Enthusiasm is said to be a poor thing to take into a national convention. The fate ofeward in 1860 at the Chicago Convention, and of Blaine at Cincinnati would seem to prove the truth of this assertion. Both has a large following of enthusiastic supporters, the nomination of both was almost conceded and both came out of the convention slaughtered by a comparatively unknown man. The Morton men and Conkling men thought Hayes a more proper man for the President than Blaine, and before they would see the latter nominated united on the former. That Blaine would prove a stronger candidate than Hayes in the long run is doubtful.

Most of the states are either irrevocably Republican or irrevocably Democratic. Any candidate will carry these certain states. But every candidate will not carry Ohio. With Blaine it would be a doubtful state, with Hayes it is surely republican. The great contest will now center in New York, Connecticut, New Jersey and Indiana. As New York and a majority of these states go, so goes the Union.

Hayes and Wheeler campaign poetry will not flourish. The names do not rhyme like Blaine, with sonorous and high-sounding words. They rather tend to terms of doubtful suggestions. Hayes of few days and devious ways, and Wheeler with peeler, sneaker, stealer, and such expressions made use of commonly is whiskey ring parlance. They do not sound like Blaine of the State of Maine ringing in glad refrain, o'er hill and plain—glorious reign, foes all slain when he arose to explain. Such a mighty name worked in a happy strain by the poet of the News & Press and other journals, would strike the fancy of the masses, swell the enthusiasm for the favorite and lead on to glorious victory. But Hayes & Wheeler is an unfortunate combination. It sounds like the title of a respectable dry goods house and contains nothing inspiring.

Many people are trying to find out who the nominees for President and Vice President are on the Republican ticket. One way to get at this is to find out who they are not.

Wheeler, it is said, is not of the firm of Wheeler & Wilson, the Sewing Machine men: Some thought it was the ex-confederate cavalry general Wheeler, but that is denied. It is also stated that he is not Col. Wheeler, famous in the surveys of the Territories.

Hayes is not generally well known either. It is not John Hay, the author of Little Breeches; nor Hayes, the article Explorer, nor Hays, despised by College Freshmen, but it is R. B. Hayes, a new man from Ohio.

The rush to the San Juan mines is unabated. Many foot it across the range and carry their blankets, hoping to get work as soon as they arrive. They are sadly disappointed. The railroads and stage companies are the parties who make most in an enterprise of this kind. It is of little use to go to the San Juan mines with the hopes of making anything unless you go with plenty of money and take a stamp mill.

PRESIDENTIAL.

R. B. Hayes of Ohio for President.—W. A. Wheeler of New York, Vice.

The convention at Cincinnati completed its labors on Friday of last week. It was as harmonious as most such conventions are. Ex-Gov. Morgan called the convention to order, Hon. T. M. Pomeroy of New York was made temporary chairman. On the 16th inst., a permanent organization was effected with Edward McPherson of Pennsylvania as chairman. A platform was adopted and then the trouble began when the nominations for President were in order. The supporters of the several candidates cheered each lustily when the nominations were made. On the call of states Stephen Kellogg of Connecticut put in nomination, Hon. Marshall Jewell of that state. Colonel Richard Tompson of Indiana presented the name of O. P. Morton and deafening cheers. Gen. John M. Harlan of Kentucky nominated Hon. H. Bristow which likewise elicited great applause. The crowning feature of the day however, was the tremendous applause which greeted the nomination of J. G. Blaine of Maine by Robert Ingersoll of Illinois. The affair was well managed and the effect was said to be thrilling. The speech of Mr. Ingersoll was pronounced to be the most remarkable effort of the sort that has ever been made in this country. We give it in full:

GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION.—Messengers may be satisfied with the loyalty of Bristow, H. Bristow—so am I. [Applause.] But if any man nominated by this convention can not carry the State of Massachusetts, I am not satisfied with the loyalty of that State. [Applause.] If the nominee of this convention can not carry that "Grand Commonwealth of Massachusetts" by a 75,000 majority, I would advise them to sell out the Faneuil Hall as a Democratic headquarters. I would advise them to take from Banker Hill that old Monument of glory.

The Republicans of the United States demand as their leader in the great contest of 1876, a man of well known and approved political opinions. They demand a statesman; they demand a reformer; they demand a politician in the highest and broadest, and best sense of the word. [Applause.] They demand a man acquainted with public affairs, with the wants of the people, with the requirements of the age, not only in the present, but in the future; they demand a man bright enough to comprehend the relation of this Government to other Nations of the earth; they demand a man well versed in the powers, duties and prerogatives of each several department of this Government; they demand a man who will carefully preserve the financial honor of the United States; [applause]; one who knows enough to know that the National debt must be paid through the prosperity of this people; one wise enough to know that all the financial theories in the world can not redeem a single dollar that the money must be in the not by law, but by labor; that the people of the United States have the industry to make money, and the honor to pay it over just as fast as they earn it. [loud and prolonged applause.] The Republicans of the United States demand a man who stands for the future, and who stands for the relation of this Government to other Nations of the earth; they demand a man well versed in the powers, duties and prerogatives of each several department of this Government; they demand a man who will carefully preserve the financial honor of the United States; [applause]; one who knows enough to know that the National debt must be paid through the prosperity of this people; one wise enough to know that all the financial theories in the world can not redeem a single dollar that the money must be in the not by law, but by labor; that the people of the United States have the industry to make money, and the honor to pay it over just as fast as they earn it. Our country, crowned with the vast and marvelous achievements of its first century, asks for a man worthy of her past and prophetic of her future asks for a man who has the soul of genius, and the man who has the grandest combination of heart, mind and brain beneath her flag. The man is James G. Blaine. [loud applause.] For the Republican ticket, let us not make it digged out of the earth. You can not make it by passing resolutions in political meetings. The Republican party, the Republicans of the United States, want a man who knows that the Government should protect every citizen at home and abroad; who knows that any Government who will not defend its defenders, and will not protect its protectors, is a disgrace to the map of the world. [Applause.] They demand a man who believes in the utter separation and disincorporation of Church and school and Church and State. They demand a man who has a full, hearty and abundant measure of all these standard qualifications in the present and the future. [loud and repeated cheering, many of the dea a a rising to their feet.]

Gentlemen of the Convention, in the name of the great Republic, the only republic that ever existed upon this earth, in the name of our defenders, and of all best supporters, in the name of all our soldiers living, and in the name of all our soldiers that fell upon the field of battle; in the name of those that perished in the skeleton clutches of Famine at Andersonville and Libby Prison, whose suffering was so vividly remembered by the next President of this country, that prince of parliamentarians, that leader of leaders James G. Blaine, [loud and continued cheering.]

This splendid speech was delivered with grand effect, and the coolest could scarcely keep from falling in with the general current of enthusiasm for Blaine. Gov. Hayes of Ohio followed Blaine's nomination by putting forward Gen. Hayes of Ohio for the Presidency. Hayes was followed in order by the nomination of Roscoe Conkling by Stewart L. Woodford, and Hartranft by Lynn Bartholomew. The convention adjourned until Friday at 10 o'clock.

On the reassembling of the convention balloting for the candidates was begun. First ballot, total vote, 762; necessary to a choice, 377; Blaine, 287; Bristow, 118; Conkling, 99; Hartranft, 68; Hayes, 61; Jewell, 11; Morton, 124; Wheeler, 2.

THIRD BALLOT.
1:45 P. M.—Blaine, 283; Bristow, 127; Conkling, 99; Hartranft, 68; Hayes, 67; Morton, 113; Washburne, 1; Wheeler, 3.

FIFTH BALLOT.
3:40 P. M.—Blaine, 286; Bristow, 114; Hayes, 104; Conkling, 82; Morton, 95; Hartranft, 69; Wheeler, 2; Washburne, 3.

SIXTH BALLOT.

Conkling, 91; Hayes, 113; Morton, 35; Hartranft, 60; Wheeler, 2; Washburne, 4. SEVENTH BALLOT.

The 7th and final ballot stood: Blaine 351, Bristow, 21, Hayes, 384. As soon as the nomination was known at Washington, Blaine telegraphed the following to Gov. Hayes: Gov. R. B. Hayes: I offer you my sincere congratulations on your nomination. It will be my highest pleasure, as well as my first political duty, to do all in my power to promote your election. The earliest moments of returning health will be devoted to securing you as large a vote in Maine as she would have given for myself. Signed J. G. BLAINE.

Cincinnati, June 16.—Shortly after the nomination of Hayes the Kentucky delegation read the following telegram from Col. Bristow: Hon. John M. Harlan—I congratulate the convention on its good work in nominating Gov. Hayes, and I rejoice that my friends helped to do it. You have secured a victory for us in November by giving us a true man for whom every republican can vote. B. H. BRISTOW

Comments of the York Press.

WHAT THE "HERALD" SAYS.
New York, June 16.—The Herald says in regard to the Cincinnati nominations: "The ticket selected is a fair one, but means nothing but mediocrity. Governor Hayes is a good man. He has a fair, safe record. His personal character is stainless. He was a quiet, sensible Congressman, a modest General, and is now a fair Governor. If elected he will bring these qualities into the White House. He has no such hold upon the country as Blaine or Morton Conkling or Washburne. He happened to have fewer edges than any other candidate and the party took him. It may be a choice as wise as that of Lincoln, or as foolish as that of Tyler. Time must determine this. Mr. Wheeler, the candidate for Vice President, stands well in this State. Hayes and Wheeler will poll the party vote. They will call out solid, hard working party men. As a ticket Hayes and Wheeler represent the average common sense, sober minded classes.

The Star says "Hayes is a candidate whose weakness and unimportance are his chief recommendations to the Republican party. His name in Congress or elsewhere has been identified with no policy or measure or action of any kind. He has no marked powers that have been brought into play. He has no strong points of character. He has been but a lucky man in politics. Above all, Hayes is no reformer. He is not the man to clean out political corruption, to destroy the desperate rags which have got hold of the country, or to do anything to obliterate the abomination of Grantism."

THE "WORLD" says: "The nomination of Governor Hayes is a collapse, not a compromise. The Governor has respectable abilities, and a good private character, but with harmony in the Democratic councils, and true, sterling Democrats on their ticket, their party will be successful in November."

THE "TIMES" says: "The Republican party has found its Lincoln to lead it on to victory. The foremost candidate is a man of plain and unobtrusive manners, unimpeachable honesty, keen intelligence, and robust common sense. The second place on the ticket has been given to one whose ability as a legislator and whose influence as a clear headed, far-seeing statesman are worthy of the robust era of our history and the highest standards of our public life. The convention has given the Republican party a ticket and a platform on which it can and must win. The names of Rutherford B. Hayes and Wm. A. Wheeler are amply sufficient guarantees that the party has shaken off the influences which treated it to paralyze it. It has repudiated the corruption which its so-called leaders have suffered to stain its record, and make its honest members hang their heads for shame. A campaign under such leadership will be an aggressive, enthusiastic, and united one. The nominations are such as ought to command the approval of every independent politician who is sincerely desirous of elevating the tone of our public life, and of every Liberal who has been heartily dissatisfied with the dictation of office holders or the abuse of political influence of the Administration."

CINCINNATI, June 17.—The Gazette puts the names of Hayes and Wheeler at the head of their column, and says: Our flag is there, it is nailed to the masthead. It will stand; it will wave in November in celebration of a victory equal to and that has heretofore been achieved in this country. The Republican party, by the action of yesterday's convention, has been saved from disaster, and the hand that was lifted to assassinate the good old party was stayed, and we are safe. Bristow was not the choice, but his honored name, his grand achievements and the patriotism of his friends, saved the party and saved the country.

The Enquirer (Democratic) considers Hayes' nomination as the weak-st of all candidates in the field, and that the nomination of Wheeler was especially weak, when such men as ex-Gov. Morgan or Woodford of New York were up to choose from.

AN ESCAPE, AND AN OPPORTUNITY LOST.
The Commercial says, in speaking of yesterday's nominations, that the Republic an party lost a good opportunity and escaped a great disaster. The opportunity, was, that of nominating Bristow, the escapes from the nomination of Blaine. It says farther, that the party has not made a victory sure, by its nominations. Hayes is not an ideal candidate, but for party purposes a good candidate. It says that the nomination of Wheeler was a mistake, that of Woodford would have been much better. The Commercial regrets that Bristow was NOT THE CHOICE of the convention. In speaking of the proceedings yesterday it says. It was proposed and understood—if we were not cautious about the use of words we would say that it was agreed, that when the Bristow vote should exceed the Morton vote, the vote of Indiana should on the next ballot go to Bristow so'd the occasion came, and Colonel Thompson hesitated and waited for another ballot. Before that ballot he had received a dispatch from Morton saying that the battle was not lost and that his friend's should stand by him. This dispatch was fatal. There was further delay, and Howard threw Michigan for Hayes, breaking down Bristow's strength and leading the column of Blaine's opponents to Hayes. If Morton had telegraphed positively that HIS NAME SHOULD BE WITHDRAWN, and that that strength was waning was perfectly apparent, the timely vote of Indiana for Bristow would have been followed by the whole strength of Morton's southern vote, and by the greater portion of Pennsylvania. If this programme had been carried out, if Morton's sagacity, which would have been clear in the case of any other candidate, had not failed him, as to himself, those who have studied the history of the convention, will, we think, agree with us, that the nomination of Bristow would have followed.

Corpus Christi.
This festival of the Roman Catholic Church was celebrated last Sunday, in this city, with great pomp and ceremony. The ringing of bells called the worshippers to the church in the morning where High Mass was offered by his reverence Arch Bishop Lamy assisted by Fathers Gasparri. Conder and other of the priesthood. At the conclusion of the service, a procession was formed at the Church which marched thence down south second street; back on water-street, and up Court house street to the Church. The procession numbered between three and four thousand persons and war largely composed of ladies. A charming feature was the young girls, pupils of the Convent of the Sisters of Loretto, all arrayed in white. The band discoursed excellent music during the march. The Sacred Host was borne by Bishop Lamy, in a handsome casket beneath a canopy carried by members of the congregation. Rest were made at different points along the line of march where blessings were pronounced at the temporary but beautiful altars erected for the occasion. A party of young girls, dressed in spotless white marched in front of the Canopy and strewed the entire route with roses. The altars were erected at the residence of the following citizens in order: Don Remualdo Baca, Dionicio Gonzales, Santos Equivel, Antonio Labadie, Jesus Gonzales, the Sisters of Loretto, Charles Blanchard, Miguel Romero, Hilario Romero, Onofre Romero, Teodosio Luero and Benigno Jaramilla. The congregation reentered the church and were dismissed with a solemn benediction. The day was bright and beautiful and nothing occurred to mar the harmony of the exercises.
