lets went a foot or more above our bodies by the thousands. After we fired seven volleys into them, we were ordered to fix bayonets and charge. Away we went and gained their first trenches, but it cost us three men. Then we fired nine volleys more and again were ordered to charge. We galloped the next in-trenchment, but not without losing two more men.

One of the killed, Ransom Close, a great friend of mine, was shot beside me. It was at this point of the battle that our lieutenant, Mitchel was killed, and as he dropped, Lieutenant Miles being next in command, jumped to his feet and called, "Come on men, follow me, the block-house or die." "Charge!" Just then the cry of "Remember the Maine," came from the throat of one of our men, and in an instant it was taken up by the whole company, and away we went. The blockhouse was taken at a loss of eight more men and twenty wounded.

Will send you a paper giving the whole account of the battle.

The battle took place from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock, and when we got into the blockhouse there were found sixty-three killed, and the ground on the outside covered with the bodies of dead and wounded, but I am here alive and well.

You see we only had about as far as 500 yards to go after the first fire to reach the blockhouse, so ask father what kind of fighting it takes to go 500 yards in one hour and a half.

Everything is quiet today and they have gone to the mountains.

Will have to close now, but will write again in a few days. Look for me some by the 4th of July. With love to all. FRANK C. REYNOLDS.

[The above letter was accompanied by "The American" of February 8th, a paper published in Manila, and giving all the particulars and incidents of the battle of February 5th, showing the part taken in the battle by each regiment engaged. It is very interesting reading and the first print we have seen from that far off corner of Uncle Sam's domain.]—Ed.

worth of business on these machines alone. They also manufacture mud grinders and various other things belonging to brick-yard outfits which is not necessary to enumerate here. These goods are sold all over the United States, besides considerable trade is had in Europe, South America and Mexico.

Their foundry is well equipped, having among other features a six ton traveling crane for conveying melted iron to the flasks, and for other purposes. At present they are melting about eleven tons of iron per week.

The traveling force of the firm consists of two men, one with headquarters in Chicago and one in Indianapolis, who care for the western trade. Besides these, the members of the firm frequently take short trips and for the past two years, one or other of them have made a trans-atlantic voyage in the interests of their business.

The practical value of this firm to Wellington consists largely in the following facts: They employ at present twenty-two of our citizens and pay them in cash about $1100 per month, which is, or ought to be, largely spent in our own town. More than this, we are told by the gentlemen of this firm that the outlook for 1899 is excellent, and we sincerely hope their anticipations may be fully realized.

Headache for Forty Years.

For forty years I suffered with sick headache. About a year ago, I began using Celery King. The result was gratifying and surprising, my headaches leaving at once. The headaches began to return every seventh day, but, thanks to Celery King, I have had but one headache in the last eleven months. I know what has cured me will help others.—Mrs. J. D. Van Keuren, Sangerites, N. Y. Celery King for the nerves, stomach, liver, and kidneys is sold in 50c and 25c packages by E. W. Adams, Wellington, and Firestone & Sweet, Spencer.

ies, and only prosperous people buy luxuries.

It is the opinion of shrewd political observers that the correspondence between Mr. Bryan and Mr. Belmont, president of Croker's democratic club, in which Mr. Bryan read Mr. Belmont and all other democrats who botch in 1896 and have failed to publicly announce since then that they will support the Chicago platform, if it be readopted next year, out of the democratic party, will result in accentuating the line between the dollar democrats and the ten dollar democrats, as the silver and gold democrats are now called, and in increasing the certainty of republican success. A prominent New York democrat said of Mr. Bryan's letter: "It is perhaps a play to the galleries—an old Bryan trick—a bid for the continued support of the South and West by this act of voluntary antagonism to the east. It seems to me a clumsy performance and how it will make the Nebraska man friends anywhere is hard to understand. He could have sent a courteous declination without any insulting allusion; nobody but the most fanatical will commend his action."

Brigadier Gen. Corbin, who as adjutant general of the army was on duty eighteen hours a day during the war and who has been on duty constantly, except one day, since, gives the following as his reason for not accepting the commission of major-general of volunteers, which was tendered him, last summer, by the president: "The number of major-generals was limited, and we need every one of them in the field. I could not stand in the way of any man who is in the fighting line. I wanted them to have their promotions first."
