

J. W. HOUGHTON, M. H. HOUGHTON, EDITORS.

It is interesting in a social gathering to notice the different degrees of talent persons have in the way of contributing to the general entertainment. It is not always the wise and profound, nor yet the most intelligent who put others at their ease, and are most genial and charming in company. But to be able to tell what they know, to re-produce a story or anecdote, or describe well something they have seen or heard, is a real and by no means a common gift. Those who can do this and are good-natured and hospitable as well, are sure to be sought after, and to be popular in society; and as these gifts can be cultivated and improved they are not to be despised as unworthy the attempt. Occasionally there is one who more confidence than judgment, who likes to hear himself talk, and is not modest concerning his own exploits, or doubtful as to the genuineness of his information, or the quality of his wit, who goes through life never dreaming that the laugh that follows his recitals has in it any reservations, or that he is not the hero to others that he seems to himself; but often one is led to envy another the grace and ease with which he can get off a good thing for the amusement of others, or bring before their persons and places with all their peculiarities or accessories as vividly as if he had seen it with our own eyes. There are not many forward people in society, but one insect more who if he could put aside his timidity and reserve and do a little more talking in company would contribute to its entertainment, dignity and happiness.

Many will tell the day when more pleasure shall be derived from listening than from doing, and from the flow of thought than from eating and drinking, though these shall not be despised. Social intercourse in moderation is healthful and improving, and nothing so helps a person out of the ruts of morbid feeling, or stimulates to mental and physical growth as the pleasant friction of mind against mind and the hand-grasp of good fellowship. The dimes and quarters got out of church socials is the last of the good done by getting together. One is not in the position to do the most efficient Christian work who never comes face to face with those whom he would reach with moral influences. Words flanked by the look and tone of kindness and sympathy are a tonic to the soul, and religious movements are more general and effective when and where Christians most do congregate.

Election News.

We went to press so soon after election that it was impossible to give more than the general result. Some of our readers, however, will be interested in reading the vote of this and surrounding townships. Wellington gave Foster 451, and Ewing 124 votes; majority for Foster 327; R. A. Horner, Senator; D. L. Wadsworth, 140; majority for Horner, 285; Lucius Herrick, Representative; 409; C. L. Wack, 122; majority for Herrick 337. Mr. Horner beat his ticket in Wellington 26 votes. Elyria gave Foster 81 votes, Ewing 330; majority for Foster 501; Huntington gave a majority for Foster of 101; LaGrange 54; Peninsula 94; Pittsfield 76; Rochester 84; and Russia 60; a majority over Ewing of 2409. Ewing had majorities in Amherst, Avon, and Carlisle, aggregating 155 votes, and small majorities in one or two others. When it is known that the last mentioned are largely settled by foreigners, who are not supposed to be very well informed on political questions, the reason for the Democratic majorities in these places can be understood. Lorain gives a Republican gain of 23 over 1878, and a gain of 724 over the vote of 1877. The world moves.

Medina county does herself credit by giving an increased Republican majority in many of her townships and electing her entire ticket by from 970 to over 1000. Spencer deserves special mention for having come within four votes of a majority over the Democratic party. Litchfield gave a majority of 97. Ashland and Richland are both Democratic counties, but the district Republican by 1500 to 900 majority. The exact figures we have not got. The Democrats made a special fight against Mr. R. A. Horner, and circulated the most infamous slanders their ingenuity and malignity could invent. They made their boasts early in the campaign that his majority would be swept clear out of existence. They knew just how far they were going to do it, but notwithstanding their almost superhuman efforts in the circulation of his apparently sufficient to damn a saint, they succeeded in reducing his majority by only 438 votes. We doubt whether even they can feel that it was a profitable business.

The Legislature in Republican on joint ballot by 39 votes; House 29, Senate 9, which makes a Republican U. S. Senator in place of Tauman.

The Legislature will of course re-district the State for members of Congress and at the next election the majority of Democratic Congressmen will be set apart to private life, and a state which is a Republican State will no longer present the anomaly of being represented by a Democratic majority. Making all allowance for the floating vote which has been shifting between the Republican, Democratic and Greenback parties. Ohio is a Republican State and has never failed in the last twenty years to give a Republican majority when they were sufficiently awake to the importance of the issues presented to come out and vote. The expense and anxiety to the country of the extra session of Congress pending great burdensome and pending great dangers place the most political issues before the country in such a manner as will finally make them remembered, even longer than the lessons of the war.

The Suicidal Mania.

The news of one suicide had hardly been commiserated with than another was reported. All over the country, chronicled every week and every day of the week, are like instances, or unsuccessful attempts. Intentional self-destruction has often been epidemic in character, and we doubt the propriety of publishing these things, and especially of dressing up the revolting crime in sentimental garb and making it appear as about the legitimate thing to do if life goes hard with one, if business does not prosper, if plans or health fail, or one experiences unjust treatment.

With all due regard to the feelings of their friends and not in any spirit of harshness toward the unfortunate victims of cruel circumstances, of insane delusion, or of uncontrollable despondency, we might be considered as no less a crime than to kill another; and that such disgrace might be associated with it as to deter any more from rushing into the presence of their Maker in this precipitous manner. This kind of morbid sentimentalism is fostered and stimulated by some reading of unhealthy fiction, and the highly colored and romantic style in which the accounts of these tragic deaths are written.

Readers of newspapers demand the recording of current events and if there has been a suicide expect the particulars to be given. But it is also the duty of newspapers to protest against and discourage the suicidal custom. Sometimes disease has to do with the disposition to suicide, and the victim is in a measure responsible than is genuine insanity a voluntary act. But even hypochondria is thought to be a good deal under the control of the will and to a certain extent, possible to be resisted. In the family, the school-room, from the pulpit, through the press, should be taught a more sacred regard for the value of human life.

If there is any suspicion of a suicidal intention in a person, every possible precaution should be taken to divert the mind into healthy channels, and remove any means that might be used in self-destruction. Employment that occupies the thoughts is healthier for those in trouble than that which leaves the mind free to dwell upon and magnify its sorrows and perplexities. If ever-work and over-activity have brought the mischief, then change, recreation, and freedom from care may soon bring back the cheerfulness of spirit that makes existence not simply an endurance, but a luxury.

Finally and above every other means for the proper counterpoise of the human mind, helping it better to appreciate the moral quality of mental conditions as well as physical acts, and to overcome those that are morbid, selfish and unsafe, is the Christian faith, which has saved multitudes of persons from yielding to and being overwhelmed by temporary miseries. The persons who die by their own act are not struggling against more adverse fortune or more bitter trials than those of others all about them manage to live under, and yet keep a brave and often cheerful spirit. Think of the innumerable army of invalids and of the maimed and crippled, sufferers to whom life is still sweet, and who as often as any are found still with idle or empty hands, and upon their lips songs instead of complaints.

These brave, patient souls, mute teachers of thankfulness, are a constant reproach to the lamentations of the well and strong. There are no sorrows so darkly deep that others have not sounded them; every heart knows its own bitterness. History records the intervention of civil law to restrain epidemics of self-destruction. In 1793 the number of suicides in Versailles was 1300, a number greatly disproportioned to the population. In the army of the First Napoleon, the soldiers, not content with their chances of being killed, took to suicide, and it was only after a strong appeal to their courage and pride by the Emperor that it was suppressed. The literature of suicide is as curious as interesting, but not good for general reading. In times and countries where it has been considered as a felony, and certain penalties have been imposed on the property and person of the deceased, such as forfeiture of the estate and denial of the rights of Christian burial, the barbarity has had the good effect of almost entirely suppressing the crime. Burial in the night at the crossing of two highways for example, served to stamp the act as one of peculiar abhorrence, and to make it anything but romantic to choose one's own time and method of shutting off the mortal coil.

SULLIVAN, Oct. 18, 1879.

Mr. D. L. Wadsworth—Yours of the 9th came hand yesterday, therefore I hasten to answer this Monday morn, it being first opportunity. When you could not find the paper that contained the circular so I could read it, I did positively request you to have it printed in the Ashland paper. I do not know why or by whom a denial was made. If any one wishes further light, they can have it by calling on Yours truly, P. W. FRANK.

Bring on your money, I want it. The circular referred to was the one headed, "This is not a Dream." I wish to know connection of party. All other statements about me can be answered as easily, and the truth will be my side as it has been in this and other I have answered. Try, try again. D. L. W.

An article with reference to the subject of the above letter and note by Mr. Wadsworth, was partially prepared for this issue, but could not be completed. Keep the point in mind and we will let a little daylight into this subject that will put a different face upon it.—Ed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

PITTSFIELD.

Oct. 20th, 1879. Since my last, and while many have been indulging in electioneering squibs, rows and perplexities. If ever-work and over-activity have brought the mischief, then change, recreation, and freedom from care may soon bring back the cheerfulness of spirit that makes existence not simply an endurance, but a luxury.

Our M. E. people have had their change of pastors, Mr. Houshour going to Avon, and Mr. Dzier taking his place in Pittsfield. The new organ has been placed in the M. E. Church, and is regarded by those competent to judge as a very fine instrument. Mr. B. Beach gave an instrumental piece at the opening of the Sabbath morning service, showing the capacity of the instrument, which he pronounced very fine, building an addition to his house, which is well under way.

SPENCER.

Oct. 18, 1879. "We have met the enemy and they are ours!" No more expounding of Democratic principles and Jeffersonian doctrine heard on street corners. The shining triumph of the Republican cause almost dim the morning sun. The large est vote polled in Spencer for a long time of years.

When a young man of a confiding and unassuming nature stepped up to poll a straight Republican vote, one of the Democratic trustees of the election hand him a neat folded ticket, saying "this is the ticket for you to vote." What did this young man do? Why, he took the ticket, supposing it all right, and deposited it in the box. So much for Democratic purity and fairness.

The more the Democrats distributed and spread the infamous lies in regard to Senator Foster, the more honest Democrats stepped up to the polls and voted straight Republican tickets, through conviction and disgust.

Monday evening before election, Captain McClure of Wooster, gave the Democrats of this place the soundest political drubbing that they have received during the campaign. He sat down on D. Coons in such a scientific manner as to cause David to lose control of his organs of speech for the first time in many years.

The Republicans will celebrate their victory the evening of October 18th. Parker & Brown are doing a good and durable piece of stone work for the new bridge south of town. SLY JOCK.

SULLIVAN, Oct. 20th, 1879. The Republicans of Sullivan gave vent to their feelings by holding a grand jollification meeting, on Saturday evening last. The band gave us some good music, after which the town was lighted up by a grand display of fireworks, while the booming of our little cannon helped proclaim our glorious victory to the farthest corners of the township. After giving three cheers for Foster, and three groans for Ewing, the happy crowd dispersed to their homes.

Our Democratic friends are trying to console themselves by telling us that they will show us at the next Presidential election. But we tell them we can't cross a bridge till we get to it, and when we get to it we propose to go across.

ELYRIA.

Oct. 18, 1879. Elyria has taken no stock in the slanderous lies manufactured by the Democrats to injure Mr. R. A. Horner. A number of improvements are being made about town. The Beebe and American Houses have each received a new coat of paint. Spitzberg, the clock, is putting a plate glass front into his store.

The temperance convention of the L. C. C. T. U., held at North Anarhet, sat Thursday, was very interesting and quite well attended.

Mr. Richardson, the builder of the court house, is erecting a high board fence around the building to keep out spectators. He is delayed considerably by people who stand around in the way and talk with his men.

The preparations are all made and the programme of the sports to be given next Saturday are out. There will be a large number of entries for the rope pull, and a large attendance is expected. The next day last week for stealing a valise from a buggy on Broad street. He was taken before a Justice and bound over to the next term court. We understand he has been "over the road" once before.

Geo. Maple, a married man of this place, disappeared from Sept. 28th, and on Wednesday, Oct. 1st, was found in an insensible condition on the rocks down below the West Falls. He is in company with some others, had procured a keg of beer, and it is thought his drunken stupor he wandered away and walked off the banks. At last accounts he was yet alive. A. W. N.

Oct. 20th, 1879.

Court convenes next Monday. The late "Astonisher" has been resurrected next Saturday. It comes this time to stay: T. W. Stevens & Co., publishers.

Financially, the rope pulling and other sports, last Saturday, were something of a success. The Society realized about $150.00. LaGrange, as usual took the lion's share of the prizes. She took the first, both in the heavy and light pulls, and also in the potato race. Grifton was awarded the second prize for heavy pulling, and Pittsfield for light pulling.

Relection passed off as quietly as could be expected, considering the importance of the occasion. Both parties had experts watching the proceedings, and a good deal of challenging was indulged in, consequently some went away being unable to deposit their votes. In the evening the Republicans had a reception to which the Democrats were invited, they came, but did not stay long. Foster's majority in the county is 2418; Horner's 2094.

The community was startled on Saturday morning at the announcement that the suicide of Miss Jo Briggs, Miss Briggs was a resident of Wellington, and had been visiting friends here for a few weeks for the purpose of improving her health. It is supposed that in a fit of insanity she took a revolver and shot herself. Her actions during the day were such as aroused suspicion, and she was closely watched. She had been missed only a moment or two, when her friends instituted search and found her in an insensible condition with a bullet hole in her breast, and she had been being found, and before a physician could be summoned. She had a large circle of friends and acquaintances here, and many her untimely death was deeply mourned. Every one who knew her spoke in the best terms of her. Her funeral took place Monday afternoon. A. W. N.

Memorial. Mrs. Sarah Munson was born in Dover, Duches Co., N. J., Feb. 10, 1799. With her family came to Ohio in 1835, and has since been a resident of Lorain county. Settling in Avon among the early pioneers, she shared in their hardships and enjoyed their friendship till most of them preceded her to the spirit land. In Avon, where she still resides, many warm friends will long remember her acts of kindness, and desire to pay tribute to her memory.

Subsequently moving to Wellington in 1853, she has since been a resident of Lorain county. Settling in Avon among the early pioneers, she shared in their hardships and enjoyed their friendship till most of them preceded her to the spirit land. In Avon, where she still resides, many warm friends will long remember her acts of kindness, and desire to pay tribute to her memory.

45 Years Before the Public. THE GENUINE DR. C. McLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, FOR THE CURE OF Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint, DYSPEPSIA AND BILIOUS HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver. PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the patient is frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive; sometimes alternate with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, yet constant, is sometimes attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively diseased.

AGUE AND FEVER. DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, in CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL. For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequalled.

REMARKS ON IMITATIONS. The genuine are never sugar coated. Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the signature of Dr. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS. The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FRANKING BROS. on the wrapper.
