The secret orders should cause gilt letters of the initials of the orders to be placed on the outside of the buildings they occupy.

The date set for trial in the cases of the village of Wellington vs. F. D. Felt and E. W. Adams is set for hearing Tuesday, Oct. 1st at 9 o'clock a. m.

Please read the articles from London, O., on stock sales. Northern Ohio might supply one equally as good if some one would set the ball to rolling.

Miss Ollie Carr of Greenwich secured the prize at the fair of Norwalk as being the handsomest lady in the county. Miss Carr was formerly a resident of this place.

Mr. J. M. Otterbacher was the recipient of a box by mail, containing samples of cotton grown this year in Georgia. They can be seen in the show window at his store.

The next thing is a good political speech; can't the committee arrange to secure Hon. John Sherman? His recent visit abroad will enable him to explain away the free trade ideas.

The officials of the Big Four railway want to retire the name of Bee Line. Now if the directors of the company ratify the purchase of the O. & M. the name of the route will have to be changed to Big Five.

Beckly of Huntington were among the relatives present. The presents were numerous and valuable and a general good time prevailed.

Persons having occasion to place flowers on the graves of loved ones in the South cemetery complain of a scarcity of water. The trustees should see that the supply is increased equal to the demand before another season arrives. The facilities for supplying water ten years ago would ordinarily be inadequate at the present time.

Oct. 1st, twenty-three years ago, the first number of the WELLINGTON JOURNAL was issued. Therefore we have a number of subscribers whose subscriptions expire on that date. The ENTERPRISE is reported to head the list of weekly papers in the State for being collected up closely. Our many friends will please accept thanks for their prospectus.

In order to let the people know what you have to sell just step in and order us to place an advertisement in the ENTERPRISE. In this way two thousand persons can be informed in a very few days all about what you have to sell. A majority of the most prosperous business men in the country reached their financial position by patronizing the press.

On visiting the room the other day we found it to be a very interesting place. We spent a half hour looking over the various articles on exhibition. The officers of the society propose to have an opening soon and invite the public to pass in and leave a silver offering at the door, in order to create a little revenue.

Mr. J. L. Chapman brought a load of potatoes into town this week known as the Late Beauty of Hebron; a number were selected that pulled the scales down to 2 1/2 pounds each, and several bushels from the load that it only required thirty-five potatoes to weigh seventy pounds. It probably overtops any load of potatoes that has been brought to the market for years.

The agent of the Bee Line has been using an autograph stamp for some years past to sign his name to the numberless receipts, vouchers, etc., which lightened the burden of clerical work very materially; but the powers that be at the company have now forbidden the use of the stamp and the pen substituted in the place. The order did not meet with favor with the freight delivery clerks.

The visitors from Georgia compliment our good women in the way they keep home. That's right; every school girl should make note of the article and strive to become a tidy housekeeper. It is something that cannot be extracted from books, as it requires actual labor to accomplish it. We have visited some domiciles where fine literary minds abide, and many things were observed to be hanging up on the floor.

Mr. Geo. Prosser of Brighton appeared before one of the attorneys in this place last week and requested him to file a petition in the Court of Common Pleas at Elyria, praying for a bill of divorce from his wife. The principal cause, alleged unfaithfulness. It is said that Mrs. Prosser will file her answer making a complete denial of all charges. The case has caused quite a sensation in the community where they reside and from reports it would seem that the plaintiff would have no trouble in establishing his allegations; but the better plan usually is to wait and hear the testimony, then a more intelligent opinion can be formed.

On account of the Oberlin and Wellington rescue case, which occurred here in 1838, the American House will soon occupy one page in history. A runaway slave from South Carolina had reached Oberlin on his way to Canada. It was ascertained that his masters were in close pursuit and the slave was brought to Wellington and secreted in the third story of the American House, but the owners were on the alert and soon located their property and demanded his immediate surrender. A large crowd gathered and the demand was emphatically refused. The slave was then taken from the window and passed down to the crowd and the masters compelled to flee to a place of safety. The southern journals now make a note of the transaction and class the house as being the first place where the people declined to assist in the capture and return of slaves during the existence of the fugitive slave law.

F. L. O. Wadsworth has just received an appointment of a "Fellowship," in Clark's University, located in Worcester, Mass. From a list of 400 Collegiate graduates from different colleges in the U. S. who sat in their applications, only 40 received appointments. Post graduate work alone is to be done at this University, and its object is to give a thorough scientific training to its student, so that when their three years course is concluded, they can justly compete with or stand upon the same footing with students educated either in England, France or Germany. F. L. O. W. expects to start for Worcester on Saturday of this week. He is spending a week at home: arrived from Columbus on Saturday last. This appointment came to him very unexpectedly, but it was an opportunity not to be cast aside, no matter how advantageous the situation he was occupying at the time of receiving it. He gains this appointment solely upon the merits of work done and the manner of doing it, during his college course in Ohio State University.

During the summer months a flock of blackbirds selected the grove on the north side of the Union School building for a stopping place during the night. The original flock were few in numbers, therefore disturbed no one but as the September days arrived, their numbers were largely increased until they became a nuisance to the immediate vicinity. The attention of the Mayor was called to the matter and he at once instructed Marshal Williams to cause the birds to be put to flight. He called the first gunners, (viz Eugene Robinson, W. F. Crosier and Bert McKinney) of the town to his assistance and on Friday evening they repaired to the school ground, to await the arrival of the birds. At six o'clock the grove was filled with a mass of the black chippers and the gunners opened fire upon them and kept it up until nearly seven o'clock, as the birds appeared to be determined to hold the fort, but of course had to yield. The boys picked up two hundred, aside from what were slightly wounded and got away.

Death of Mrs. Brazil McNeill.

Mrs. Brazil McNeill died about 7 o'clock last evening at her home No. 73 Academy street, aged 33 years. Mrs. McNeill's maiden name was Ida E. Fay, and she formerly lived in Westfield, Mass. She had been an invalid for seven or eight months. Last Friday she was taken worse, but although a fatal termination of her illness was looked for, the end came suddenly and unexpectedly. Death was caused by stomach trouble, complicated with heart difficulty. Mr. and Mrs. McNeill were married nine years ago, and their wedded life has been a most happy one. Besides her husband, she deceased has survived by three children, Alma, aged six, Harold, aged four and Charles, one year old. A woman of amiable, kindly and self-sacrificing nature, whose aim in life was to do her duty as she found it, she was loved and respected by a large circle who tender their earnest sympathy to the bereaved husband and motherless children. She was a member of the Emmanuel Presbyterian church, which she joined at its formation by letters from the Second Congregational church of Westfield, Mass. Brief services will be held at the house, at 12 o'clock tomorrow morning, conducted by Rev. David Sprague. The remains will be taken on the 1:16 train to Westfield, where the funeral will be held on Thursday, Rev. Mr. Lockwood and Rev. Mr. Blake, pastors of the First and Second Congregational churches, officiating, and where the interment will be made.—Amherst, Mass., Daily Democrat.

She was a daughter of Mrs. Emily Fay, formerly of this place, and niece of D. L. Wadsworth.

Obituary.

Rev. Larrison B. Lane, M. D., died at his home in St. Charles Sunday morning September 15th, 1889. He was born in Talmadge, Ohio June 21st, 1821. He was educated for a physician at Cleveland Medical College, and afterwards attended Oberlin College and Theological Seminary, where he graduated in 1848. The following year he was sent by the American Board as a Missionary physician to Siam, where for seven years he labored faithfully and successfully, ministering lovingly and tenderly to soul and body. In 1856 he very reluctantly returned to America, a severe hemorrhage of the lungs compelling him to give up foreign Missionary work, to which he had consecrated his life. But he never ceased to be a faithful and earnest Missionary for Christ. After a short respite he began again his work of preaching the gospel. He had a successful pastorate at Lisbon, Ill., of five years, during which there were several seasons of revival, resulting in large gatherings of souls into the Lord's Kingdom. Then followed three years of labor at Geneva, Ill., whence he was called to Wellington, Ohio, where he spent 13 years of patient, faithful work for his Master. The church grew rapidly under his ministry, and became one of the strong working churches of northern Ohio; but it was, alas, at the sacrifice of his health and strength. At the end of the 12 years he found himself so broken that he was obliged to give up the work of the ministry. In 1875 he returned to Illinois and settled at Geneva, and after spending a short time in study at Hahnemann Medical College, Chicago, began the practice of medicine. He moved to St. Charles in 1882, where he has since lived. He was twice married; in 1844 to Miss Bessie D. Hutchins, who died January 14th, 1885, and Dec. 22nd, 1887, to Miss Emma L. Durant, in St. Charles, who with two daughters, Mrs. G. F. Lyman and Mrs. Henry N. Castle, and one son, Charles W. the former residing in Omaha, Neb., and the two latter in Topeka, Kansas, survive him. The funeral was held on Tuesday, Rev. G. H. Smith officiating, and his remains were interred in the old cemetery at Geneva.—Valley Chronicle.

Ashland—Mayor's Court room, Lorain—upper hall, Medina—American House parlors, Richland—election room.

The town hall was selected for the meeting in the afternoon, but on account of the small numbers in attendance, the Mayor's Court room was substituted. Hon. D. L. Wadsworth, of Lorain, was chosen temporary chairman. At the opening of the permanent organization, J. P. Seward, of Richland, was chosen President and J. A. Sheridan, of Lorain, Secretary.

The names of Thomas T. Dill, of Mansfield, and J. A. Noggle, of Medina, were presented and, there being no opposition, they were nominated by acclamation. A committee of three was chosen by the Chair to bring in the nominees and introduce them to the audience. The committee were gone a few moments and returned with Mr. Noggle, who in a few remarks thanked the audience for the honor conferred upon him. Mr. Dill was not found to be in attendance.
