THE SONG OF THE "GOLDEN HELLEN."

Who wins his love shall keep her, Who loses her shall grieve, And summy still promises her, And summy still promises her.

Oh, happy he who gains her, Oh, happy he who gains her, Oh, happy he who gains her, Oh, happy he who gains her.

Oh, happy he who gains her, Oh, happy he who gains her, Oh, happy he who gains her, Oh, happy he who gains her.

BOY INSTEAD OF A GIRL.

A NEW BRUNSWICK WOMAN SOUNDS THE SERVANT QUESTION.

The Little Negro Came on Trial for a Week, but He Liked the Place So Well He Has Adopted the Family—He Does Household Work as Well as a Girl.

"I think," said Mrs. Henry Archibald, as she settled herself in one of the comfortable seats in the parlor of the parish building to wait for the opening of the meeting of the New Brunswick Married Women's guild, "I have got right down to the bottom of the bird girl question."

"Oh, dear, I wish I could say as much," responded Mrs. Dorothy, with a sigh. "Have you secured that perfect jewel of a girl we have been looking for all our lives?"

"No, I have not. I have got right down to the bottom of the bird girl question."

"None at all. I've got a boy—a little odd kind of boy."

"Good gracious! Why, of what earthly use to you is a little colored boy? What can he do?"

"Well, that is pretty hard to say. I have only had him three days, and during that time I find that he can do anything I wish to have done."

"What! he can do anything? I don't believe that. I don't want him to do that. But, do you know, I rather like the 'little odd' as my husband calls him. He is a new sensation and keeps me all alive."

"Where did you get him?"

"The other morning when Mr. Archibald was going out I said to him, 'Archibald, I wish to have a boy—a little odd kind of boy.'"

"I have nothing for you. Get away from here. I don't want you."

"I don't want you, then."

"Well, clear out, then."

"Clear out, then!"

"Now, you see, I wish to have a boy—a little odd kind of boy."

"I don't want you. Get away from here. I don't want you."

"I don't want you, then."

THE DEPARTURE.

Oh, when a train moves by the feet, To see the faces pass and pass away, Who who may tell the heart's regretful sigh, Or one dear face that, when we are far, The others all seem with us to be, By features, smiles and words, which, having been seen, are never more to see.
