TWO METHODS OF BEGGING

Plausible and Polite Mendicant No Doubt No More Deserving Than His Opposite.

Like those of the "Heathen Chinee," the ways of the seeker after alms are peculiar. A correspondent writes to the London Chronicle: "Walking down Fleet street the other day, I was accosted in the most casual manner by an individual who at a glance could be summed up as one of life's failures. With refined accent and in the most perfect English he apologized—while keeping pace with me—for intruding his company upon me uninvited. He would not beat about the bush. Through a conglomeration of adverse circumstances (the phraseology is his own) he was destitute. For the moment he could not dig owing to his inability to find an allotment wherein to delve; to beg he was most heartily ashamed, but did it as a 'dernier ressort.' Could I spare a shilling—not as a loan, but as a gift, and help a lame dog over a stile?"

"I could—and I did, against my better judgment. He accepted the gift in the spirit in which he had asked for it. 'I'm not going to thank you,' he said; 'you know I would do the same for you were our positions reversed. Will you shake hands?' Further down I came across his antithesis. Sidling up, with that crab-like sither which stamps the professional mendicant, he accosted me thus. 'Yer don't 'appen 'ter 'ave a bit of bread on yer, gov'nor, do yer?' I did not—and the curses of the disappointed one followed me till I was out of earshot! And I shouldn't care to have to decide which of the two was the more deserving."

WAS WOMAN OF GREAT CHARM

Empress Josephine One of the Most Remarkable Personages of Historical Record.

While the Empress Josephine had one million francs a year for her private purse, it is a well-known fact that she was always in debt, and while this led to stormy scenes with Napoleon, and beyond doubt she had an extravagant wardrobe, it must not be supposed that she spent this sum entirely upon herself, as it is estimated that she supported more than two thousand poor people in addition to helping many needy aristocrats who had suffered under the revolution.

It is said that she owned several hundred hats and bonnets which were peculiarly becoming to her, and paid her hairdresser six thousand francs a year. Of course, the preservation of her wonderful charm caused the spending of many hours a day in her boudoir, from which all but a few favorite waiting women were excluded. So successful was she, in addition to her own wonderful personality, that at the age of forty, and a grandmother, when arrayed in a simple white mousseline and a string of pearls, her husband exclaimed at her loveliness and said he would be jealous.

Continental English.

The idea that English is to be the universal language of the future seems to be spreading. Certainly thousands of Europeans struggle bravely with its rules and idioms. Here is a sample of the progress that has been made in one quarter, remarks the Youth's Companion. It is taken from the advertising matter that a large continental hotel publishes in the form of an elaborate illustrated booklet: "Its spacious dimensions, exquisite comfort, elegant fashion of its furnishings, the unobjectionable prerogatives as to the produce of its kitchen and contents of its cellars, besides the distinguished managing, which, assisted by well experienced attendants, does its utmost in always duly treating—all this, united already for many years past, obtained a general renown, even abroad, too."

A Word to Literary Critics.

Critics will show you how such and such a writer repeated the thoughts of Kant or Hegel, or used the phrasing of Dante or Milton, or stole the plots of Boccaccio or Guy de Maupassant. They often prove their wide reading, they sometimes demonstrate their sagacity, but they do not justify their existence as critics unless they go further than this, for the genius of authorship declares itself less unmistakably in gifts shared with fore-runners or contemporaries than in gifts peculiar to itself. Walt Whitman or William Wordsworth is neither understood nor elucidated when his possible pilferings have been listed; at best the ground has only been cleared for the critic's real work of insight and interpretation.—Collier's Weekly.

Englishwomen Urge Goat Keeping.

With the object of obtaining for the children of farm laborers a constant supply of pure milk, which is almost impossible in the calf rearing districts, Devonshire cottagers are being encouraged by Lady Acland of Killerton, Mrs. Charles Carew of Warncombe and other women to keep goats.

Some of the best goats have been introduced into the country districts of Devon, and at Tiverton Agricultural Show recently valuable prizes were offered. It is claimed that goats cost little to keep and that their milk is in some respects superior to that given by cows.—London Times.

Not Patented.

Co-operation is the keynote in successful accident prevention work. Many large manufacturers who have designed accident prevention devices for their own use have not patented them in order that others may utilize their ideas. A large railroad company which has designed all of the accident prevention apparatus in use in its machine shops is willing to furnish blueprints of the devices to those who desire to install them in their plants.

In Her New Place.

"How are you getting on at your new place?" remarked a lady of a girl whom she had recommended for a situation. "Very well, thank you," answered the girl. "I am glad to hear it," said the lady. "Your employer is a very nice person, and you cannot do too much for her." "I don't mean to brag," was the innocent reply.

HEN NURSES BABY SWALLOWS

In Unmistakable Way She Began Right to Care for the Unfortunate Waifs.

A nature freak has developed in the little town of Brookline, N. H., which for five days attracted wide attention, according to the Boston Globe.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Campbell were disturbed by peculiar sounds, which seemed to come from the floor. After much exploring, Mr. Campbell traced the sound to the chimney, and opening the flue, found at the bottom a chimney swallow's nest containing four fledgling birds.

The nest had become dislodged and fallen to the base of the chimney, where the mother bird refused to go. The little birds were not more than a day old.

He carried the nest outdoors, wondering what disposition to make of it. He felt something rub against his leg, and looking down, found one of his big prize hens.

The old bird was acting strangely, and Mr. Campbell imagined that she was looking longingly at the young swallows which he carried. He walked toward the henhouse, and the big bird kept close. Finally he put the little swallows in a nest, and immediately, with a happy cluck, the old hen took possession.

For five days she cared for the baby swallows. Every day hundreds of visitors came to see the strange sight. Summer people drove miles to see the hen feed the baby birds and cuddle them under her wings.

The sixth day Mr. Campbell went to the poultry yard and found that the five days of constant attention had proved too much and the baby swallows were dead. Opinion is divided as to whether the hen overfed the fledglings or if they died from too much handling by curious visitors.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you can hear a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. Cheney and Co., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by all druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation. adv

Absinthe.

The principal poison in absinthe is a vegetable substance known as thuyon. It is found in wormwood, which is used in making absinthe. France is the largest consumer of absinthe, taking more than all the rest of Europe. The consumption has been steadily increasing, so that in 1911 over 1,000,000 gallons of absinthe were used in France.

Wonderful Set of Dishes.

What is said to be the most costly set of dishes ever made was recently shown at an exhibition in St. Petersburg. It consisted of thirty-six hand-colored plates. This set has an estimated value of $18,540, a single plate, therefore, being worth $515. It is the property of Count Orloff-Davidoff.
