

THE CARUTHERS AFFAIR

By WILL HARRIS

SYNOPSIS

Minard Hendricks, great detective, just returned from Boston, finds awaiting him an assigned typewritten letter directing him to apartments in Palace hotel, where he will find remains of Mr. Weldon Caruthers—currently reported for past two weeks to be out of town. Detective goes to contact letter with attention on his own life some time previous. Goes with friend, Dr. Lamplin, to investigate. Upon search of Caruthers' apartments remains of victim are found in a vase. Hand bears marks of finger nails manured by sharp points. Lamplin recalls reports of a row between Caruthers and Arthur Gielow, both suitors for hand of Dorothy Huntington, who is betrothed to several million should she marry. Caruthers, undoubtedly in case of Caruthers' death. Later that night Hendricks and Lamplin call at home of Miss Huntington. Dorothy shows detective typewritten letter, which was an invitation for Hendricks and Lamplin to occupy with Count Bantini, Italian nobleman, his box at horse show, business. The receipt Gielow had expressed before murder intense hatred for Caruthers and believes him guilty, yet decides to help him, and with her aunt goes to investigate Gielow has fled. His servant, Henri, tells of overhearing confession to Bantini. Henri thought his master insane. Hendricks, concealed in room over her head, listens interested in occult researches who had helped him in much previous detective work, and located in old colonial mansion among the palisades. Dr. Lamplin is summoned by Hendricks, who has been shot. Bullet is removed and detective warned not to leave his room. Hendricks' unknown enemy had tried to choke him in his sleep. Detective had washed Jack in time, but was wounded by pistol shot before he could reach assistant's mind. Hendricks call for a crematory employe, who confirms the supposition that ashes found were those of human body. Miss Huntington receives letter from Gielow in his own handwriting postmarked at Charleston, S. C., telling of his crime and flight. Novel anthropologist examines handwriting of this letter and says it is genuine. During a call on Sergt. Denham, detective of police department, Hendricks comes into possession of cuff with words written in blood over a name to effect that he was innocent, starting and continued. Going to Gielow's studio, Henri identifies cuff as his master's. Henri tells of strange influence Bantini had over Gielow. Hendricks comes to conclusion Bantini was the murderer, and through hypnotism makes Gielow confess both in person to Henri and by letters to others. Hendricks and Lamplin go to Kola's retreat. Kola tells them Gielow is dead, and to turn to his supernatural powers claims to go to detective's home in his astral body and bring back a Bible, which is handed to Hendricks amidst a lot of occult haberdashery. Hendricks' detective an attempt is to be made on his life. Reaching home, Hendricks learns how nearly Kola deceived him when his mother tells of disappearance of Bible. Kola's calls during his absence in Boston. Coming now to Gielow's experiences, the story goes back to night of murder. Bantini by his strange power abducted the victim. Gielow wakes in narrow cell and realizes he is starving. Bantini tells his prisoner he is in his power, and during three days of unconsciousness he had been used to write letters to Miss Huntington and the police. The imprisoned wretches manage to loosen a stone inside of cell. Through this opening he decides to send a message to the outside world.

CHAPTER XVIII.—CONTINUED.

Gielow did not flinch as he thrust the knife blade into his wrist. Compared to the agony of his whole being, the slight pricking sensation was nothing. Then, when the blood had flowed out and stood in a big drop on his left wrist, he began to write his message with the knife blade. It was difficult work even for a skillful artist, for his hand shook as if with ague, and his strength was almost gone. Here is what he wrote, economizing in words, for his space was limited:

"Innocent. Confined by C. Bantini I know not where. Send help. Starving. Talk to police. Write name of Gielow."

Then, rolling the cuff tightly and tying it with the thread, he hurriedly pushed it into the crack. He was afraid the couple would rise and walk on. According to his calculations the rod lodged just beyond the reach of his fingers and then he set about to complete his operation.

He tore his handkerchief into shreds and tying the ends together he made a long string. Then holding pieces of straw to his hand he tightly wrapped them with the strings till he had constructed a rod of straw about four feet in length. With this, after many failures, he finally pushed the cuff through the crevice. He saw it fall from the rock, strike something and leap into the sunlight space. For an instant it was seen to sight, and then he saw it roll into the roadway about 20 feet from the park on the bench. They happened to be gazing into each other's eyes and did not see it. Then a carriage, the driver of which wore a high hat and a blue coat with brass buttons, whirled past. The hoofs of the horses knocked the blood-stained messenger out of Gielow's sight.

His heart sank within him. Tremblingly he took off his remaining cuff, but the blood drop had become smeared and dry on his wrist, and his right hand shook pitifully.

"It's no use," he said, with a groan. Again he peered through the crevice. The sun seemed to be going down. The lovers had risen, and, arm in arm, were strolling away. For a few moments Gielow lay motionless on the straw, then he tried to replace the wedge of stone to hide the opening from Bantini, but he was so weak that it fell from his nerveless fingers.

All at once it grew dark about him. He felt as if he were being tossed on the bosom of an angry sea.

HE BEGAN TO WRITE HIS MESSAGE WITH HIS KNIFE BLADE.

that similarity occurred to me. Next my glance wandered to his long finger nails, and their gruesome points, and Bantini popped into my head again. Then what should enter my mind but that it was Kola himself who had often used that foreign idiom, contained in the letter to Miss Huntington. And now we know that Kola is a hypnotist of rare ability, and so is Bantini!"

An exclamation of wonder escaped the doctor's lips.

"Do you really think Kola and Bantini are identical?"

"Oh, no," laughed the detective. "If I did I should act at once. The similarities are there, but they may mean nothing at all."

"At this juncture the door opened, and Sergt. Denham entered. His whole manner was that of a man who had suddenly met with great disappointment.

"Good morning, Capt. Hendricks," said he, respectfully, and he made a careless sign of greeting to Dr. Lamplin.

"Oh, it's Capt. Hendricks, eh?" said the detective, lightly. "What has come over the spirit of your dream, my boy?"

The sergeant sat down awkwardly. A flush was rising in his cheeks.

"I have come to beg for advice," he said. "As you are not concerned in the Caruthers affair, I thought you might be willing to give me a pointer. You see, the chief trusted the whole business to me, and I was so confident of the reliability of certain information I had—"

"In the shape of a letter from Gielow!" broke in Hendricks, smiling broadly.

"Yes," admitted the sergeant, in astonishment. "How did you know?"

"A letter that every known expert declared was no forgery?"

"Yes."

"Well, go on, I'm listening."

For a moment the young officer hung his head in embarrassment, then he pulled himself together and concluded:

"But in following the letter up we met with nothing but failure. Mr. Hendricks, I am at the end of my rope, and it really looks as if I am going to be set back. Capt. Melius is furious at me."

"Ah, that would be too bad!" said Hendricks, with a touch of genuine sympathy in his voice. "You have the ingredients of success in your make-up, and, above all, you have enthusiasm, which, when it is well curbed, is the main thing. Your egotism will rub off. I see exactly how the land lies, and I want to help you. In fact, I will, if you will join me."

"I'll do anything in God's world you suggest, Mr. Hendricks," said the sergeant, warmly, a hopeful note coming into his voice.

Sherman Does Not Want the Office.

Cincinnati, May 9.—Harry B. Probasco, formerly United States district attorney here and a relative of John Sherman, has made public the following letter from the ex-secretary, in reference to the rumors that he would be a candidate for governor of Ohio: "You are right in supposing that I have no thought of being nominated or elected governor of Ohio. I do not want the office and could not accept it in my present condition of health and strength. No man at the age of 76 ought to undertake the performance of the many details of an executive office. You are authorized to say that I am not a candidate for governor."

Jones Announces His Candidacy.

Toledo, May 9.—Mayor Jones last night announced that he will be a candidate for governor at the next republican state convention. Reynolds Vold, the mayor's private secretary, has filed with the board of elections a specimen ballot to be used at the republican primary, containing a list of 24 delegates to be voted for to represent Lucas county at the coming state convention. The specimen ballot is headed "Jones for governor" and carries a picture of the mayor. The list of names are several who were managers in Mayor Jones' recent campaign. All the men on the Jones ticket are pledged to support him at the convention.

Gen. Force Is Dead.

Sandusky, May 9.—Gen. Manning F. Force, commandant of the Ohio Soldiers' Home, died at the home near this city Monday afternoon. He entered the army in 1861 as lieutenant colonel, was promoted to brigadier general in 1863 and was brevetted major general in 1864. He was appointed colonel of regulars in 1865 and declined. He served on the bench over 20 years at Cincinnati as judge of the superior court. He was frequently mentioned for governor, member of congress and senator, but declined all.

In a Money Making Field.

Bellaire, May 9.—The Jackson Ridge oil field in Monroe county, a short distance south of Woodsfield, O., has far more money-making wells than the public has any idea of. The daily production is about 2,000 barrels, and is on the increase. Half of this production is estimated to belong to one owner, the rest is divided among the men interested with him. In this field there are 17 producing wells, a few being gas producers.

Out of the Combine.

Cincinnati, May 9.—James Levy & Bro. have refused to accept payment of $1,200,000 for their plant from the Kentucky Distillers and Warehouse Co. under what the latter claims to be an option agreement and this big firm is now out of the combine. The firm claimed the right to continue making and selling whisky after being notified that their option had been accepted.

A Desperate Fight at Shelby.

Shelby, May 9.—Twenty tramps engaged in a drunken fight near the depot here last evening and two of them were badly shot. James O'Brien, who gave the shot with a .45 Clark street, New York City, is shot near the heart and in the arm and leg. He says he is a laborer and was once a printer and reporter. The other man, Gaston Frady, of Indianapolis, is shot in the back.

Adopted a Wage Scale.

Columbus, May 6.—The National Protective Association of Tin Plate Workers adjourned Friday, having adopted a scale which is being carefully guarded by the public. The association selected Elwood, Ind., for permanent headquarters and decided to hold the next convention in Pittsburg.

Death of Judge Lawrence.

Bellefontaine, May 9.—Judge William Lawrence, of this city, ex-comptroller of the treasury of the United States, president of the National Association of Wool Growers, and prominent in various business enterprises as well as in politics, died at Kenton Monday. He was 80 years of age.

Bice Is Champion.

Zanesville, May 9.—The mounted broadsword contest between Duncan C. Ross, of New York, and Capt. W. S. Bice, of Columbus, O., at the fair grounds here last night, for the championship of the world was awarded to Bice.

To Be a State Event.

Toledo, May 9.—The funeral of George B. Meek, the first Ohio soldier killed in the Spanish war, will be held at Clyde on the 14th. It will be made a state affair by Senator Foraker who will deliver the address.

Is Moving Out of Toledo.

Toledo, May 8.—The Standard Oil Co. is moving its Toledo business to South Bend, Ind. It is the ultimate intention of the Standard to close the Toledo office. Ten men have already been transferred.

Electric Railroad to Be Built.

Canal Dover, May 8.—An electric railroad between historic Gadenhuben, south of here, and Uhrichsville is assured, and after the arrangement of a few details the construction work will begin. The promoters are men from Gadenhuben, who are assisted by some New York capital.

Wages Advanced.

Xenia, May 6.—The Haven & Allison Corning Co. has announced an increase of 10 per cent. in the wages of its employes. This affects two of the largest mills in the country, both located here.

Died from Lockjaw.

Columbus, May 6.—Mrs. Paulus Dotter died Friday of lockjaw, after two weeks of intense suffering. About two weeks ago she accidentally ran a splinter into her right hand. She paid no attention to it until last Wednesday, when she consulted a doctor. She was then suffering from lockjaw.

Killed by a Cat's Bite.

Cleveland, May 6.—Joseph Hackman, a mason contractor, died at Charity hospital Friday from lockjaw, the result of being bitten ten days ago by the family cat. Mr. Hackman was 35 years of age.

I have been suffering from constipation for over five years. Nothing gave me any relief. My feet and legs ached and I was unable to walk. I could not wear shoes on my feet and only a loose dress. I saw Ripans Tablets advertised in our daily paper, bought some and took them as directed. He has taken them about three weeks and there is such a change! I am not constipated any more and I owe it all to Ripans Tablets. I am thirty-seven years old, have no occupation, only my household duties and nursing my sick husband. He has had the dropsy and I am trying Ripans Tablets for him. He feels better and he will take some time, he has been sick so long. You may use my letter and name as you like.

I have been suffering from headaches ever since I was a little girl. I could never ride in a car or go into a crowded place without getting a headache and sick at my stomach. I heard about Ripans Tablets and bought some and took them as directed. I am now well and I owe it all to Ripans Tablets. I am thirty years old, have no occupation, only my household duties and nursing my sick husband. He has had the dropsy and I am trying Ripans Tablets for him. He feels better and he will take some time, he has been sick so long. You may use my letter and name as you like.

My seven-year-old boy suffered with pain in his head, constipation, and complained of his stomach. He could not eat his children of his age and what he had eat did not agree with him. He was thin and of a sallow color. Reading some of the testimonials in favor of Ripans Tablets, I tried them. Ripans Tablets not only relieved but actually cured my youngster, and the headache has disappeared. He is now in good condition and he never complains of his stomach. He is now a red, chubby-faced boy. This wonderful change I attribute to Ripans Tablets. I am satisfied that they will benefit any one from the cradle to old age. If taken according to directions.
