

MINORITY

In the Way of Cereal Deal.

Have Appealed to the Attorney General.

They Object to the Re-Organization Plan.

Claim the Distribution Will Not be Fair.

Although officials of the American Cereal Co. have secured a majority of the company's stockholders to consent to the plan for an increase of the capitalization by the issue of $8,000,000 of preferred stock and $1,000,000 of common, there is a minority element representing several thousand shares which seriously objects to the increase and to the re-organization plan the officials have promulgated.

Attorney General J. M. Sheets has been consulted by representatives of the minority and has stated that he would see to it that their interests were protected.

The minority objects on the ground that the increase will be an over-capitalization and that it is not necessary to the business. They object to the plan of distribution of the increased stock, claiming that those back of the proposed plan would receive half the $4,000,000 of common stock. They argue that their present number of shares worth 175 or 180 is better property than twice that number would be at half the value per share. The preferred stock would pay 6 per cent. from the start, but no dividends would be paid on common stock until the bonded indebtedness was paid.

The Elephant CAPITAL Of the Everett-Moore Combination

Will be $150,000,000—Soon to be Organized.

New York, July 19.—E. W. Moore, of Cleveland, a member of the Everett-Moore suburban railroad syndicate, said at the Waldorf-Astoria last night that the consolidation of the street railways in and between Cleveland, Toledo and Detroit, which he is seeking to effect, was certain to come about, although no definite steps could yet be announced.

He declined to name any of the stockholders in the proposed corporation, saying that many of them would hold small local interests. He would not state the eventual capitalization further than that it would probably be between $125,000,000 and $150,000,000.

Mr. Moore was strongly of the opinion that the consolidation of street railway companies would go on rapidly during the next few years. He said that the economies of operating expenses would be found extremely large, and that his own syndicate, which now owns 316 miles straight away from Port Huron to Ashtabula, would make great savings in power plants and managements.

Mr. Moore will leave New York for Cleveland Saturday, stopping briefly in Philadelphia. It is thought that he has been successful in this city in securing nearly all the capital he desired.

Only near relatives were present. Mr. and Mrs. Wassmer will live at 104 North Maple st., upon their return from a wedding trip.

Posing as a Model. A curious feature of a model's occupation is her posing for an artist who is painting some one else. Wealthy people are capricious and often do not care to give long sittings. Therefore, after the artist has caught the expression of the face, he will call in a model to pose for the figure. Some models do not care to do this, as part of their enjoyment of their occupation consists in seeing themselves reproduced on canvas, but there are others who are quite willing to help fill out.

Various models have various points of excellence, and often a painter will employ at different stages in the progress of his work from three to four models for one figure on his canvas. One model is known for her coloring, another for her hands, another for her hair. An artist generally notes in his address book the characteristics of a model after her name. These quotations are taken at random from an artist's address book: "Fine young Jewess," "English, tall and slim, blond, costume," "Good back," "Good figure, short legs, ivory tone."—Cosmopolitan.

Showing the Queen. The game of counterfeiting in this country is played by people of all nationalities, and, although some women and children are used as tools, men take the principal parts. After having made the coin the great problem is how to convert it into good money. The maker rarely takes part in that operation. It is the business of gangs, which consist usually of two persons, known as the "holder" and the "shover." The holder carries a stock of the counterfeit money, and the shover has one piece. This he takes to a store or a saloon and buys something for a small amount, and when he comes into the street the holder sees him from his position a block away, joins him, receives the good money and hands him another counterfeit.

The object is to work so that the shover, if detected, may plead innocence and prove that the piece is the only one that he has and that he has no other money. Some clever operators go so far as to mix good coin with the bad.

The Englishman and His Order. An Englishman at a Chicago hotel ordered a trap. He ordered it of an intelligent looking key clerk behind the desk. Then he went up stairs to his room to prepare himself for the drive. He waited half an hour for the announcement that the vehicle was below. He began to wonder if this was an example of the American hustle whose reputation had crossed the Atlantic.

"Presently came a knock on the door. 'Come in,' hude the Englishman. Entered a mechanical looking man in his shirt sleeves. 'Where's the hole?' was his question. 'Hole?' queried the Englishman. 'I wanted a trap.' 'Here it is,' said the toiler, 'and it'll catch that mouse sure.' The Englishman's mouth opened in astonishment. 'Mouse! What do you mean? Who are you, anyhow?' 'I'm the hotel carpenter, sir, and I've brought up the trap you ordered!' The Englishman glared. Then it penetrated his Saxon wits, and he roared. He gave the carpenter half a dollar and swore the joke for once was on America.

A Beaver's Toilet. It is an interesting sight to watch the outlay at his evening toilet. To begin with, instead of sitting up with his large, flat, ribbed tail protruding behind him, he tucked it forward between his hind legs and sat upon it. Then with his hind he carefully combed his long hair, using both hands at the same time. There were many places, however, that could not be reached in this way, for his arms are very short and his body very large, so he combed these otherwise inaccessible places with his hind feet, using first one and then the other. The entire operation was performed with the utmost deliberation and care and occupied more than a quarter of an hour, so that by the time this was completed daylight had almost vanished.

My presence did not appear to disturb him in the least, though I sat on the ground within three feet of him that I might the better note his various attitudes, for it is not often one has an opportunity of watching a beaver at such close range.—Everybody's Magazine.

In Retreat. Down from the upper air floated the strains of music, yet Neptune was visibly annoyed. "What's gnawing at thy vitals, sire?" asked a mermaid. "I wish in the name of Orpheus," said the sea king, "that boating parties could sing something else besides 'A Life on the Ocean Wave.'"

And forthwith he crawled into a cave and pulled the cave in after him. —New York Marine Journal.
