TEMPERANCE TEMPLE ITEMS.

MATILDA B. CARSE.

We wish the dear white-ribboners, who are interested in the erection of the Temple, and have waited long and patiently for the work to commence, could see the army of men that are now engaged upon the foundation. We are sure the sound of the hammer upon the great stones would be sweet music to their ears.

The following "revised definitions" are from The People; ponder them well:
The liquor traffic—Mad dogs.
Personal liberty—To turn the dogs loose.
License laws—Government stamps on the dogs' noses.
Regulation—Muzzles on the dogs' tails.
High license—Gold-filled teeth for the dogs.
Practical temperance—Build hospitals for the victims.

Enforce the law—Arrest and punish people suffering from hydrophobia.
Moral suasion—Keep away from the dogs.
Local option—Drive all the mad dogs over to your neighbor's property.

Don't bring it into politics—Let the dogs alone.
Non-partisan prohibition—Load up the gun to give it to some one that will not fire to kill the dogs.

I am as good-a-temperance-man-as-you-are—Pray the Lord to kill the dogs when the gun is in your own hands.

Prohibition Party—Get the best gun, load it and place it in the hands of one that will shoot to kill.

Public sentiment—Powder and shot not in the gun.—Exponent.

The Place to

Buy Reliable Clothing

"I want to see a suit of clothes," said Phil. Norton, as he entered the clothing store of E. E. Goodrich a short time since, "and I have come here because I don't want to get cheated, as I was a little while ago by a big house in Cleveland. I paid them fifteen dollars for a coat and vest, and before I had worn it six weeks the linings were all gone, and the color had faded so that I was ashamed to wear it."

It did not take him long to purchase at our store, for we sold him a whole suit of two to one better material for the same price that he paid in Cleveland for just the coat and vest. And now, kind friends, this is only one out of hundreds of instances which I could enumerate, but the following are facts: The Cleveland concern mentioned above has reached its goal—the highest place that can be attained by any clothing house, and is classed among the first and largest of all clothing stores in Ohio. It has enjoyed a volume of trade which has made many a smaller concern envious; but here comes the point. They are now taking advantage of their reputation and are engaged in purchasing and offering to their customers stocks which they get from bankrupt wholesalers and retailers throughout the country, wherever they can get them cheap enough. These goods have many of them been on the shelves and counters for years, and have lost their strength, as had the coat referred to in the beginning of this story. Now, when you read one of the advertisements of a wholesale purchase by this concern from Naumberg, Krauss, Dinklespiel & Co., or any other shoddy Jew concern, of their entire stock, you may rest assured that there is another lot of trash to be unloaded, and that by purchasing of them you are almost sure to become a victim of misplaced confidence.

If you buy your clothing where you are acquainted, and where the merchant assures you in all of his advertising that if the goods purchased do not in any case prove to be what you want he will refund the full price in cash for them, you will find in the end that you have made no mistakes.

Again I say, trade at home; and Goodrich will back up everything that he sells. You won't find a better place in Northern Ohio to buy clothing than one door south of the P. O., on Public Square.

E. E. Goodrich, WELLINGTON, OHIO.
