested. The tea produced from the leaves of the plant very much resembles in flavor the tea from the Young Hyson plant.

"Foreman" writes to the New York Sun, as follows: "Sir—There are thousands of people in New York and suburbs that would like pianos, and would have them but for the enormous price asked for them. Now, I have been foreman in one of our first-class piano manufactories for fifteen years, and I know the cost of every piano made. Instruments sold for $650 cost but $210, and those sold for $1600, which are handsomely carved graces, cost but $475. You see what enormous profits are made on them. Pianos range from $500 to $2000, and some set in with an extra moulding, which costs but $5, they ask $50 more for. They argue that it looks $100 better. There are dealers in New York that buy pianos of companies and large manufacturers for from $225 to $245, and sell for $650 and $700."

The Russian clergy in Alaska, it is reported, are suffering serious inconvenience from the transfer of that country to the United States. Under the Russian rule, the members of the Greek Church were obliged to pay a tax for the support of their pastors. The United States authorities, on taking possession, declined to collect taxes for the Russian clergy, and the people, not being disposed to make any voluntary offerings, the pastors were left entirely without resources. They then appealed to the Synod at St. Petersburg, which decided that they should remain under the protection and in the pay of the Russian Government as before, and be subject to the jurisdiction of the Synod. This decision, it is stated, is objected to by the United States Government, since it is unwilling to tolerate any "protection" by a foreign power of persons residing in its dominions, and the jurisdiction of St. Petersburg are already warmly pleading in favor of their distressed countrymen.

A Washington telegram to the World says: "General Longstreet is reported to be preparing for a step which will astonish the country. This step, if the statements of those who have been the best informed friends and most ardent admirers of the great Confederate be true, is none other than the peremptory declaration of the Surveyorship of Orleans at New Orleans, to which he was nominated on Wednesday. The reason for this action is long to be the desire on the part of General Longstreet to demonstrate, as he seems only

THE SOUTH CAROLINA RAILROAD COMPANY AND THE COLUMBIA AND AUGUSTA RAILROAD COMPANY.

As the questions at issue between the South Carolina Railroad Company and the Columbia and Augusta Railroad Company have been very generally misunderstood, the South Carolina Railroad Company, with a view to the full and proper presentation of both sides of the controversy, retained a skillful stenographer to attend the session of the Supreme Court in Columbia, at the argument of the prohibition case, in which all the issues between the two companies were, by the nature of the proceedings, brought up for the decision of the Court. The arguments of the counsel for the South Carolina Railroad Company, and those of the counsel of the Columbia and Augusta Railroad Company, are alike presented to our readers in the supplement we issue to-day.

CHARLESTON.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, MARCH 17, 1869.

King Cotton.

We print this morning a leading article from the New York Tribune, upon the subject of Southern agriculture, which contains a wealth of sound sense and practical wisdom.

The temptation of high prices will undoubtedly cause a large cotton crop to be pitched this year, there being no reason to believe that the exhortations of the press will cause the planters to make a practical application of the truism, that men live not by cotton alone. Breadstuffs will give place to the fleecy cotton as they did three years ago—Our golden fields will become silvery pale.

But it is against the practice of hazarding the labors of a whole year upon one precarious crop that the writer in the Tribune directs his most cogent criticisms. There must be a Sabbath for the land. The broad acres should have their day of rest. Rotation and diversity of crops, the encouragement of manufactures, the free use of manures, the improvement of cattle,—these are the things we require and must have, if we would win a success that will last.

There are some points upon which we cannot agree with the article of which we speak; but the general drift, the broad intention, is just and right. If once read, it will not easily be forgotten.

DEER DOWN. A Tale of the Cornish Mines. By B. M. Ballantyne, with illustrations, Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott & Co. Charleston: Homes' Book House.

The author of this story has obtained considerable celebrity as a writer of books for boys. The moral of his tales is high and pure. His heroes are gallant, enduring, self-defending fellows, whom every youthful enthusiast is ready to take to his heart at once. And the adventures through which they pass are such as to put them to their mettle. A good deal of valuable information is communicated by the author in regard to those deep and terrible excavations from which the stout-hearted and strong-limbed Cornishmen have been hewing out tin and copper ever since the days of the Phoenicians. The story whose thread runs through these dark passages, and even under the Atlantic waves, is charged with thrilling incident.

HYMNS, ANCIENT AND MODERN. New York: Holt & Anney. Charleston: Fogarty's Book Depository.

2 HYMNS FOR CHURCH AND HOME. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott & Co. Charleston: Fogarty's Book Depository.

These little volumes comprise two of the many contributions to the psalmody of the church, which have been the product of the religious reaction of the past two or three years. They are worthy of note as being a large and yet a professedly select compilation from the flowing mass of religious songs of all ages and epochs of religious sentiment, and will be found to embody very faithfully the devotional spirit of our common Christianity, whatever may be thought of their poetical and literary merit. This latter, indeed may safely be said to be of the very smallest. The poetic taste of the compilers has been far from keeping pace with their piety. With the exceptions of the selections from Neale's translation of the rhythm of St. Bernard of Cluny, "The Celestial City" Hymn, No. 142 of the list collection, Lyte's "Abide With me," Elliott's "Thy Will Be Done" and "Just As I Am," Cary's "A Sweet Solemn Thought," and the selections from Bishop Heber, there is very little which could be grafted with advantage on the collection at present in use in the Protestant Episcopal Church in this country. We commend the volumes to the notice of all curious in tracing the development of the Christian life in song!

Waverley Novels. We have received from John Russell, King Street, Redgauntlet, The Betrothed and Highland Widow, The Talsiman and Woodstock, being the 18th, 19th, 20th and 21st volumes of D Appleton & Co's cheap edition of the Waverley Novels. Each number is complete in itself, and is sold for twenty-five cents, and yet the type is clear and the paper fine. The "plaid" Waverleys, as they are called, are deservedly popular.

Mr. SECRETARY BOWWELL, the head of the fiscal department of the government, submitted to the House of Representatives in July last a substitute for the Senate funding bill. In this substitute it was proposed to fund $1,200,000,000 of the public debt—one-third payable in fifteen years at 6 per cent. interest, one-third in twenty years at 4 1/2 per cent. interest and one-third in twenty-five years at 3 1/2 per cent. interest.

Mr. Bowwell favored the application of all surplus revenue to the payment of the debt, which he thought was a small one. He asserted that the debt, considering the increased means of the country, was no heavier than $127,000,000 at the close of the war of 1812. He advocates the rapid liquidation of the present debt and an early return to specie payments. Protective tariffs and hard money may be expected to be the cardinal principles of the new Secretary.

Schiedam Schnapps.

OFFICE OF UDOLPH WOLFF, Sole Importer of the Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps, No. 29 BROAD STREET, New York, November 3, 1868.

To the People of the Southern States: WHEN THE PURE MEDICINAL SCHIEDAM SCHNAPPS, as analyzed by the celebrated chemist, WOLFF, was introduced into the world under the endorsement of four thousand leading members of the medical profession some twenty years ago, its proprietor was well aware that it could not wholly escape the penalty attached to all new and useful preparations. He, therefore, endeavored to invest it with the strongest possible safeguards against counterfeits, and to render all attempts to imitate it fruitless and dangerous. It was submitted to distinguished chemists for analysis, and pronounced by them the purest spirit ever manufactured. Its purity and properties having been thus ascertained, samples of the article were forwarded to thousands of physicians including all the leading practitioners in the United States, for purposes of experiment. A certificate, requesting the preparation of a report of the result, accompanied the specimens. Four thousand of the most eminent medical men in the Union promptly responded. Their opinions of the article were unanimously favorable. Such a preparation, they said, had long been wanted by the profession, as no poison could be placed on the ordinary liquor of commerce, all of which were more or less adulterated, and therefore unfit for medicinal purposes. It was submitted to the strength of the test of juniper, which formed one of the principal ingredients of the schnapps, together with an unalloyed character of the alcoholic element, give it, in the estimation of the faculty, a marked superiority over every other diffusive stimulant as a diuretic, tonic and restorative.

These salutatory credentials from professional men of the highest rank were published in a condensed form, and enclosed with each bottle of the schnapps, as one of the guarantees of its purity. Other precautions against fraud were also adopted; a patent was obtained for the article, the label was copyrighted, a fac simile of the proprietor's autograph signature was attached to each label and cover, his name and that of the preparation were embossed on the bottles, and the corks were sealed with his name. No article had ever been sold in this country under the name of Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps, until the introduction of Wolff's Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps, in 1851; and the label was deposited, as his trade mark, in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York during that year.

It might be supposed by persons unacquainted with the getting character of the parties who prey upon the credulous and ignorant, that the venditor of a cheap and inferior article, who is endeavoring to pass it off as a genuine article, would not carelessly throw around those who are deceived, the name of the proprietor, and the name of the article, and that the proprietor would not care to have his name and that of the preparation were embossed on the bottles, and the corks were sealed with his name.
