FORAKER SERVICES

Here For Foraker. At Churches Sunday.

Wants a Republican Legislature Elected.

Interesting Topics to be Discussed.

No Interest in Balance of Ticket.

He Addressed Large Crowd in Assembly Hall.

Good Words For Toledo Jones—Well Sighed.

A South African Missionary Will Talk Sunday Afternoon.

Senator J. B. Foraker was given an enthusiastic reception by his republican friends Friday afternoon and evening. He arrived at 4:15 and was escorted from Union station to Buchtel hotel by 50 citizens. A number of friends called on Mr. Foraker at the hotel.

The speaker was escorted to Assembly hall by members of the Young Men's Republican club and others. Assembly hall was well filled.

Henry Perkins was chairman and almost 100 old soldiers were on the stage as vice presidents. Upon reaching the stage members of the executive committee handed small flags to the soldiers. They were to wave the flags frequently and they did. A band was present; so was a vocal quartette.

In all-generosity it must be said that the performance was staged almost as perfectly as though a theatrical manager had it in charge.

"We didn't pull down the flag in the Sixties, and we'll not do it now," said Chairman Perkins, turning to address the concluding part of the sentence to the soldiers—"Will we, boys?"

"No! no!" was the chorus, and the maze of shaken flags produced a superb effect, while at a given cue the quartette arose and sang, "Rally 'Round the Flag Boys." The audience was much pleased with this bit of extravaganza, and applauded vigorously.

Senator Foraker, in beginning his address, paid Akron citizens a fine compliment and thanked all for the generous reception he was accorded.

It was very evident that he was not here as much in the interests of Candidate Nash as he was for those of J. B. Foraker. The able statesman wants re-election to the Senate, and so of late he has been traveling about the state urging the election of all the Republican candidates for the Legislature. This is a necessity to effective government, he cited examples where legislative endorsement was lacking, and chief executives bereft of power—especially Cleveland in his first administration and McKinley's first years of reign with a Democratic senate.

He also talked on prosperity and the outlook of the campaign for 1900. To bring about Mr. McKinley's re-election Mr. Nash must be elected, he said.

"And then Jones—well Jones is a big-hearted man—I believe that he is sincere, but he has no more chance of winning than he has of jumping over the moon—the fight is between Nash and McLean. (Vigorous applause for Jones.)

"I've got just about as much interest in this election as the men who are shouting for Jones. I am merely here as a citizen to talk with you.

"I don't want to see John R. McLean elected, because he's a Democrat and I am a Republican."

Mr. Foraker did not abuse the Democratic candidate in the measure it was hoped he might. The Senator has a personality of his own; he was here for his own interest, and the proud spirit has not bended in abjection to the Hanna rule. Oh, no! Foraker was here for Foraker, to exploit the necessity of electing every Republican candidate for the office of Legislator.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Nov. 5.—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.
Topic.—A new name.—Gen. xxxiii, 24-26; Rev. ii, 17.

Among the oriental nations great importance is attached to names. The Jews, for instance, in naming children selected the names for important reasons, because of some incident connected with the birth of the child or in an attempt to describe the character of the child. It is also customary to mark one's entrance into a new relation by a new name, the acceptance of the name signifying the acceptance of the new sovereignty and the obligations contained therein. It is easy to see, therefore, why God would signalize the entrance of His people into new relations with Him by giving them a new name, as He did to Abram, to Sarai, to Jacob and to others, and it is also easy to see the appropriateness of designating the new relation to God in heaven by the giving of a new name.

A new name given by God signifies that we have come into a new relation with God. It signifies that we have passed through a crisis in life, have had some new religious experience as a result of which we have come closer to God, have got a better conception of God and have consecrated ourselves anew to God. Jacob's new name had such significance. At Jabok, where he wrestled with the angel until he received the blessing, his name was changed from Jacob (supplanter) to Israel (prince of God). At Jabok Jacob had a new experience—he passed through a crisis in his life, he got a new and exalted conception of God and undoubtedly came into a new relation of consecration to God. He was entirely changed by the power of God. Jacob stood for his old life and character and Israel for his new. God gives to all His people at such times a new name. It is His own name. When our lives are characterized by ungodliness, but in relation to God, God's name is stamped upon us. We are God's people, God's children, and our highest aim should be to keep the new name we hear ourselves being faithful to the new relation.

The heavenly new name spoken of in Revelation has largely the same significance as the earthly new name. It is the name which we are to have, and it also must be in some way the name of God. "To him that overcometh" I will write upon him the name of my God" (Rev. iii, 12). Just what it signifies, we do not know, but what is more important here, how the new name may be obtained, we do know. It is better for us to know how to get the new name than to know so much about it. The all important question in this life is, How may we obtain the new name? And this is the way—we must overcome in Christ's name. "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth, saving he that receiveth it." We overcome self, the world and sin. God will send us upon the hidden manna and spiritual blessings impossible of attainment on earth. He will give us the white stone of acquittal on which will be inscribed the new name. Let us go forth in the power and strength of God in Christ to overcome, that we may be assured that we will experience this rich heavenly blessing.

Bible Readings.—Gen. xvii, 1-6; xxxv, 10; Ex. xxxiii, 20-23; Neh. x, 1-2; Ps. xxiii, 1; Eccl. vii, 1; Luke x, 18-20; Acts xi, 25, 26; xiii, 9; Phil. iv, 1-8; Rev. iii, 12; xii, 11, 12.

A Menace to Godliness.

Far more dangerous to true godliness is that spirit among Christians which loves to mingle with the world and conform itself to it. And this is the great temptation of Christians today. They allow themselves to be lost in the world's pleasures and concerns and have no time for secret meditation. Caught up by the whirl of this giddy life, they have no desire for communion with God and do not know the value of solitude. They find no time to "think on things" that are "lovely" and of "good report." They have turned their ears to the noises of this world and are deaf to the message of the "still small voice."—Lutheran.

With a True Light.

We are indebted to the faithful souls who have shone with such a true light amid the darkness, gloom and conflicts of the past, and we love to contemplate their lives and honor their memories—many in our own church—and our hearts are encouraged and inspired to be to steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the love and grace and walking in the beautiful light of God.—American Friend.

God's Furnace.

Sweetness of character and life comes out of sanctified trial. Testing softens under divine grace. God's furnace is intended to refine and purify. It is not for us to repine under His chastening and molding operations. He knows best how to rub off the rough angles, to sweeten the temper, to subdue the wayward spirit and to bring into meekness for heaven.—Presbyterian.

Unanswered Prayers.

Many of our prayers are unanswered simply because they are against God's way of doing. We ask to be taken out of the world not by death, but by deliverance. Our desire is to live, but apart from real life. Such is not the divine purpose. Jesus Himself submitted to every human condition.—Presbyterian Journal.

The Little Things.

It is while you are patiently toiling at the little tasks of life that the meaning and shape of the great whole of life dawn upon you. It is while you are resisting little temptations that you are growing stronger.—Phillips Brooks.

BURGLAR GUN.

Recent Clever Invention of Akron Man.

Peculiar Circumstances Leading to It's Origin Told by Mr. Garl.

Matthews Garl, the electrician, whose recent invention, the burglar gun, has created much favorable comment, first demonstrated the practicability of his invention by rigging up one of the machine to guard his father's watermelon patch. He connected the apparatus with a long string in such a manner that an intending marauder would brush against the string and cause the gun's charge to explode. The thief, not knowing what had happened, would imagine that some one was "laying for" and had shot at him, and would straight way depart for more congenial climes.

Mr. Garl, senior, reports an exceptionally large watermelon crop that season.
