THAT was a heart-rending affair—the burning of a wing of the State Insane Asylum at St. Peter, Minnesota. The loss of life is estimated at from 15 to 23. The preliminary examination of Philp, on charge of forging the Mory letter, resulted in his being bound over by Judge Davis, Saturday, to answer to the charge of criminal libel against General Garfield. The bail was fixed at five thousand dollars. In his opinion in the case Judge Davis dwelt in severe terms upon the larger share of the responsibility for the libel which attached to Abram S. Hewitt, of the Democratic National Committee. The Democratic National Committee as a whole is also held responsible by Judge Davis as an accomplice in the crime.

Last Thursday the "Presidential Railroad Excursion for Land Seekers" struck Kansas City. The arrival of so large a number of people was unexpected at the Union Depot, and as a consequence the excursionists—many of them, had to go hungry. Peanuts, at 10 cents a glass and ginger ale at 30 cents a bottle had to act the part of breakfast to many of them. The bulk of the excursionists were from Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Some of them came for permanent settlement—others to prospect. Tickets were put on sale in the East dated the 1st inst., good for forty days, at one half the rate heretofore given land buyers. The points to which the tickets were sold are Ellis, on the Union Pacific; Dodge City, on the Santa Fe; Independence, on the Lawrence and Southern; and Baxter Springs, on the Fort Scott road. It was estimated that from 6,000 to 8,000 people were at the Union depot on Thursday.

The Globe-Democrat, the chief metropolitan paper in the west, loses none of its attractions as it grows in age. Its editorials are always able, up with the spirit of the times and for stalwart Republicanism surpasses any brought to our notice. It was the Globe-Democrat which stood solidly by the gallant 506 at Chicago and the silent man who of all others, should succeed to the President's chair in March next. For what the Globe-Democrat has for Grant and his friends, it will long and affectionately be remembered.

It is reported in Washington that a very important consolidation of Western and Southern-western railroad lines is soon to take place, with Gen. Grant at or very near the head of the grand consolidation. It is surmised that the parties are the M. K. & T., Missouri Pacific, the Union Pacific, the Wash and all leased lines, and that the movement looks to the extension of the American line to the border of Mexico, to be met there by a Mexican line from the city of Mexico.

ELECTION IN THE SOLID SOUTH. It is quite probable that many people have never placed implicit confidence in the reports of Southern building, and have often believed them to be manufactured for political capital. We know of good Northern Republicans who have had doubts as to the truthfulness of them. But the "doubting Thomases" must acknowledge after reading certain extracts from Democratic papers that the evidence leans strongly to the position that no more than the truth has been told of the horrible atrocities occurring from time to time in the South, which have been made public in the North. A gentleman now resides in this city who was once a prominent Republican in the South, and who can verify a greater part of the reports concerning the oppression of Republicans both white and black in the land of "red shirts," "kn Klux," and "White Liners." We have been afforded the privilege of inspecting some of the Southern newspapers recently, and in them we find the same propensity leaning out occasionally to tell the truth about affairs in that country, as there was recently a disposition on the part of Wade Hampton and others to throw off their disguises and manifest the same old, unquenched Rebel spirit. In the light of the Waterloo defeat of Democracy in the recent campaign there is now a slight bow of promise that "Southern Solidity" (another name for political outrages and persecution) will soon be at an end, and that the day is near when the Republic of South Carolina or any other Southern State, will be accorded the privilege of walking in the light of day without carrying its life in its hand, and with the same freedom as if he were a resident of Massachusetts.

But let us give a few extracts from some of the South Carolina papers at hand which, are in league with the bulldozers, but cannot help presenting occasionally a ray of light upon the true condition of affairs. The paper from which we make our extracts, puts the following lines at the head of its article: "The election! A complete triumph! White and black voting together!" Here is the extract. The italics are ours: "The colored people were very much at sea, and their feelings were expressed by one who said that he was a Republican and called to vote a Republican ticket, but could not do so, and therefore he would as lief vote one of the tickets as the other. The Democrats would have all day, and whites and blacks would vote together. At all the boxes good order prevailed and only one incident happened to mar the harmony of the day. While the whites and blacks were voting quietly and peaceably at Cromer's Store, a party of twenty-five or thirty young men, said to be from Laurens county, charged in on horseback without any warning and attacked the negroes with clubs and pistols. One negro was killed. The whites at the polls armed, endeavoring to fire; at the groves from further harm. The negroes sang in the highest terms of the conduct of the Newberry whites, and great indignation is felt by the whites as well as blacks of that community over the occurrence, and efforts will be made to bring the guilty whites to justice. The negro who was killed, Warren Williams, was a good negro. With this exception the day passed peacefully, and will be met by the returns, the regular Democratic ticket received a large majority.

State Senator Taft, writing to the Charleston (S. C.) News, gives a description of his treatment at a Republican meeting held at the county seat of Fairfield county. Here are some of his statements: "I had not gone far before the Red-shirts, all of whom were mounted, and Democrats on foot, came rushing after me; at the same time some four or five on foot rushed at me, endeavoring to catch hold of me, which one succeeded in doing, by the collar, who was thrown off, tearing away my collar and necktie. All the time the mob kept crying, 'Shoot the damn Radical. Stand aside, let us kill the nigger.' I commenced speaking, but was interrupted by profane and obscene epithets, shaking of fists and revolvers at me, declaring that they would kill me before I got away.

Leaving the stand, eggs were thrown, and I was almost struck in the face. Mr. Means Davis joining in. Large numbers of the Red-shirted horsemen, dismounting on the road, rushed after me and reported the attempt to ride me down with their horses, and were only prevented by Col. Rison, Mr. Davis, Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Ellison. I went to the hotel which was soon surrounded by the mob, and only escaped violence through the aid of the gentlemen named, who with Major Woodward and some others remained and protected me for four hours and a half until the arrival of the train. One repeatedly got to me in the room, with the avowal 'that he wish to kill me,' and was bodily carried from the room repeatedly.

The News editorially comments on the letter in the following strain: "Mr. W. N. Taft gives in a letter to the News and Courier a rather ludicrous account of his experience at Winnsboro, Ga. He says that he was followed by a mob, and shot at him, and that he was occasionally with eggs which were not rotten. Mr. Taft expected every moment to be killed with bullets or hashed with knives, but he had his meeting, made his little speech and came away with no other injury than a few minutes' confinement in the collar. There was no purpose to slay Mr. Taft, and it was utter nonsense to give him an opportunity to pose as a martyr. He was a man who had not been in any real danger."

This feature of the work is an inalienable advantage over Appleton's American Cyclopaedia, its utterly distinctive classification. For instance I find the word "inquisition" covering eleven of its double-columned closely printed pages, while in Appleton's it would take from an hour to an hour and a half to read through. Now if one wished to know some particular thing, he would have to turn to the index, he must read the whole article through to get what he wants, stilling it out for himself at great expense of time and labor. In the present work, on the same subject in Johnson's he finds it divided into ten divisions marked with Roman numerals, and under each heading he will find a list of the Arabic numerals. All these divisions and sub-divisions have headings in capitals and italics, so that one may at a glance over these central just the part of the subject he wishes to make use of and get his information fixed in his mind all in five minutes, which would have taken an hour in Appleton's. This classification is an inalienable advantage over Appleton's. It is a well arranged library in itself, and every family in which children are growing up should have it, in order, to possess it. W. A. SIKKINS, Pastor Presbyterian Church, From Rev. Dr. S. T. Dodd, SALINA, KAN., Nov. 11, 1880.

To all whom it may concern:— This is to certify that after a close examination of the cyclopaedia publications offered to the people of America in the last twenty years, I am convinced that "Johnson's Universal Cyclopaedia" is the most comprehensive, minute, plain, accurate, and important in its treatment of all subjects, parties and persons of any class and color, and is a reliable and valuable library of reference, it is in my opinion the cheapest that can be purchased.

HUMOR AND SENSE. The Atlanta, Ga., Constitution (Dem.), treats in the following good-humored fashion the late disaster to the South.

The Constitution will be published in the same issue as ever, and will contain all the news, good and indifferent. This is one of the few precincts that Garfield didn't carry. If he will believe himself, and be nice, we will treat him kindly.

It was a severe job, but we will endeavor to save the pieces. We have returned the parts from our well-known rooster and laid him away in the pi-box. Those who desire to view the remains should apply to the following described parties.

It is useless to fight a prize bull with a blue ribbon tied to his tail. We simply ask that General Garfield should be treated as he is treated. It is better to deal gently with the erring than to deal harshly with the right.
