

The Governor's Message.

We publish this morning, the message of Governor Orr, and invite for it a careful perusal from the people of South Carolina. The message is evidently very carefully prepared, and discusses with great ability the various subjects of interest to our people. It is so clear on every point, that an abstract or summary is entirely unnecessary.

The recommendation that an amendment repealing that clause of the Constitution, requiring the General Assembly to establish District Courts, is, in our judgment, eminently proper; for already there have been grave objections urged against the utility of these Courts; and as Governor Orr justly remarks, no human wisdom is equal to the task of giving a perfect system of courts and laws when an ancient system is to be revised; therefore, if the Constitution is amended as the Governor suggests, a year will show whether the District Courts should be continued.

The Governor's suggestions as to the necessary changes in the criminal law caused by the establishment of the penitentiary system; as to certain civil officers who use seals; Congressional elections, &c., appear to us to be worthy of adoption by the General Assembly; while his remarks on the freed people show that he has carefully considered the subject, and do credit to his head and heart. The financial condition of the State is very clearly shown, and the most of the Governor's suggestions as to levying some additional taxes to increase the revenue, are based upon justice and equality among the various professions and occupations required to contribute to the support of the State Government.

The subject of supplying corn for the people of the State, very properly enters into the list of the Governor's suggestions and recommendations, and he tells the Legislature, that it is reasonably certain that the requirements made at the extra session, that for every dollar of the State bonds issued, a bushel of corn should be laid down in the State, would prevent the purchase of the needed supply. The proposition of Messrs. Brown & Schirmer, of this city, experienced dealers in grain, and that to be proposed by Mr. Riker, of Charleston, will receive due consideration, and may be found to be the best practical mode of introducing the needed supplies.

The Governor again urges the enactment of a homestead law, and a law providing for an increase of property to be exempt from levy and sale.

His review of the provisions of the proposed Constitutional Amendment, is very good, and will be read with interest, as it was reported he was in favor of the Legislature ratifying it. This unfounded rumor is put at rest by the analysis of its odious features which he presents in this message. With him we say, "let us preserve our own self-respect, and the respect of our posterity, by refusing to be the mean instruments of our own shame."

We again commend the message to the consideration of the Legislature and our people generally, as an admirable State paper, and one of the ablest we have read from any Executive in these troublous times. Every question of public interest is ably discussed, and every suggestion entitled to the serious attention of that body to which they are addressed.

Despatches received at Montreal from England by the Governor-General, state that the possibility of trouble with the United States, render an increase of vigilance indispensable on the part of the Canadian authorities.

It is rumored in conservative circles in New Orleans, that Governor Wells will be impeached on the assembling of the Louisiana Legislature, on the charge of attempting to subvert the State Government.

The venerable Bishop Andrew, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, is in Savannah, Ga. His great age is telling upon him, but his mind is clear and he is as earnest as ever in his great mission.

The aggregate amount of money appropriated by Congress, at its late session, for various public purposes, is $155,881,784.16.

After nineteen ineffectual ballots, the Arkansas Legislature, up to Wednesday, failed to elect a United States Senator.

Governor Perry's Letter.

The admirable letter of Governor Perry to Charles W. Woodward, Esq., of Philadelphia, discussing the Constitutional Amendment, (originally published in the Phoenix,) has attracted more attention, so far as our observation has extended, than any other paper which we have seen. It has been published from New York to New Orleans, in the leading papers of every city, and has been generally accompanied by very commendatory notices. We have not space for all the comments of our cotemporaries on this admirable production, but subjoin extracts from two Southern leading journals.

The New Orleans Times has a very long and able notice of the letter, in which it says the antecedents of Governor Perry "entitle it to the highest consideration of the people of the entire South." It says:

"No living statesmen can show a fairer record, and although we have often differed from his views, promulgated in times of high party excitement, yet we are prepared to bear testimony to his thorough honesty. A native citizen of South Carolina, and, for the last quarter of a century, one of her most-honored legislators, he was yet opposed to the leading doctrines of what was called the Carolina party. In the old nullification controversy that took place in 1832-3, he ranged himself on the side of the Unionists; and, in 1850, when the doctrine of secession was broached and maintained with great ardor by many of the most eminent citizens of that State, he raised an earnest voice against it, through the columns of a press then under his able direction. When the State of South Carolina, at length, in 1860, actually seceded, he bowed to her behests, and united his fortunes with that of his State, during the unhappy war that succeeded."

The Times then proceeds to summarize approvingly the arguments used by Gov. Perry against the amendment, and concludes as follows:

"These views, nobly expressed by Gov. Perry at the proper time, are very encouraging. The South has no cause for despair. Her citizens are, and will be, true to themselves in this hour of threatened danger to their liberties, and the Chief Magistrate of the nation, who, in the midst of difficulties, has displayed the energy of a Jackson, and the courage of a Cromwell, will, we are sure, prove himself equal to the further trials to which they may be subjected by the unhallowed designs and crafty manoeuvres of the enemies of the Union and the Constitution."

The Columbus (Ga.) Sun expresses more fully our own opinion when we published the letter. We have to limit ourselves to one or two extracts from the editorial of that paper:

"We can recall nothing from all that has been written or spoken upon the acceptance by the South of the Constitutional Amendment, which will compare in point, clearness and force to this production of the pen of the ex-Provisional Governor of South Carolina. From it the North may learn the exact status of every true Southerner, and in addition, may find in it a faithful portrait of the wandering vagabonds who claim to be the exponents of Southern loyalty and Unionism."

"This last effort of Governor Perry has filled to repletion, the measure of our admiration for his intellectual capacity and exalted honor. He alone, of all the Union men of the South, can present a record which will command universal respect for its consistency, and in comparison with his own, the persecutions of all the rest, for devotion to the Union, have been light and trifling. Almost unaided and alone, he fearlessly faced the intolerant spirit of the dominant party in South Carolina. His devotion to the Union cast a shadow upon his life in the early days of his manhood, and throughout the struggles of after years, he stood by his principles in the face of social ostracism; and in times when the expression of a Union sentiment was almost a badge of personal infamy."

We are truly gratified to see that this able letter has been properly appreciated throughout the entire South, and published and treated with high respect by even Northern journals opposed to us in political sentiment.

A parade of the New York fire department has taken place. Thirty-four steamers, twelve hook and ladder trucks, and six hundred men were on the ground.
