THE temperance wave in Ohio rolls on and on.

THE "drys" are surely doing things to Ohio saloons.

A FLOOD of political oratory is being turned loose in Ohio by the republicans, in the hope, of course, of rolling up the usual big republican majority in this state in presidential years.

GRAPE has been placed on the doors of hundreds of Ohio saloons during the past two weeks, and hundreds more will be similarly decorated before the temperance wave has spent its force.

CONGRESSMAN KENNEDY is on the stump pouring forth republican arguments while his democratic opponent, John J. Whitacre, of Canton is equally active on the hustings. It is a bird of a contest.

It is altogether likely that a move will be made shortly to hold a local option election under the Rose law in Mahoning county. That will mean a most desperate fight with the outcome much in doubt.

FROM now on to the close of the campaign the democrats will have big oratorical guns on the stump in Ohio, among them being John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, Champ Clark of Missouri, Bourke Cochran of New York, Hoke Smith, and Senator Robert Taylor of Tennessee, who fiddled his way into the governorship, afterward being elected senator. A determined effort is being made to carry the state for Bryan.

Washingtonville.

Mr. Warner and family spent Sunday in Garfield.

Mrs. LaRue Frederick of Salem spent Sunday with relatives here.

Some fence was burned on the Cochran farm west of town the past week.

Miss Besse Lewis presides at the piano in a Leetonia moving picture show.

James Ready, wife and mother of Leetonia, spent Sunday at the home of J. N. Paisley.

A. M. Moyer of East Lewis town and Attorney Warren of Leetonia were here Tuesday on legal business.

Mrs. Mary Andrew is visiting since Saturday at the home of her grandson, Joe Andrew, in Cleveland.

Mrs. T. C. Shack of Allegheny, writing to the Weikarts here, says that a 12-pound boy came to their home Wednesday.

J. D. Williams and wife spent the past week in Youngstown and New Castle, attending the funeral of a relative in the latter city Tuesday.

The names of the Columbians and Mahoning county commissioners should be carved upon the new bridge being built at the east end of Main street.

J. N. Paisley received word last week from Columbiana that a baby girl had arrived at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles Orr, on Thursday.

James Atkinson, Jr., has filed suit in common pleas court at Lisbon against Card & Prosser Coal Co. for $10,000 damages for permanent injuries received through falling slate in the Peeries mine last June.

Two cases of suicide in Columbiana county as a result of Saturday's "dry" victory. Edward Hancock of East Liverpool took carbolic acid Sunday night, and Richard Deegan of Leetonia suffocated by gas Tuesday night.

Wm. Fisher will be forced to close his saloon November 2 and remain closed for three weeks as a result of Saturday's vote. Owing to the uncertainty of the vote soon to be had on the Mahoning side, he has not fully decided to build upon the lot which he leased to have bought for that purpose.

Those from here attending the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society, East Ohio Synod, meeting in St. Paul's Lutheran church in Leetonia this week, were Rev. East and wife, Mrs. S. J. Taylor, Mrs. M. S. Simpson, Mrs. Herbert Smalley, Mrs. E. S. Freed, Misses Mary Watson, Grace and Helen Weikart, Mae Hutchinson and Kate Simpson.

Mayor Moore has obtained permission from the graders east of town to dump all rubbish near the new bridge, and all persons who have ash heaps, tin cans, stoves, etc., to dispose of should take advantage of this offer within the next ten days, before grading begins on the west bank of the creek. Those who neglect to take advantage of this offer may not find another dumping place so handy.

New Albany.

Oct. 8—Mrs. Vernon Lodge and Mrs. Emery Standard of Salem visited at Ed Zimmerman's last week.

Miss Besse Godward is attending the Greenford high school.

A number of large autos passed thro' the village Sunday.

Fred Godward, wife and daughter went to East Rochester recently to visit Mrs. Godward's parents and while there the child was taken seriously ill with cholera-infantum. Dr. Hault of Greenford was called Sunday for counsel.

John came this morning.

Messames Jos. and Wm. Weaver of Egypt were here Tuesday.

Mrs. Geo. Godward returned from East Rochester Sunday where she called Friday by the illness of her granddaughter, C. F. Cost and family of Salem visited here Sunday.

Miss Bertha Bonnell is attending high school in Salem.

KNOW HIMSELF TO BE A POET.

Whittier Came Early to Recognition of His Genius.

John Greenleaf Whittier used to declare that at a very early age he knew himself to be a real poet, and would often relate, writes Mrs. Abbey J. Woodman in her "Reminiscences of Whittier's Life at Oak Knoll," an amusing experience when he was a student at the Haverhill academy.

Mrs. Woodman gives it in Mr. Whittier's own words: "There is but little doubt that at the age of 20 I felt myself to be a real poet, somewhat unknown to fame, but sufficiently acknowledged as such by the committee directing the dedication of the new academy for them to invite me to read an original poem on that occasion."

"Robert Dinsmore, an old Scotch farmer in Windham, and a writer of rhyme and doggerel verse, was also invited to do the same. The honor of leading the procession which marched through the streets of Haverhill to the new academy was given to the two poets.

"I often laugh when I recall the scene to memory. The hale old Scotchman, short and plethoric, his uncertain step and bearing slightly exhilarated by a generous draught of old Scotch whisky before we started, was somewhat of a contrast to me, a rather tall and slender Quaker lad, in Quaker hat and coat, and half frightened out of my wits by the honor heaped upon me.

"However, we delivered our poems all right; and I am thinking that must have been the time when I was dubbed 'The Quaker Poet.'—Youth's Companion.

WORLD'S MOST EXCLUSIVE CLUB.

English Joy That There Is One Door Riches Won't Unlock.

The Royal Yacht Squadron is probably the most exclusive club in existence, says the Gentlewoman, and wonderful to relate in this plutocratic age money is quite powerless to unlock the charmed portals of the castle.

One or two millionaires with splendid yachts have tried in vain to pass the ordeal of the periodical ballot, while men of no fortune or only just enough to defray the upkeep of a small yacht have been elected without an idea of a blackball.

The only apparent qualification is that the candidate must possess a yacht of his own; but there are other qualifications much more difficult of attainment by the man of money, and it is just here that the question of blackballing comes in. It must be owned, rather refreshingly.

For really one had almost said that there is no social "holly hollies" into which he who is rich cannot penetrate, until one recalls the pleasant circle of gentlemen who go to make up the Royal Yacht Squadron. There is, one remembers gratefully, just one institution left to which the mystic words "I am rich" do not have the effect of an "open sesame."

Nice Work for Hubby.

"I was calling on a friend to-day," said a woman, "when she showed me some beautifully embroidered pillow tops. The work on one of them was particularly fine. It represented a bunch of roses and each flower was shaded. When I had admired the different pieces my friend said: 'Who do you think did that?'"

"Why," I answered, "your daughter, I suppose."

"No," she said, "it's my husband. He is not fond of reading, and when he finishes his newspaper in the evening he takes up embroidery to pass the time."

Camels and Campbells.

An Irishman and a Scotchman were discussing the horrors of living in a prohibition state, when the Irishman remarked:

"Sure, an' you might get used to it after awhile. Ye know they say a camel can go eight days without drinkin'."

"Hoot, mon!" retorted the other, "it's little ye know about the Campbells when ye say that. There is no one of 'em could go eight hours without a drop of something!"

Wh. ended the discussion.

A Formal Occasion.

"At my wife's earnest persuasion," said Mr. Meekton, "I went to the kitchen and notified the cook that she would be expected to interest herself in various household reforms."

"And with what result?"

"She listened with apparent interest and then went ahead and did as she chose. She notified me as if I were a regular notification committee."

Facts in the Case.

"See here," said the tailor, as he headed the young man off, "do you cross the street every time you see me to keep from paying that bill you owe me?"

"I should say not," replied the y. m. "Then why do you do it?" asked the knight of the tape.

"To keep you from asking for it," answered the other.

Legal Language.

"Your act," stated the lawyer, "is declared to be deliberate, intentional, willful, obstinate, evil, anarchistic, wanton, malicious, autocratic and menacing."

"Golly," faltered the teamster who had blocked traffic for a few moments, "better let me go to jail, boss. You can't clear me of all that."—Kansas City Journal.

Hard for Him.

Mr. Jolly—"It's easy to obey the Biblical injunction when one's neighbor is a pretty girl."

Miss Nextdore—"But, surely, it isn't easy for you."

Mr. Jolly—"Oh, yes; I refer to the command to 'love thy neighbor.'"

Miss Nextdore—"Yes, but the command is really 'love thy neighbor as thyself.'"

DESIGNS FOR FANCY WORK.

Tiny Ribbon Roses Are Used to Decorate Exquisite Lingerie.

Though the day of unnatural looking silken roses applied on all sorts of materials has long passed, there is no certain revival of the fashion, to a certain degree, in the reproduction of quaint little full blown blossoms and buds artistically created of nothing more than ribbon.

All sorts of fancy articles for the boudoir and toilet table are ornamented in this fashion—dainty little moire or tapestry covered boxes, baskets, etc., while picture frames and bags are festooned with tiny flowers made of ribbon and trimmed with embroidered medallions in which the applique flower is made either of baby ribbon or wider kinds when the flowers are large.

This French style of needlework has become very popular and even gowns are now being beautified in this way. Delicate chiffon robes are seen with sprays of flowers painted on or embroidered with ribbon work, or perhaps the two will be combined in a clever way with a better effect than by the use of either one alone.

But one of the oddest conceits for the decoration of women is the use of tiny ribbon roses to decorate gaily pieces of lingerie. Nearly all the finest lace inset nightgowns, petticoats, chemises and negligees are embellished with tiny sprays or garlands of exquisite ribbon roses, or perhaps a single pale pink flower or a few buds will be fastened to the yoke of a nightgown or draped across the bust of a dainty negligee.

When used for lingerie decoration the flowers are quite small, few of them measuring more than an inch or a trifle more in diameter. Satin baby ribbon is often used, and with tiny loops of this narrow width some fascinating little buds and blossoms are fashioned. The creator of these ribbon flowers does not always follow nature in her choice of colors.

There is no green used with these dainty flowers. It is not the intention of the ribbon artist to make the ornaments an attempt to imitate accurately real blossoms. On the contrary, the idea is to use ribbon with a dainty effect and in a novel way, and certainly it is a novelty to have festoons of charming little Louis Quinze buds and roses instead of ribbon run in straight bands through beading and ending in bows and loops.

FOR HOLDING THE LAUNDRY.

Bag More Ornamental Than the Common Linen Receptacle.

The ordinary laundry bag, though it may answer its purpose well, is not a very slightly article, and our sketch shows a bag of prettier and more ornamental shape. It is made with a turn-over flap on which a floral design or the words "laundry bag" may be worked, and it is also ornamented with a hem-stitched frill and a bunch of ribbons.

A loop of tape or ribbon can be used for suspending it in its place, and to further improve its appearance the hem-stitched frill may be carried along the edge of the bag, if desired. The size must be regulated by whether it is intended to hold all the personal linen that is to be sent to the laundry, or only small things, such as handkerchiefs, laces, collars, etc.

New Shades for Evening.

Novel shades are conspicuous among elaborate evening robes and wraps. Canard blue is perhaps the most unusual shade for coats, nevertheless it is seen in sumptuous garments that run into hundreds. A glorious wrap of this fascinating blue-green, made on the Rue de la Paix for one of America's well-known society matrons, had for its decoration embroidered peacock's feathers looking as though they were pasted to the shimmering satin. Bronze threads added to the realistic appearance, and the ends of the quills were raised by means of padding. The front of the wrap is surplice, closing at one side, forming a "V" at the neck. The edges from neck to hem are appropriately finished with a band of genuine caasard (duck) feathers plucked from the breast of the bird, where only the rich blue-green shades are found.—New York Press.

Pique Dresses for Cold Weather.

The little daughters of millions this year are exploiting a new fad—the wearing of white pique suits in the coldest weather. These pique suits are without embroidery or trimming—are, in fact, severely tailored and the hem of the skirt is permitted to peep coquettishly beneath the coat. Of course this fashion necessitates a heavy winter, which, by the way, is very often of bright red.

IS IMPROVEMENT ON NATURE

Irrigation Methods Better Than the Natural Rainfall.

And irrigation is better than rain, infinitely better. That also sounds like a paradox, but instead it is almost a truism. What is better—to give a plant just as much and no more water than it needs and just when it needs it; or to parch it or drown it, according to the whim of the clouds? The rain falls upon the just and upon the unjust alike; upon your strawberries that cry for it and upon your sugarbeets that want uninterrupted sunshine. Rain is all right in its place, but it is a very poor substitute for irrigation. Otherwise why would the laws of our cities be sprinkled or irrigated, instead of leaving them to the tender mercy of the clouds? No. Arid lands are more fertile than ordinary lands, and irrigation is better than rain.—Walter E. West, in Success Magazine.

Cured by Fright.

The sick man, who was afflicted with paralysis, heard the station-master's warning and was so frightened that he jumped off the stretcher and ran down the platform. He got to his compartment long before his astonished porters.

He could not give any explanation of what had happened to him except that he felt himself cured and was able to proceed home instead of to Lourdes.

His Reasons for Divorce.

"I happened to be at Sioux Falls one summer," said the actor. "I was very much interested in the men out there who were getting divorces. Why, certainly, the men go there, too. Didn't you know that? They wouldn't believe that I wasn't getting a divorce. Finally I let them have their way and go on thinking it. If you could have heard their reasons for getting divorces!"

"At last they insisted on my telling them why I was getting mine, and I did. I made up a composite case of the most interesting parts of all the cases they had submitted for my consideration, and carried off the laurels. I was the toast of the season while I was there."

Practical Politics.

"I don't see much sense in this spelling reform movement," declared the first legislator. "It ain't practical."

"Why ain't it practical?" demanded the second legislator. "Can't we appoint a commission, with a high-salaried head and 17 minor but lucrative jobs? Of course it's practical."—Kansas City Journal.

Sympathy is Wasted.

Miss Violet Hawk, the novelist, says that people spend their time not in enjoying the red-haired girl, but in explaining her, and that this must be stopped. Mrs. Elinor Glyn thinks that red-haired women are always unhappy, and in the meantime the girl herself calls her hair Auburn and is generally blissfully unconscious that she needs any sympathy.

Nothing Escapes Us—

We leave no stone unturned—we have now "lined up" the styles for fall and winter. We must keep to the front with new ideas. Most men like them—the ladies want them for their fathers, brothers, husbands or children—the dresser must have the newest and latest wear—that's why we keep them on sale—those medium and high grade wearings—for men, boys and children. We invite a look through our departments. We call your attention to the children's novelties in headwear.
