DOCTRINE

Of Anarchy Is Spreading

So Says Notorious Emma Goldman.

She Will Speak "Police or No Police."

Chicago, Oct. 4.—(Spl.)—Despite Mayor Harrison's edict, Emma Goldman declares that she will make good her promise to speak publicly in Chicago within a week. Miss Goldman says that many followers of Prince Kropotkin are anxious to hear her talk and requests have been received for tickets from a number of students of the University of Chicago.

"I was willing to let the police know where the meetings were to be," said Miss Goldman, "and to permit them to be present, but since they have sought to prohibit my speaking by closing the halls against me, I shall speak without their knowledge. I have spoken in Chicago without the police knowing it, and I can do it again."

Miss Goldman says she has three lectures in dealing with us they are spreading the gospel of anarchy further daily," Miss Goldman said.

PRESIDENT OF THE SOCIETY OF AMERICAN WOMEN IN LONDON.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—Mrs. Hugh Reed Griffen, president of the Society of American Women in London, is expected to visit this city in November. She is sure to be heartily welcomed. Not only is she president of the foremost club for Yankee women in Europe, which she created, but she was born in Chicago and passed five years of her life here.

Mrs. Griffen recognized the necessity of an Association of American women in London about three years ago. She invited a few of her closest friends to "talk over" the question of forming the club. While they sipped some delightful tea Mrs. Griffen and her friends talked it over. They agreed, with enthusiasm, that such a club for American women, either living in London or visiting there, would be most desirable from both social and patriotic points of view.

These women knew that the only social link in the American colony of 15,000 persons, many of whom led rather isolated lives in a strange country, was an association of men who annually invited their wives to a bad dinner. Thereupon these six women decided to have a club of their own, patterned after Sorosis in New York, and when the committee drew up the constitution a short time after, article 2 specified: "The object of the society is for the promotion of social intercourse between American women."

That was the beginning of a delightful club of 100 American women. At first they met at Hotel Cecil, and at the monthly luncheon there were music and clever speeches. One year ago they rented quarters at Prince's in Piccadilly, which corresponds to the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, and here in their elegant rooms they not only continue the monthly luncheon to which the American women sojourner in London, is certain to be invited, but four committees—on literature, music, art, house and home—have branched out after the fashion of the American woman's club, and, as a rule, unlike the purely social English woman's club.

The Society of American Women in London is a member of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in this country. The badge of the London club is a handsome one. On the ground of white enamel, with gold border, are the arms of the City of London, surmounted by the eagle. On either side are two flags—the "Jack" of John Bull and the Stars and Stripes of Uncle Sam.

DEATH.

WINKLEMAN—Joseph B. Winkleman, a blacksmith and life-long resident of Coventry township, died Wednesday night of consumption, aged 48. Funeral services will be held from his late home, near Pleasant Valley at 9:30 and from the Lutheran church at East Liberty at 10:30 a. m. Saturday.

Ophthalmics as a profession is more of an art than an industry. It's a profession that is thoroughly mastered but by a few. If you want a dish of ice cream, you don't go to a hardware store. If you want a hat you don't go to a blacksmith shop. If you want optical goods or lenses that fit, go to a practical optician.
