

MISCELLANY.

THE DUKE OF WELLINGTON AND LORD BROUGHTAM.—One day, when his lordship had driven to the house in a vehicle of his own invention, which Robinson, the coach-maker, had christened after him, he was met in the robing-room by the Duke of Wellington, who, after a bow, accosted him: "I have hitherto lived under the impression that your lordship would go down to posterity as the great apostle of education, the emancipator of the negro, the restorer of abused charities, the reformer of the law; but no, you will hereafter be known only as the inventor of a carriage."

"And I, my lord duke," said Broughtam, "have always been under the delusion that your grace would be remembered as the hero of a hundred battles, the liberator of Europe, the conqueror of Napoleon; but no, your grace will be known as the inventor of a pair of boots."

"D—the boots! I had forgotten them. You have the best of it," replied the duke.

A BAROMETER.—If you want to know what kind of weather will prevail during the day, when you sit down to breakfast, allow the sugar to drop to the bottom of your cup of coffee, watch the bubbles arise without disturbing them. If the bubbles collect in the middle, the weather will be fine; if they adhere to the cup, forming a ring, it will be rainy; and if the bubbles separate without assuming any fixed position, changeable weather may be expected. Try it.

A lady, who was about to give a party to a convention of clergymen, sent for a caterer to assist in the preparations. He asked if she intended to give a dancing party. She replied that it was to be mainly composed of clergy. "In that case, madam," said he, "I would advise you to provide bountifully. Them pious people eat dreadfully."

The cost of an English lady of the period, as she appears at a ball or theatre, is reckoned at $15,000, exclusive of the value of the lady herself, which for ladies of that quality is merely nominal, however.

A negro lecturing in Georgia, asserts that Adam was a yellow man. We know an incredulous fellow says he wasn't any such Adam thing.

ST. CLOUD HOTEL. THIS NEW and Commodious HOUSE, located corner Broadway and Forty-second street, New York, possesses advantages over all other houses, for the accommodation of its guests. It was built expressly for a first-class family boarding-house—the rooms being large and airy, heated by steam—with hot and cold water, and furnished second to none; while the culinary department is in the most experienced hands, affording guests an unequalled table. One of Atwood's Patent Elevators is also among the 'modern improvements' and at the service of guests at all hours. The Broadway and University Place Carriages pass the door every four minutes, running from the City Hall to Central Park, while the Sixth and Seventh Avenue lines are but a short block on either side, affording ample facilities for communicating with all depots, steamboat landings, places of amusement and business of the great metropolis.
