

THE MURDER. Full Particulars of the Airtel. Joseph Redick the Supposed Assassin. The Murdered Man and the Murderer Old Schoolmates. The Flight, Pursuit and Capture. The Coroner's Inquest and Verdict of the Jury.

PLEASANT RIVER LEAV. CO., NOV. 14. I notice in your issue of Sunday morning an account of the murder and robbery perpetrated near here on Saturday evening, and as the facts, in the excitement and hurry of the moment, could not be given to you in an imperfect form, and consequently containing many errors, I have concluded to refer to the particulars as they have been fully developed.

Nothing in the annals of crime can exceed in atrocity the murder and robbery of John T. Lykins, by Joe Redick, near this place, (which is in Leavenworth County) on Saturday evening last. The particulars are as follows: The victim was a single man, about twenty-five years of age, and resided with his aged parents, in Platte County, Mo., and about five miles from Weston. Being indebted to Mr. Henry T. Koch, a farmer residing near this place, in a small sum of money, he proceeded to the bank in Weston, and drew from his deposit the sum of one hundred dollars, and started for this side of the river. Joe Redick, a rather rough character, who was old standing by the name of 'Redick', seemed to make it a point to be in the bank when the young man drew the money, and to follow him out. He seemed to make it a point to follow the man himself in this direction, on that day. Under these circumstances the two started, on horseback, towards the ferry, the father of Mr. Lykins, who was old standing by the name of 'Redick', was present, overborne by the weight of premeditation which forced itself upon his mind concerning the coming evil, remarking to Mr. Lykins, 'How vividly we sometimes see calamities approaching, and through an awful and terrible scene, that we are certain in correctly interpreting the mystic meaning of drifting circumstances, our faculties are locked up and human nature is rendered almost insensible when they do come upon us so little we are disappointed!'

Young Lykins paid his companion's fare across the river and asked him as he did so how he expected to get back. To which Redick replied that he expected to collect some money before he went back. What a terrible collection! The parties were viewed by the citizens along the shore. Mr. T. J. Hine, near the bridge, on the Military road, in Salt Creek Valley; by Mr. Geo. W. Mitchell, in the bridge, and Mr. Herley's folks, at the Eight Home place. It seems that the alleged murderer frequently stopped men along the road to collect money, and one man produced a rope evidently for the purpose, and swinging it in front of a window of the room where Redick was under arrest, 'What damn you, this is what you will be strong on!' The credit of allaying this excitement is accorded to Mr. Lykins, father of the murdered man, who was among the first to reach the scene, and his influence against violence. He told them that if the man was lynched the public would point to him as one of the principal ringleaders, and he would be present; that he was a law-abiding citizen and did not wish to have the crime of mobbing charged upon him, and he hoped they would try to order that the officers of the law might do their duty unmolested. Other right minded men also expressed their sympathy against violence, and at last the crowd agreed that the Kansas officers should be called to take their prisoner, provided a number of citizens of Platte County, who accompanied them to Leavenworth. Sheriff Palmer replied that all the people in Missouri could come to Leavenworth if they desired, but the road was public and didn't know of anything to prevent the people of one State traveling in another, if they were not inclined to do so. According to their former report, they were coming over with Redick in a close black, hand-painted, and followed by a motly and rather formidable crowd, in which faint suspicion still lurked that our officers were on $25,000 business.

This ended the excitement which created the mob of lynching, and in the afternoon, and which very few people doubted. Officers Palmer and Malone are entitled to credit for their judicious behavior. A slight restriction on their freedom of movement, have worked serious consequences. The prisoner persistently denied all knowledge of the murder, and persistently denied all knowledge of the murder, and persistently denied all knowledge of the murder. Late in the evening the young man's father arrived to take his body home. His grief was unfeigned, and he was reported to be in the city. It is related that when the messenger sent to the late residence of the deceased approached with the sad tidings, the old gentleman said: 'I don't tell me news. Is not my son murdered?'

THE ALLEGED MURDERER CAPTURED. The party who started in pursuit of Redick consisted of Geo. W. Mitchell, Henry Hines, a young man named also Joseph Redick, and some others. They followed as rapidly as possible, and could hear of the firing as they reached Salt Creek bridge. Here they ceased their inquiries, or lost track of him. The character of the man was, as reported, placed under strict scrutiny at once, as was also the Leavenworth ferry. It now appears that Redick rode into Wood's livery stable, in Leavenworth, on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, his horse covered with foam, where he engaged a stall for the night. He seems to have taken his own lodging at the place, and in the morning he was taken to the city, after drinking and making merry with some companions about town for some time. It is reported that he was at Wood's stable where the party pursuing party came up, and that he had authority to ask questions concerning the crime, in the evening of the day. On Sunday morning he was down town, but the man Col. Jenison had put on a track did not happen to find him. He had attracted the attention of the night before, and as soon as that gentleman heard of the murder, his suspicions were quickened.

About 1 o'clock a. m. he approached the ferry. A portion of the pursuing party recognized him, and with them went upon the ferry. A large number of men sought to avert his suspicions, and quietly followed him to Weston. Here he took the livery stable and gave up his horse, which he had hired, whereupon Mr. Henry Hine stepped up and said to him, 'You are my man!' A search was immediately commenced. Nothing being found in his pockets, some one began to pull off his boot. He managed to make it appear that the lining was ripped loose in one and proposed to run his hand down the leg to obtain the dirt. They were hid where it was seen to be closed. Of course, nothing was found in the boot. He was then requested to open his hand, which he refused to do. To men, by their own strength, then forced him to do so, and it was found to contain $100. Up to this time he had been having a good time. The bills were taken to the banker and he identified as the same which were paid to Lykins on Saturday morning. One was a $100 bill. It was ascertained that Lykin had received $400. Redick having spent $16, making the whole amount taken $386. The prisoner was left in the hands of the authorities, and the popular indignation was beginning to rise as rapidly as the news could spread.

Nothing being found in his pockets, some one began to pull off his boot. He managed to make it appear that the lining was ripped loose in one and proposed to run his hand down the leg to obtain the dirt. They were hid where it was seen to be closed. Of course, nothing was found in the boot. He was then requested to open his hand, which he refused to do. To men, by their own strength, then forced him to do so, and it was found to contain $100. Up to this time he had been having a good time. The bills were taken to the banker and he identified as the same which were paid to Lykins on Saturday morning. One was a $100 bill. It was ascertained that Lykin had received $400. Redick having spent $16, making the whole amount taken $386. The prisoner was left in the hands of the authorities, and the popular indignation was beginning to rise as rapidly as the news could spread.

Nothing being found in his pockets, some one began to pull off his boot. He managed to make it appear that the lining was ripped loose in one and proposed to run his hand down the leg to obtain the dirt. They were hid where it was seen to be closed. Of course, nothing was found in the boot. He was then requested to open his hand, which he refused to do. To men, by their own strength, then forced him to do so, and it was found to contain $100. Up to this time he had been having a good time. The bills were taken to the banker and he identified as the same which were paid to Lykins on Saturday morning. One was a $100 bill. It was ascertained that Lykin had received $400. Redick having spent $16, making the whole amount taken $386. The prisoner was left in the hands of the authorities, and the popular indignation was beginning to rise as rapidly as the news could spread.

Nothing being found in his pockets, some one began to pull off his boot. He managed to make it appear that the lining was ripped loose in one and proposed to run his hand down the leg to obtain the dirt. They were hid where it was seen to be closed. Of course, nothing was found in the boot. He was then requested to open his hand, which he refused to do. To men, by their own strength, then forced him to do so, and it was found to contain $100. Up to this time he had been having a good time. The bills were taken to the banker and he identified as the same which were paid to Lykins on Saturday morning. One was a $100 bill. It was ascertained that Lykin had received $400. Redick having spent $16, making the whole amount taken $386. The prisoner was left in the hands of the authorities, and the popular indignation was beginning to rise as rapidly as the news could spread.

THE MURDERER. He is Brought Here and Lodged in Jail. Narrow Escape from Lynching at Weston. A rumor was generally current in the city, Tuesday morning, that Redick, the murderer of Lykins, had been hung by a mob at Weston, on the night previous. Some surprise was therefore created, about noon, by the arrival of Deputy Sheriff Robt. Palmer, and officer Matt. Malone, with the prisoner safe and unharmed.

Mr. Palmer received Redick from the hands of the authorities there on Monday afternoon, and at once proceeded to the ferry. There was great excitement in the town, which was augmented by the presence of an unusual number of persons from the surrounding county, who, mostly to see the prisoner was plainly to be seen. As the officers were coming away, a report was circulated to the effect that Palmer and Malone had been paid $25,000, on condition that they would permit Redick to escape, after crossing into Kansas. As is usual in such cases, nine-tenths of the people gathered in the vicinity believed the report, so men under excitement are too apt to do, and the officers were pursued and overtaken at the ferry by a number of men, armed and clamorous, who demanded the delivery of the prisoner into their hands. This Palmer peremptorily refused to do, but said that if they insisted upon his giving Redick up, he would hand him back and give him over to the proper authorities in town; he would never deliver his prisoner to a crowd of irresponsible persons. They persisted, and he requested the man back to Weston, and returned him to the hands of the authorities.

The excitement throughout the town continued, and became so intense that a number of the boldest among the mob had decided to lynch the prisoner. This was about 11 o'clock at night. The officers had been paid $25,000, and asked Sheriff Palmer to take the prisoner and run him out of the county. This Palmer refused to do. He told them he could not do that, and that he would not attempt it now, while the excitement reigned. It almost certainly would result in the appearance of the murderer would be the signal of his speedy death. Mr. Palmer told them, however, that he would meet them at any point on the border of the county, and at any hour they might name, and there and there receive the prisoner. By this time cries of 'hang him', 'hang him' began to be heard, and one man produced a rope evidently intended for the purpose, and swinging it in front of a window of the room where Redick was under arrest, 'What damn you, this is what you will be strong on!' The credit of allaying this excitement is accorded to Mr. Lykins, father of the murdered man, who was among the first to reach the scene, and his influence against violence. He told them that if the man was lynched the public would point to him as one of the principal ringleaders, and he would be present; that he was a law-abiding citizen and did not wish to have the crime of mobbing charged upon him, and he hoped they would try to order that the officers of the law might do their duty unmolested. Other right minded men also expressed their sympathy against violence, and at last the crowd agreed that the Kansas officers should be called to take their prisoner, provided a number of citizens of Platte County, who accompanied them to Leavenworth. Sheriff Palmer replied that all the people in Missouri could come to Leavenworth if they desired, but the road was public and didn't know of anything to prevent the people of one State traveling in another, if they were not inclined to do so. According to their former report, they were coming over with Redick in a close black, hand-painted, and followed by a motly and rather formidable crowd, in which faint suspicion still lurked that our officers were on $25,000 business.

This ended the excitement which created the mob of lynching, and in the afternoon, and which very few people doubted. Officers Palmer and Malone are entitled to credit for their judicious behavior. A slight restriction on their freedom of movement, have worked serious consequences. The prisoner persistently denied all knowledge of the murder, and persistently denied all knowledge of the murder, and persistently denied all knowledge of the murder. Late in the evening the young man's father arrived to take his body home. His grief was unfeigned, and he was reported to be in the city. It is related that when the messenger sent to the late residence of the deceased approached with the sad tidings, the old gentleman said: 'I don't tell me news. Is not my son murdered?'

THE ALLEGED MURDERER CAPTURED. The party who started in pursuit of Redick consisted of Geo. W. Mitchell, Henry Hines, a young man named also Joseph Redick, and some others. They followed as rapidly as possible, and could hear of the firing as they reached Salt Creek bridge. Here they ceased their inquiries, or lost track of him. The character of the man was, as reported, placed under strict scrutiny at once, as was also the Leavenworth ferry. It now appears that Redick rode into Wood's livery stable, in Leavenworth, on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, his horse covered with foam, where he engaged a stall for the night. He seems to have taken his own lodging at the place, and in the morning he was taken to the city, after drinking and making merry with some companions about town for some time. It is reported that he was at Wood's stable where the party pursuing party came up, and that he had authority to ask questions concerning the crime, in the evening of the day. On Sunday morning he was down town, but the man Col. Jenison had put on a track did not happen to find him. He had attracted the attention of the night before, and as soon as that gentleman heard of the murder, his suspicions were quickened.

About 1 o'clock a. m. he approached the ferry. A portion of the pursuing party recognized him, and with them went upon the ferry. A large number of men sought to avert his suspicions, and quietly followed him to Weston. Here he took the livery stable and gave up his horse, which he had hired, whereupon Mr. Henry Hine stepped up and said to him, 'You are my man!' A search was immediately commenced. Nothing being found in his pockets, some one began to pull off his boot. He managed to make it appear that the lining was ripped loose in one and proposed to run his hand down the leg to obtain the dirt. They were hid where it was seen to be closed. Of course, nothing was found in the boot. He was then requested to open his hand, which he refused to do. To men, by their own strength, then forced him to do so, and it was found to contain $100. Up to this time he had been having a good time. The bills were taken to the banker and he identified as the same which were paid to Lykins on Saturday morning. One was a $100 bill. It was ascertained that Lykin had received $400. Redick having spent $16, making the whole amount taken $386. The prisoner was left in the hands of the authorities, and the popular indignation was beginning to rise as rapidly as the news could spread.

Nothing being found in his pockets, some one began to pull off his boot. He managed to make it appear that the lining was ripped loose in one and proposed to run his hand down the leg to obtain the dirt. They were hid where it was seen to be closed. Of course, nothing was found in the boot. He was then requested to open his hand, which he refused to do. To men, by their own strength, then forced him to do so, and it was found to contain $100. Up to this time he had been having a good time. The bills were taken to the banker and he identified as the same which were paid to Lykins on Saturday morning. One was a $100 bill. It was ascertained that Lykin had received $400. Redick having spent $16, making the whole amount taken $386. The prisoner was left in the hands of the authorities, and the popular indignation was beginning to rise as rapidly as the news could spread.

Nothing being found in his pockets, some one began to pull off his boot. He managed to make it appear that the lining was ripped loose in one and proposed to run his hand down the leg to obtain the dirt. They were hid where it was seen to be closed. Of course, nothing was found in the boot. He was then requested to open his hand, which he refused to do. To men, by their own strength, then forced him to do so, and it was found to contain $100. Up to this time he had been having a good time. The bills were taken to the banker and he identified as the same which were paid to Lykins on Saturday morning. One was a $100 bill. It was ascertained that Lykin had received $400. Redick having spent $16, making the whole amount taken $386. The prisoner was left in the hands of the authorities, and the popular indignation was beginning to rise as rapidly as the news could spread.

Nothing being found in his pockets, some one began to pull off his boot. He managed to make it appear that the lining was ripped loose in one and proposed to run his hand down the leg to obtain the dirt. They were hid where it was seen to be closed. Of course, nothing was found in the boot. He was then requested to open his hand, which he refused to do. To men, by their own strength, then forced him to do so, and it was found to contain $100. Up to this time he had been having a good time. The bills were taken to the banker and he identified as the same which were paid to Lykins on Saturday morning. One was a $100 bill. It was ascertained that Lykin had received $400. Redick having spent $16, making the whole amount taken $386. The prisoner was left in the hands of the authorities, and the popular indignation was beginning to rise as rapidly as the news could spread.

Nothing being found in his pockets, some one began to pull off his boot. He managed to make it appear that the lining was ripped loose in one and proposed to run his hand down the leg to obtain the dirt. They were hid where it was seen to be closed. Of course, nothing was found in the boot. He was then requested to open his hand, which he refused to do. To men, by their own strength, then forced him to do so, and it was found to contain $100. Up to this time he had been having a good time. The bills were taken to the banker and he identified as the same which were paid to Lykins on Saturday morning. One was a $100 bill. It was ascertained that Lykin had received $400. Redick having spent $16, making the whole amount taken $386. The prisoner was left in the hands of the authorities, and the popular indignation was beginning to rise as rapidly as the news could spread.

Murphy road, in Reno Township, was taken up four days ago. It was a fine road, and was a great improvement to the community. The following resolutions were adopted: Resolved, That $300 be appropriated to build a culvert on the Murphy road, in Reno Township, and that the same be under the supervision of the Board of Public Works, and that the same be done and money to be expended under the supervision of said Trustee.

Resolved, That the County Clerk be and he is hereby authorized and instructed to advertise for proposals for building a bridge on Walnut creek on the State road from Adickson to Topogawick in Leavenworth Township, in accordance with plans and specifications to be furnished by D. N. Barnes, such plans to be for both wood and iron.

Resolved, That the County Clerk be and he is hereby authorized and instructed to advertise for proposals for building a bridge, with approaches across Rock creek in High Prairie Township, near J. J. Salsbury's residence, in accordance with specifications of D. N. Barnes hereto annexed. The petition of M. J. Parrott and others asking an appropriation to repair hull on Leavenworth road, in High Prairie Township was granted, and the sum of $150 appropriated for said purpose, to be expended under the directions of D. N. Barnes.

The petition of John T. McWhitt, for an appropriation of $300 for the old law office to be used in High Prairie Township, was granted. Board adjourned till the first Monday in December, 1920.

THE MURDERER. He is Brought Here and Lodged in Jail. Narrow Escape from Lynching at Weston. A rumor was generally current in the city, Tuesday morning, that Redick, the murderer of Lykins, had been hung by a mob at Weston, on the night previous. Some surprise was therefore created, about noon, by the arrival of Deputy Sheriff Robt. Palmer, and officer Matt. Malone, with the prisoner safe and unharmed.

Mr. Palmer received Redick from the hands of the authorities there on Monday afternoon, and at once proceeded to the ferry. There was great excitement in the town, which was augmented by the presence of an unusual number of persons from the surrounding county, who, mostly to see the prisoner was plainly to be seen. As the officers were coming away, a report was circulated to the effect that Palmer and Malone had been paid $25,000, on condition that they would permit Redick to escape, after crossing into Kansas. As is usual in such cases, nine-tenths of the people gathered in the vicinity believed the report, so men under excitement are too apt to do, and the officers were pursued and overtaken at the ferry by a number of men, armed and clamorous, who demanded the delivery of the prisoner into their hands. This Palmer peremptorily refused to do, but said that if they insisted upon his giving Redick up, he would hand him back and give him over to the proper authorities in town; he would never deliver his prisoner to a crowd of irresponsible persons. They persisted, and he requested the man back to Weston, and returned him to the hands of the authorities.

The excitement throughout the town continued, and became so intense that a number of the boldest among the mob had decided to lynch the prisoner. This was about 11 o'clock at night. The officers had been paid $25,000, and asked Sheriff Palmer to take the prisoner and run him out of the county. This Palmer refused to do. He told them he could not do that, and that he would not attempt it now, while the excitement reigned. It almost certainly would result in the appearance of the murderer would be the signal of his speedy death. Mr. Palmer told them, however, that he would meet them at any point on the border of the county, and at any hour they might name, and there and there receive the prisoner. By this time cries of 'hang him', 'hang him' began to be heard, and one man produced a rope evidently intended for the purpose, and swinging it in front of a window of the room where Redick was under arrest, 'What damn you, this is what you will be strong on!' The credit of allaying this excitement is accorded to Mr. Lykins, father of the murdered man, who was among the first to reach the scene, and his influence against violence. He told them that if the man was lynched the public would point to him as one of the principal ringleaders, and he would be present; that he was a law-abiding citizen and did not wish to have the crime of mobbing charged upon him, and he hoped they would try to order that the officers of the law might do their duty unmolested. Other right minded men also expressed their sympathy against violence, and at last the crowd agreed that the Kansas officers should be called to take their prisoner, provided a number of citizens of Platte County, who accompanied them to Leavenworth. Sheriff Palmer replied that all the people in Missouri could come to Leavenworth if they desired, but the road was public and didn't know of anything to prevent the people of one State traveling in another, if they were not inclined to do so. According to their former report, they were coming over with Redick in a close black, hand-painted, and followed by a motly and rather formidable crowd, in which faint suspicion still lurked that our officers were on $25,000 business.

This ended the excitement which created the mob of lynching, and in the afternoon, and which very few people doubted. Officers Palmer and Malone are entitled to credit for their judicious behavior. A slight restriction on their freedom of movement, have worked serious consequences. The prisoner persistently denied all knowledge of the murder, and persistently denied all knowledge of the murder, and persistently denied all knowledge of the murder. Late in the evening the young man's father arrived to take his body home. His grief was unfeigned, and he was reported to be in the city. It is related that when the messenger sent to the late residence of the deceased approached with the sad tidings, the old gentleman said: 'I don't tell me news. Is not my son murdered?'

THE ALLEGED MURDERER CAPTURED. The party who started in pursuit of Redick consisted of Geo. W. Mitchell, Henry Hines, a young man named also Joseph Redick, and some others. They followed as rapidly as possible, and could hear of the firing as they reached Salt Creek bridge. Here they ceased their inquiries, or lost track of him. The character of the man was, as reported, placed under strict scrutiny at once, as was also the Leavenworth ferry. It now appears that Redick rode into Wood's livery stable, in Leavenworth, on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, his horse covered with foam, where he engaged a stall for the night. He seems to have taken his own lodging at the place, and in the morning he was taken to the city, after drinking and making merry with some companions about town for some time. It is reported that he was at Wood's stable where the party pursuing party came up, and that he had authority to ask questions concerning the crime, in the evening of the day. On Sunday morning he was down town, but the man Col. Jenison had put on a track did not happen to find him. He had attracted the attention of the night before, and as soon as that gentleman heard of the murder, his suspicions were quickened.

About 1 o'clock a. m. he approached the ferry. A portion of the pursuing party recognized him, and with them went upon the ferry. A large number of men sought to avert his suspicions, and quietly followed him to Weston. Here he took the livery stable and gave up his horse, which he had hired, whereupon Mr. Henry Hine stepped up and said to him, 'You are my man!' A search was immediately commenced. Nothing being found in his pockets, some one began to pull off his boot. He managed to make it appear that the lining was ripped loose in one and proposed to run his hand down the leg to obtain the dirt. They were hid where it was seen to be closed. Of course, nothing was found in the boot. He was then requested to open his hand, which he refused to do. To men, by their own strength, then forced him to do so, and it was found to contain $100. Up to this time he had been having a good time. The bills were taken to the banker and he identified as the same which were paid to Lykins on Saturday morning. One was a $100 bill. It was ascertained that Lykin had received $400. Redick having spent $16, making the whole amount taken $386. The prisoner was left in the hands of the authorities, and the popular indignation was beginning to rise as rapidly as the news could spread.

MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH. STOCK MARKET. NEW YORK, Nov. 17. Money more active at 5 1/2 on call. There are some shipments of currency to the West. On the contrary, the Cincinnati banks are showing signs to accumulate here to their credit, and they are sending money to their New York correspondents.

NEW YORK MARKET. NEW YORK, Nov. 17. FLOUR—quiet; super 1 1/2 @ 1.05; extra 1 1/2 @ 1.00; extra 1 1/2 @ 95; extra 1 1/2 @ 90; extra 1 1/2 @ 85; extra 1 1/2 @ 80; extra 1 1/2 @ 75; extra 1 1/2 @ 70; extra 1 1/2 @ 65; extra 1 1/2 @ 60; extra 1 1/2 @ 55; extra 1 1/2 @ 50; extra 1 1/2 @ 45; extra 1 1/2 @ 40; extra 1 1/2 @ 35; extra 1 1/2 @ 30; extra 1 1/2 @ 25; extra 1 1/2 @ 20; extra 1 1/2 @ 15; extra 1 1/2 @ 10; extra 1 1/2 @ 5; extra 1 1/2 @ 0.

NEW YORK MARKET. NEW YORK, Nov. 17. WHEAT—quiet; No. 1 1/2 @ 1.05; No. 2 1/2 @ 1.00; No. 3 1/2 @ 95; No. 4 1/2 @ 90; No. 5 1/2 @ 85; No. 6 1/2 @ 80; No. 7 1/2 @ 75; No. 8 1/2 @ 70; No. 9 1/2 @ 65; No. 10 1/2 @ 60; No. 11 1/2 @ 55; No. 12 1/2 @ 50; No. 13 1/2 @ 45; No. 14 1/2 @ 40; No. 15 1/2 @ 35; No. 16 1/2 @ 30; No. 17 1/2 @ 25; No. 18 1/2 @ 20; No. 19 1/2 @ 15; No. 20 1/2 @ 10; No. 21 1/2 @ 5; No. 22 1/2 @ 0.

NEW YORK MARKET. NEW YORK, Nov. 17. CORN—quiet; No. 1 1/2 @ 1.05; No. 2 1/2 @ 1.00; No. 3 1/2 @ 95; No. 4 1/2 @ 90; No. 5 1/2 @ 85; No. 6 1/2 @ 80; No. 7 1/2 @ 75; No. 8 1/2 @ 70; No. 9 1/2 @ 65; No. 10 1/2 @ 60; No. 11 1/2 @ 55; No. 12 1/2 @ 50; No. 13 1/2 @ 45; No. 14 1/2 @ 40; No. 15 1/2 @ 35; No. 16 1/2 @ 30; No. 17 1/2 @ 25; No. 18 1/2 @ 20; No. 19 1/2 @ 15; No. 20 1/2 @ 10; No. 21 1/2 @ 5; No. 22 1/2 @ 0.

NEW YORK MARKET. NEW YORK, Nov. 17. RICE—quiet; No. 1 1/2 @ 1.05; No. 2 1/2 @ 1.00; No. 3 1/2 @ 95; No. 4 1/2 @ 90; No. 5 1/2 @ 85; No. 6 1/2 @ 80; No. 7 1/2 @ 75; No. 8 1/2 @ 70; No. 9 1/2 @ 65; No. 10 1/2 @ 60; No. 11 1/2 @ 55; No. 12 1/2 @ 50; No. 13 1/2 @ 45; No. 14 1/2 @ 40; No. 15 1/2 @ 35; No. 16 1/2 @ 30; No. 17 1/2 @ 25; No. 18 1/2 @ 20; No. 19 1/2 @ 15; No. 20 1/2 @ 10; No. 21 1/2 @ 5; No. 22 1/2 @ 0.

NEW YORK MARKET. NEW YORK, Nov. 17. SUGAR—quiet; No. 1 1/2 @ 1.05; No. 2 1/2 @ 1.00; No. 3 1/2 @ 95; No. 4 1/2 @ 90; No. 5 1/2 @ 85; No. 6 1/2 @ 80; No. 7 1/2 @ 75; No. 8 1/2 @ 70; No. 9 1/2 @ 65; No. 10 1/2 @ 60; No. 11 1/2 @ 55; No. 12 1/2 @ 50; No. 13 1/2 @ 45; No. 14 1/2 @ 40; No. 15 1/2 @ 35; No. 16 1/2 @ 30; No. 17 1/2 @ 25; No. 18 1/2 @ 20; No. 19 1/2 @ 15; No. 20 1/2 @ 10; No. 21 1/2 @ 5; No. 22 1/2 @ 0.

NEW YORK MARKET. NEW YORK, Nov. 17. COFFEE—quiet; No. 1 1/2 @ 1.05; No. 2 1/2 @ 1.00; No. 3 1/2 @ 95; No. 4 1/2 @ 90; No. 5 1/2 @ 85; No. 6 1/2 @ 80; No. 7 1/2 @ 75; No. 8 1/2 @ 70; No. 9 1/2 @ 65; No. 10 1/2 @ 60; No. 11 1/2 @ 55; No. 12 1/2 @ 50; No. 13 1/2 @ 45; No. 14 1/2 @ 40; No. 15 1/2 @ 35; No. 16 1/2 @ 30; No. 17 1/2 @ 25; No. 18 1/2 @ 20; No. 19 1/2 @ 15; No. 20 1/2 @ 10; No. 21 1/2 @ 5; No. 22 1/2 @ 0.

NEW YORK MARKET. NEW YORK, Nov. 17. TEA—quiet; No. 1 1/2 @ 1.05; No. 2 1/2 @ 1.00; No. 3 1/2 @ 95; No. 4 1/2 @ 90; No. 5 1/2 @ 85; No. 6 1/2 @ 80; No. 7 1/2 @ 75; No. 8 1/2 @ 70; No. 9 1/2 @ 65; No. 10 1/2 @ 60; No. 11 1/2 @ 55; No. 12 1/2 @ 50; No. 13 1/2 @ 45; No. 14 1/2 @ 40; No. 15 1/2 @ 35; No. 16 1/2 @ 30; No. 17 1/2 @ 25; No. 18 1/2 @ 20; No. 19 1/2 @ 15; No. 20 1/2 @ 10; No. 21 1/2 @ 5; No. 22 1/2 @ 0.

NEW YORK MARKET. NEW YORK, Nov. 17. SPICES—quiet; No. 1 1/2 @ 1.05; No. 2 1/2 @ 1.00; No. 3 1/2 @ 95; No. 4 1/2 @ 90; No. 5 1/2 @ 85; No. 6 1/2 @ 80; No. 7 1/2 @ 75; No. 8 1/2 @ 70; No. 9 1/2 @ 65; No. 10 1/2 @ 60; No. 11 1/2 @ 55; No. 12 1/2 @ 50; No. 13 1/2 @ 45; No. 14 1/2 @ 40; No. 15 1/2 @ 35; No. 16 1/2 @ 30; No. 17 1/2 @ 25; No. 18 1/2 @ 20; No. 19 1/2 @ 15; No. 20 1/2 @ 10; No. 21 1/2 @ 5; No. 22 1/2 @ 0.

NEW YORK MARKET. NEW YORK, Nov. 17. OILS—quiet; No. 1 1/2 @ 1.05; No. 2 1/2 @ 1.00; No. 3 1/2 @ 95; No.