Washington News.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The Cubans have insurgent advices to the 2d. The cholera is reported broken out among the Cubans in the Eastern department, and it is very fatal. The vomito is very malignant along the coast and lowland country, and is telling fearfully on the Spanish soldiers. Quesada holds his own before Puerto Principe, and expects to take the town and railroad to Neuvinas in a very short time. The Cubans gained a decided victory in the St. Jago de Cuba district, which caused great rejoicing among the Cubans. General Jordan and command have so far escaped the pestilence. An important engagement is deemed inevitable, which will be of a decisive character.

SINGULAR ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday morning, Hiram Kinnard, a resident of Patestown, aged sixty-five years, shouldered his gun, whistled up his two dogs, and started up along the line of the Hannibal and St. Joseph Railroad. As he did not return at night, his relatives became alarmed for his safety, and on Thursday morning Mr. Thomas W. Isaacs, his step-son, started in quest of him. He searched the accustomed hunting grounds for hours in vain, and at length rested on a railroad bridge. While yet undecided as to what course to pursue, his attention was attracted by the barking of dogs at no great distance in the timber. He recognized the voices, and at once sought the place whence the sounds proceeded. Arriving at the spot, he was horrified at the sight of the dead body of his father lying in the mire of the creek. On the bank above was a large pool of blood, and the gun crushed under a dead limb, about foot in diameter, which had broken off of a tree some forty feet from the ground. From the fact that a pool of blood was found on the bank near the gun, it would seem that deceased was not killed outright, but after bleeding profusely, had struggled to rise and fallen down the bank, some fifteen feet, where death had kindly ended his sufferings. The skull was badly fractured, producing concussion of the brain. There is a touching incident relative of canine intelligence and affection connected with this case. Appearance indicated that the accident happened Wednesday, as it did undoubtedly, otherwise the deceased would have returned home in due time. During all the long hours of that night his dogs had vigilantly guarded his remains. Around the body and at a respectful distance from it, they seemed to have walked in an incessant, unwearied round, and when Mr. Isaacs first approached, they would not even permit him to touch the shattered gun, though well acquainted with him. Thus jealously did they watch their dead master.

One of the most singular freaks of nature we ever saw has been on exhibition at the post office, at this place, during the past week. It is a pig with a human face! Its shape and structure are natural up to the ears, but from the ears to the top of head and down to the chin the shape and features are those of the human, excepting that is covered with hair like the rest of the body and has no nostrils, being obliged to breathe through the mouth. The pig is about two weeks old.—North Carolinian.

RAPID SAILING VOYAGE.—The arrival of the yacht Dauntless, James Gordon Bennett, Jr., of New York, commander, is announced at Queenstown on Sunday afternoon. She made the passage in a little over twelve days and seventeen hours.

"Here's your money, dolt, and now tell me why your rascally master wrote eighteen letters about that contemptible sum?" "I'm sure I can't say, but if you'll excuse me, sir, I sort o' reckon 'twas because seventeen didn't fetch it."

DEATH OF AN OLD CITIZEN.—Mr. John Samuel Peake, one of the oldest adopted citizens of South Carolina, died at his residence in Summerville on Monday last, in the eighty-third year of his age.

The Good Time Coming in the South.

The New York Commercial Advertiser forcibly remarks: The condition of the Southern States at the present time is full of promise. They seem to have fairly tided over their industrial and political troubles, and the future is bright with the promise of a high, and, we trust, enduring prosperity.

Another good cotton crop, of which the indications appear to be the most favorable, will place them in a position which even the Northern States may envy. The Southern people, fortunately for themselves, have had no credit for several years past, and have therefore no debts at the present time. They have been forced to live economically, and depend entirely upon their own resources, while the Northerners, as a rule, have been extravagant and wasteful. It is probable that in the event of the occurrence of the financial panic which some persons regard as imminent, the Southern people would feel the shock much less keenly, and recover from it much more rapidly than some of the more wealthy and apparently more prosperous Northern States.

The condition of the cotton market at the present time indicates that no material reduction is likely to occur in the present prices of the great staple. The supply of cotton in both England and the United States is scarcely adequate to the requirements of consumers during the interval that elapses before the new crop begins to come forward. The cable quotations of 12 1/2 d. for middling uplands at Liverpool, is a fortune for the Southern planter. That there will be no important reduction from this price is apparent from the evident inadequacy of all the cotton fields in the world to supply the demands for consumption. The supply is falling off from India in spite of all the efforts of England to stimulate production in that region. The South, for a series of years to come, will be the great source of cotton supply for the world. King cotton is recovering his lost throne, but he will reign henceforth as a constitutional monarch over freemen, not as a despot over slaves. Free labor will ultimately vindicate its superiority even in the cotton field.

Nothing, then, but the contingency of unexpected and unlooked-for disasters to the new crop can prevent the South taking a new start. At present, the accounts of the cotton and corn crops are favorable, and the yield of both these products will be largely in excess of last year. With the prospect of plenty of money, and with no debts on hand to absorb it, the South at the close of another successful harvest will possess the means and capital required to stimulate the great railroad and other industrial enterprises that are destined to impart to it a new impulse on the road to prosperity.

REVIVING DROWNING PERSONS.—If the drowned person be a politician, whisper in his ear that he has just been appointed to a fat office.

If a married woman, softly tell her that her husband is just cutting it fat with that woman she hates.

If it be a young man, tell him, confidentially, that another fellow is after his sweetheart.

If a married man, slyly tell him that a handsome young lady called yesterday, and is to call again to-day, at his office, on important private business.

If he is a carpet-bugger, let him drown. [Pomeroy's Democrat.]

The directors of the Gettysburg Memorial Association now propose to indicate the more prominent events of the three days' struggle, with the positions of the different and contending forces, by permanent memorials on the field; and they suggest a re-union at Gettysburg the first week in August of the Generals who commanded on both sides during the battle, to discuss this plan and determine the points to be commemorated.

It is thought both at Turin and Florence that King Victor Emanuel will abdicate at an early day. His unpopularity, it is said, never was greater than at the present time.
