NEWS OF THE DAY.

Gold at New York yesterday closed strong at 127 3/4. The New York cotton market closed heavy. Sales 20,000 bales at 20 1/2c.

The weather in England is reported as very cold, and frost and snow are abundant. The Allied forces in Paraguay have again been put in motion to attack Lopez at San Esteban.

The Spanish steamer General Dulce was sold by the sheriff at the Philadelphia Merchants' Exchange on Thursday, for $24,000. It is rumored in London that Russia has protested in a note to Turkey against the passage of armed Austrians through Turkish territory.

The Earl of Derby, then Lord Stanley, remarked the other day that co-operation was a "good thing," and he predicted "its success." Than Lord Stanley, no man in England or America is more worthy of attention, and he praiseworthy because it is human nature that a man should like to feel that he is "a gainer by any extra industry he may put forth, and that he should like to have some sense of proprietorship in the shop or mill in which he passes his "days." This is the whole question in a nutshell; but Lord Stanley was evidently speaking not of the ordinary co-operative associations, but of what are called industrial partnerships.

There are two distinct objects which the workmen, whether common laborers or skilled mechanics, are striving to obtain. The one is protection, and the other is progress. The Trades Unions, in England at all events, give the working men ample protection against arbitrary combinations of the part of employers, and this can be had, and will be had, without recourse to measures of violence like those which brought down upon the Sheffield Sawgrinders the deserved condemnation of the public.

General Prim announced in the Spanish Cortes Saturday that the government hoped soon to withdraw the decree establishing military law, but that at present such a step would be inadvisable on account of the number of conspirators who still remained at large.

A horrible murder was committed near Paris, in the State of Tennessee, on Sunday morning last. Gilbert Combs shot and killed his brother John, who was defending his mother against Gilbert. The affair grew out of a distribution of property left by their father. Gilbert was not arrested at last accounts.

Sixteen sailors of her Majesty's ship Charlydis, while at Victoria, went ashore with the launch, on the 20th of October, under command of a midshipman. Twelve of the men mutinied and overpowered the officer and other four sailors, and saved the port dynamite in Washington Territory, and escaped.

A San Francisco telegram says: "Koojman-schnap has returned. He will forward one hundred Chinamen next week to work on the Memphis and St. Paso Railroad. He says there are 3000 Chinamen in the State out of employment, and that more are returning to China than are, at present, coming here, owing to the approaching winter holiday of the empire."

The British bark Strathgry, from San Francisco, bound for Queenstown, with which, on the 24th of September, the crew suffered severely from exposure and hunger seven days and nights. They were picked up within twenty miles of land by the French bark Surcouf, and have arrived at San Francisco.

firm in Buffalo a large amount of wire grass cut from the big marsh north of Lansing, for which he received $20 per ton, delivered. From a series of experiments made a year ago, he became aware that a tougher and better, as well as cheaper, article of wrapping paper could be made from grass than from any material now in use.

The International, of London, states that the Viceroy of Egypt has concluded another loan of $5,000,000 francs, that he has forbidden the official English Journal, the Turque, to enter Egypt, and that he has ordered the Egyptian press to be placed in public, to be torn down, and that the other hand it means that the Sultan does not intend taking active measures to enforce his sovereignty until after the inauguration ceremonies of the Suez Canal.

The San Francisco Bulletin of the 23d ultimo, states that a car load of oysters, ten tons in amount, arrived in that city on the 22d inst. from Baltimore. They were shipped in a car constructed for the purpose, and came through in eight days in excellent condition. The entire car load was disposed of within twenty-four hours after their arrival. The success of this experiment will, it is believed, result in the construction of more oyster cars and a regular overland bivalve trade.

The men are puzzling themselves to account for the fact that the water which comes up through an iron tube, sunk fifteen feet through the constantly shifting sands of Cape Cod, from sixteen to twenty feet from high water and not more than three feet above it. The water in this tube rises and falls regularly with the tide, yet more than 100 barrels have been pumped from it at one time, without finding the slightest trace of saline matter.

At the recent meeting in Madrid, Spain, composed of representatives of the different political parties, complete disunion is said to have existed. General Prim had to use every effort to prevent a rupture both on the church and king questions. The opposition is now stated to be divided, but the final selection of the Duke of Genoa for the throne is regarded as probable.

The Robber of the Period. An order for three thousand dollars, in favor of Mr. D. T. Corbin, approved by Mayor Pillsbury, was presented for payment at the City Treasury yesterday. How did it get there?

At the meeting of the City Council held on Thursday last, Alderman Cunningham offered a resolution that Mr. Corbin be paid three thousand dollars for his professional services. The Mayor put the question, but there was so much confusion in the civic temple that only five or six Aldermen voted. There were, however, four votes against, and two in favor of Alderman Cunningham's resolution. The yeas and nays were called for, and then began the exhibition of Billingsgate rhetoric which ended in one Alderman firing three at another Alderman with a Colt's army revolver. The vote by yeas and nays was not taken, the resolution was not adopted; yet Mayor Pillsbury, when asked for information, refused to say what was its exact position.

We do not discuss now whether the services of Mr. Corbin were worth three thousand dollars, or whether the city should pay the fees for services rendered to the Mayor and Aldermen as private citizens. This has nothing to do with the present question, which is—whether Mayor Pillsbury has the right to empty the City Treasury, when and how it suits him? A vote of Council would have relieved Mayor Pillsbury of all responsibility. This he did not wait for. The claimant hungered for the loaves and fishes, and the gentle Mayor could not, or would not, resist his honored pleading.

We expect to be robbed, and shall not be disappointed. But we did not look for so flagrant a violation of all rules of reason, right and decency as is shown in this last frank of our eminently honorable Mayor. Well, what next?

Industrial Partnerships. The Earl of Derby, then Lord Stanley, remarked the other day that co-operation was a "good thing," and he predicted "its success." Than Lord Stanley, no man in England or America is more worthy of attention, and he praiseworthy because it is human nature that a man should like to feel that he is "a gainer by any extra industry he may put forth, and that he should like to have some sense of proprietorship in the shop or mill in which he passes his "days." This is the whole question in a nutshell; but Lord Stanley was evidently speaking not of the ordinary co-operative associations, but of what are called industrial partnerships.

There are two distinct objects which the workmen, whether common laborers or skilled mechanics, are striving to obtain. The one is protection, and the other is progress. watch over and protect the interests of his employers in a hundred ways, and this he will not do—it is not reasonable to expect it—unless a saving or a benefit to the employer is a saving or a benefit to him. The employer understands this argument, and, therefore, when co-operation for production takes the shape of an industrial partnership, it is tolerably certain to succeed.

In England, the industrial partnership has been tried. The experiment has been made in various branches of industry, under various conditions, but all maintaining the essential principle of giving the artisan a direct interest in the results of his labor, and furnishing him with a fresh inducement to make them productive. In some cases the movement was made by the employers; in others it originated with the employed; but in all, the experiment has proved satisfactory enough to justify its indefinite extension.

Industrial partnerships will satisfy the impatient energies of the workmen of to-day. They rise steadily in the social scale and will not and shall not sink to the level of a mere machine. They claim the privilege of following their handiwork beyond the gates of the factory and of becoming identified with its progress. They claim that they and their employers are one, and ask that they be given an association as inseparable as their interests. This will not be denied them, and as years roll by capital, the organizer, and labor, the producer, may walk side by side in the smiling ways of industry and peace.

JOHN PLOUGHMAN'S TALK; or Plain Advice for Plain People. By C. H. Spurgeon. New York: Sheldon & Co.

A man may win notoriety by a happy accident; he cannot win and keep distinction without having something better in his gifts than the capricious bounty of Fortune. In this truth Spurgeon affords an illustration; that he is an English celebrity is due to his having a good deal of brain, a good deal of zeal, and a good deal of industry. He would make a stir anywhere. A strong man never resting prevents stagnation in a community.

Besides, he has the gifts of a popular leader—heartiness, humor, courage. All these qualities John Ploughman's Talk reveals. It might be named Spurgeon's opinions about people whom he and all of us have met. It is a book of friendly chat and jocular banter and aphoristic wisdom—funny, homely, good-natured—pleasant to read and profitable to ponder. While upon this subject, we may be allowed, in justice to Mr. Spurgeon, to say that John Ploughman's Talk is not a specimen of the author's pulpit performances, as a sensational story recently published would seem to indicate. Mr. Spurgeon is not accustomed to ring bells or sibilate down banisters, as a part of his public ministrations, but preaches to us as orderly and serious a congregation as can be found in England. Oftentimes homely in illustration, he is uniformly earnest in the sacred desk. This volume will serve to show what he could do if he should undertake to excite the risibles of a public audience.
