WILL MOVE.

Engraving Co. Preparing to Leave Akron.

Attachment Placed on Certain Personal Property.

An affidavit of Emma B. Farrar, Ella Holaday and Chas. F. Case, an attachment was issued late Saturday for certain goods in the possession of C. Willoughby Vincent, W. S. Stillwell and Wm. J. McCourt, doing business as the S. & O. Engraving Co. Property valued at $215 was attached, but the establishment was not closed as was reported by a local paper.

The plaintiffs allege that there is $975 due them on a settlement for equipment, etc., made Aug. 13, and that a check given to cover the amount was found valueless.

The S. & O. Co. deny that the plaintiffs have a valid claim. Its managers are preparing to move to Cleveland and there establish an entirely new plant.

THOSE CUTE MONKEYS.

They Interest Your Uncle Mac.

More Than the Vigorous Complaints of Citizens.

"Hold on, there! I want some of those tickets. Don't be too swift to get away."

And Your Uncle Mac paused right then and there from his duties as chairman over Monday morning's session of the Board to get his share of the complimentary tickets for the show Monday evening. Several complaints were being heard, but what were they in comparison with complimentary to a show. Mayor's Clerk Irvin had just entered the room and was parceling out tickets. He apparently forgot about Your Uncle, and started to leave. Maybe he was afraid of disturbing the meeting, but as soon as the president of the Board was supplied with the necessary paste board, admitting him to the monkey show, the game went on as if nothing had happened.

OH, YES; THEY' LLGO.

Police and Irvin Can Scarcely Wait Till Thursday.

Policeman—those who can get away—are jubilant over the prospects for a good time Thursday. They will go to Cleveland to play a return game of ball with Cleveland officers, and propose to make their friends, the enemy, look like a stranded Uncle Tom's Cabin troupe. Even "Officer Billy" Irvin, than whom no more strenuous policeman ever patrolled a beat, will be on hand to pitch—and he is only one of the team.

It is said Chief Durkin cannot go along to chaperon the team and rooters, but that Oom Joe Kempel has agreed to assume all responsibilities for the outfit, and has already begun preparing rules and regulations.

That Money Ordinance. The ordinance to borrow $50,000 will again come before Council—at its meeting Monday evening.

SON

Of the Aged Man at Bolivar.

He Visits Akron to Study Situation

Relating to the Parks-Smith Story.

He Says His Father Has Plenty of Money.

A son of the aged man at Bolivar, O., who figured in the "Detective" Parks-Smith story, came to Akron Saturday to study the situation. With Detective Doerler, he visited "Bill" Smith's place, on South Howard st., and afterward called on County Prosecutor Wanamaker. He said the story told by Parks, with reference to his father's having money, was correct, as was also his description of the house in which they lived. He refused to give an opinion in the case. "I know Parks," he said to Officer Doerler, "and this affair has stirred up great excitement in our town."

BOGUS BILLS.

Thought a Woman Ate Them to Save Detection.

An Italian woman, said to have been making small purchases throughout the city, and paying for them with bogus 10-dollar bills, was brought to police headquarters Monday morning by Officer Doerler. She said she came here from Cleveland two weeks ago, and has been boarding at a house in Wolf st. Her business is peddling.

She was taken to the city prison and her clothing searched by Mrs. Washer. No bad money was found, and Prison-keeper Washer said if she had any she had undoubtedly eaten it while being brought to the police station. It was observed that she held her handkerchief over her mouth several times. As no evidence could be found to make specific charges against the woman she was released.

Capitalist Buys Two Hotels So He May Have Some Peace.

New York, Aug. 19.—(Spl.)—Walter Jennings, son-in-law of Wm. Rockefeller, and himself a Standard Oil magnate, has purchased the Glenada hotel and the Forest Lane house, the two summer hotels of Cold Springs Harbor, a resort on the north shore of Long Island. Jennings has closed the hotels and will tear them down.

It is alleged that he was annoyed by the guests of the house, who often invaded the grounds of his summer home nearby. To avoid this annoyance, Jennings purchased the hotel properties for $55,000 and will obliterate the buildings.

The villagers, many of whom make a livelihood through the visits of summer guests, are dejected. Several small tradesmen have failed already. The residents say Jennings' action has signed the death warrant of Cold Springs Harbor.

Gorgeous Bathing Suit-- It Shocked Narragansett.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Aug. 19.—(Spl.)—A sensation was created on the beach yesterday by a young woman bather, who appeared at the height of the bathing hours clad in an airy, transparent costume of white brillianine and wearing pink tights with big glaring polka dots. Her cap was of white silk with veil to match. When she first appeared at least 5,000 bathers gathered around the girl who seemed to enjoy the sensation she was creating. After taking a plunge, the girl entered a bath house followed by a crowd of curiosity seekers. The chief of police ordered her to leave the bath house by the rear entrance and to change her costume the next time she entered the water. The bather is said to be an excursionist who was only here for the day.

BY THE SAD SEA WAVES.

Ella: "Isn't Maud coming out this morning?" Stella: "Oh, yes; presently. But she's torn her bathing dress a little and is staying behind to mend it." Ella: "She needn't be so particular about a little tear. There's nobody here to see her." Stella: "That's why she didn't think it was worth while to leave it torn."

SPOILED BY BOAST.

Stout Gent: "Well, sir, I'm a self made man. I began life as a barefooted boy." Thin Gent: "Well, as far as I can make out, I wasn't born with shoes on either."

Contents of Eggs.

From the remotest ages the egg has been looked upon as the symbol of creation, or new birth. According to the Persians, the world was hatched from an egg at that season of the year which corresponds to the vernal equinox. Hence the Parsees still exchange gifts of colored eggs at the new year festival, which they celebrate at this date. Among the Jews the egg entered into all the mysterious ceremonies called apocalyptic and occupied a prominent position on the household table during the paschal season. Christianity invested the paschal egg with a new significance—namely, that of the resurrection of Christ, and it was colored red in allusion to his blood shed for sinners on the cross.

A curious custom in medieval churches, for priests and choristers to join in a game of ball at Eastertide, took its rise from the Easter egg, which was thrown from one to the other of the choristers in the nave of the church while an anthem was being sung. As a missed egg meant a smashed egg, the more durable hardball was substituted.

But the smashing of eggs continued as a form of outdoor sport. Survivals are to be found among all Teutonic and Anglo-Saxon people. A popular game in England and Germany consists in hitting one egg against another, the egg that survives uncracked winning for its owner the weaker antagonist, until an entire basket of eggs may have changed ownership. Another game is to trundle eggs down a hill or slope, those which reach the bottom uncracked being similarly victorious over the others.
