CHARLESTON.

SATURDAY MORNING, SEPT 11, 1869.

Touching the Pocket Nerve.

The most important and significant popular movement that has taken place in our State since its readmission to representation, is that begun by a public meeting held in Union County on Monday last, the proceedings of which are given in another part of to-day's News. Should the people of other counties see fit to sustain the action taken, a most effectual check will have been given to the present corrupt and reckless administration of our State affairs. Every body knows that Governor Scott and his satellites in and out of the Legislature regard their power to use the name and credit of South Carolina as the chief charm of their official station. But Wall-street understands perfectly well that the restoration of the control of the State government to the respectable and intelligent portion of the people is now only a question of time, and if it once becomes well understood that it is the settled purpose of our substantial citizens not to recognize or to pay the bonds issued so liberally in their name, but without their sanction, then good-by to the financial exploits of young Kimpson and his masters. The subject is one of the gravest importance, and we shall be glad to see it receive that careful consideration at the hands of a State Convention which our friends in Union have suggested.

"Land for the Landless"

It is a good suggestion, thrown out by that lively and sensible paper, the Winstons' News, that the great party which is preparing to grapple with and overthrow Radical rule in South Carolina, should enter the contest with a bold and explicit avowal of its policy and determination to provide in good faith and by legitimate means for the honest and homeless poor, be they black or white, the... homesteads, the delusive promise of which has heretofore been so potent an element of success to the pack of knaves and adventurers who now control our State government. Such a policy, while it would be just and beneficial in itself, would at once rally to our support thousands of voters in every section of the State, who are already more than half inclined to side with the party of decency, honor and truth. The laboring man, stung with disappointment at the contemptuous disregard of the Radical leaders for solemn pledges which were never meant to be fulfilled, can now readily make to understand that their only real hope of becoming prosperous and independent landowners, must be through the co-operation of those who have land to sell, mules to hire, plantation implements to lend, credit to use for the advancement of supplies—in short, the power to do the very things which our empty promises. The black man by this time fully comprehends that the boasted enterprise of Land Commissioner Leslie is nothing more nor less than a huge job, and that the only result of the scheme will be to fill the pockets of a ring of official speculators at the expense of the State. This is all that Radicalism in South Carolina has done for its ignorant and credulous tools. But the landholders of South Carolina by prompt and liberal action have it now in their power to diffuse content and good feeling among the laboring population, and to treble the value of their property, by ridding themselves and the State at once and forever of the monstrous incubus of a government which has no policy for the present but to oppress and plunder, and no thought for the future beyond the increase and perpetuation of its own power to rob.

How the Fifteenth Amendment Stands.

From the official records of the State Department at Washington it would appear that "the right of the citizens of the United States" to vote shall not be denied by the United States, nor by any State, on account of "race, color or previous condition of servitude," has been completely ratified by twelve States only, while two have imperiously refused it, and two have rejected it. The twelve States, whose ratification is thus declared complete, are: Arkansas, Connecticut, Florida, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, West Virginia and Wisconsin. The two whose ratification is incomplete are Kansas and Missouri, and the two which have rejected it are Delaware and Kentucky.

then to Galveston or some other Texan port. He proposes to devote himself to hunting in Texas, having heard brilliant accounts of the game in that region. As he has hunted throughout Europe and in India he may be considered quite a Nimrod. Magnificent preparations are being made by the Turkish government for the reception of the Empress Eugenie on the 20th instant. The whole Turkish fleet (thirty war vessels) will await the august voyageur at Corfu. Roubin Pacha, grand-master of the palace, and Kiamil Bey, master of the ceremonies, are appointed to go and present the first compliments of the Sultan. The Empress will renounce her incognito on her entrance into Turkish waters. The fighting touch is being put to the splendid caïque in which Abdul Aziz will meet her majesty and conduct her to the palace of Beyler Bey. A gala performance will be given at the opera, all hung with velvet and silk for the occasion; and the singers will have the honor of appearing in the costumes of London and Paris. By the Sultan's order, specimens of all the products of the Empire are being collected at the bazaar. The Empress and her suit will only be perplexed by the difficulty of making a choice. The imperial harem, conducted by the Sultana Valide, will pay a visit in great state to her Majesty. But what is to surpass all that fancy can imagine will be the soiree preceding the day of the Empress' departure. After a review in the plain of Belcos, and a luncheon, the bill of fare of which is a State business, the illustrious company will descend the Bosphorus to Beyler Bey. Nearly all the vessels of the Ottoman Empire can furnish will be present to accompany the imperial yacht, and the flags seen by day will be replaced by myriads of lights. The palace and its houses on both shores will be illuminated throughout the immense extent of the sea, and enormous fires will be lighted on the mountains of Europe and Asia. The estimated cost of these enchantments is 15,000,000 francs.

This list, however, is generally admitted by the press to be very far from complete, owing to the neglect of State officials to forward to the department certificates of the action had upon the amendment by the several Legislatures. The New York Times prints the following carefully prepared statement, showing by what States the amendment has been ratified, by what States rejected, and in what States no action has yet been had upon it, together with the dates denoting the time when each State's action was complete, through the concurrent vote of both houses of its Legislature: Alabama—No action yet taken. CHARLESTON.

Touching the Pocket Nerve.

The most important and significant popular movement that has taken place in our State since its readmission to representation, is that begun by a public meeting held in Union County on Monday last, the proceedings of which are given in another part of to-day's News. Should the people of other counties see fit to sustain the action taken, a most effectual check will have been given to the present corrupt and reckless administration of our State affairs. Every body knows that Governor Scott and his satellites in and out of the Legislature regard their power to use the name and credit of South Carolina as the chief charm of their official station. But Wall-street understands perfectly well that the restoration of the control of the State government to the respectable and intelligent portion of the people is now only a question of time, and if it once becomes well understood that it is the settled purpose of our substantial citizens not to recognize or to pay the bonds issued so liberally in their name, but without their sanction, then good-by to the financial exploits of young Kimpson and his masters. The subject is one of the gravest importance, and we shall be glad to see it receive that careful consideration at the hands of a State Convention which our friends in Union have suggested.

"Land for the Landless"

It is a good suggestion, thrown out by that lively and sensible paper, the Winstons' News, that the great party which is preparing to grapple with and overthrow Radical rule in South Carolina, should enter the contest with a bold and explicit avowal of its policy and determination to provide in good faith and by legitimate means for the honest and homeless poor, be they black or white, the... homesteads, the delusive promise of which has heretofore been so potent an element of success to the pack of knaves and adventurers who now control our State government. Such a policy, while it would be just and beneficial in itself, would at once rally to our support thousands of voters in every section of the State, who are already more than half inclined to side with the party of decency, honor and truth. The laboring man, stung with disappointment at the contemptuous disregard of the Radical leaders for solemn pledges which were never meant to be fulfilled, can now readily make to understand that their only real hope of becoming prosperous and independent landowners, must be through the co-operation of those who have land to sell, mules to hire, plantation implements to lend, credit to use for the advancement of supplies—in short, the power to do the very things which our empty promises. The black man by this time fully comprehends that the boasted enterprise of Land Commissioner Leslie is nothing more nor less than a huge job, and that the only result of the scheme will be to fill the pockets of a ring of official speculators at the expense of the State. This is all that Radicalism in South Carolina has done for its ignorant and credulous tools. But the landholders of South Carolina by prompt and liberal action have it now in their power to diffuse content and good feeling among the laboring population, and to treble the value of their property, by ridding themselves and the State at once and forever of the monstrous incubus of a government which has no policy for the present but to oppress and plunder, and no thought for the future beyond the increase and perpetuation of its own power to rob.
