

HOME HAPPENINGS.

The Builders' Aid Society will serve a chicken supper at the M. E. Church Saturday evening Oct. 22.

On Tuesday evening Mrs. L. E. Wetmore very pleasantly entertained the Womans' Club at her home south of the village.

There will be a meeting of Argus Lodge, F. & A. M. this (Friday) evening when degrees will be conferred on several candidates.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church will hold a Halloween social and supper in the church parlor Wednesday evening, Oct. 26.

On account of other gatherings in the village Friday evening the regular monthly meeting of the Men's Club has been postponed.

According to the list of premiums awarded at the recent county fair, published in today's Dispatch, every kind of chicken that ever scratched was exhibited.

Joseph Born, foreman of construction of the mausoleum being built in the village cemetery, has resigned, and James Sheldahl now has entire charge of the work.

Indications are that the road leading north from the village, now being macadamized, will be completed by the middle of winter. This will give a continuous good road from Canfield to Youngstown.

Friday evening, October 21, J. A. Stambaugh of Alliance will give an illustrated lecture in College Chapel under the auspices of the Men's Club, the subject being, 'The Unwritten History of Andersonville Prison.'

Miss Maybelle C. Bardo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bardo of Canfield, and Thomas B. Roath of Youngstown were united in marriage last Saturday evening at the home of the officiating clergyman, Rev. L. C. Hallock, pastor of the Epworth M. E. Church in Youngstown.

The synod of Ohio, comprising the Presbyterian churches of the state, is holding its annual meeting in Wooster this week. Dr. Campbell is one of six elders from Mahoning Presbytery in attendance, while Rev. Robert E. Pugh is sitting on the home mission committee of the same body.

Mrs. Rebecca Ague died last Sunday at the county infirmary, aged 92 years. The deceased was born and reared in Boardman. She had no near living relatives. The remains were taken to the Boardman M. E. Church where funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon. Burial in the Boardman cemetery.

Attorney W. C. Manchester of Detroit, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Manchester of Canfield, has been elected secretary of the republican congressional committee of the sixth Michigan district, better known as Sam Smith's district. Since locating in Detroit, Mr. Manchester has been active in republican politics and has been called to many places of honor and trust.

A meeting of the board of county fair managers was held last Saturday at the fair grounds and labor and other bills aggregating more than one thousand dollars were ordered paid. The members whose terms expire were nominated for re-election at the November meeting as follows: Ewing Gault, Jackson; A. C. Russell, Ashtabuta; C. C. Bowman, Ellsworth; E. E. Forney, Beaver.

When it comes to killing a skunk D. C. Dickson understands how to do it and do it right. No skunk has ever been known to escape his unerring aim. He discovered a cat of the woods sporting about the back yard of his Court street residence last Saturday night and he began pumping lead into it, never ceasing until the hide was so full of shot that it would make a charge for a 12-inch battleship gun.

W. C. Wilson, carrier on rural route No. 2 out of Canfield, was taken seriously sick while making his rounds Tuesday afternoon and Dr. Clark, who was called, had him taken to the Youngstown City hospital. Mr. Wilson suffered intense pain and an operation was found necessary early Wednesday morning. It was found that his stomach was punctured. While his condition is serious indications are that he will recover.

There will be no mourning if the monster traction engine used the past season for hauling materials for the Canfield-Corcoran macadam road never appears in the village again. Eight stone and concrete crosswalks and several plank crossings have been put to the bad by the grind of the big wheels. The South Shore Construction Co. gave an indemnifying bond of $500 to repair all damage done by it to the village roads as well as crossings it considered the bond will surely not more than cover the damage. The road east of the village, in places, has been almost impassable at times by reason of the great holes dug by the big engine and the heavily loaded wagons it hauled.

John H. Sanzenbacher died last Sunday afternoon at his home in Youngstown of jaundice and a complication of disease. Deceased was a son of John Sanzenbacher of Canfield and was born in Canfield Dec. 16, 1863, consequently was nearly 47 years of age. He was married at Laetonia June 6, 1885, to Miss Jessie Lodge, who, with three children, Raymond, Hazel and Vernon, survives him. He also leaves his aged father, two sisters and two brothers, Mrs. J. E. Neff, Mrs. Callahan, Charles and Luther Sanzenbacher, all of Canfield. Funeral services were held Wednesday morning and the remains were brought to Canfield and placed in the Sanzenbacher family vault in the village cemetery.

Mrs. Catherine L. Lynn, widow of the late Hiram H. Lynn of Canfield, died last Thursday in the Youngstown City hospital after a long illness with heart trouble. Deceased was born in Kyle's Corners Jan. 12, 1823, consequently was in the 87th year of her age. Her maiden name was Kyle. She was married about 30 years ago to Mr. Lynn, who passed away quite a number of years since. Besides three stepchildren she leaves the following brothers and sisters: William Kyle and Mrs. Mary Osborn of Canfield, L. T. and Ira M. Kyle of Kyle's Corners, and Mrs. Manda Knox of Youngstown. Deceased was a member of the Christian church. Funeral services were held Monday morning and the remains were laid to rest in Zion cemetery, north of Canfield.

A daughter was born Tuesday morning to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harrington.

NORMAL NOTES.

Friday morning in College Chapel Mr. Abe Wiesner gave a most instructive and entertaining hour's talk on the work of the "Weather Bureau" taking his subject "Winds." "Every wind," he said, "is part of a whirlwind, varying in size from the small one seen on the street corner to the great cyclone which is from 500 to 1,500 miles in diameter."

He declared that the tornado which does not exceed 2,500 feet in diameter and generally only about 500 feet in diameter, yet which has the greatest rotary velocity, is the most destructive of all storm winds. Second to it in this respect is the hurricane known in the China seas as the typhoon, which has a diameter of 50 to 200 miles and finally the one having the greatest diameter, 500 to 1,500 miles, and known as the cyclone is the general storm wind of the United States. Mr. Wiesner showed us that this whirling motion is caused largely by the earth's rotation and is analogous to the motion of water as it escapes from a funnel.

Mr. Wiesner went on to say that old settlers claim the weather is not so cold now as it used to be. He stated that the statistical records kept for several decades show that the weather has varied but a fraction of a degree. The reason is this: Fifty years ago, people lived largely out of doors, did not have felt boots, and such warm clothing, thus making one notice the cold more. When it rained the pioneer must take a drenching. Now we put on a rubber coat and laugh at the drizzle. A long drive years ago froze one's feet. Now we wear felt boots and take along a charcoal stove. He also stated that the laws of storms are as fixed as the laws of the planets. Seems incredible to the uninitiated, but an authority like Mr. Wiesner ought to make even the greatest skeptic think twice before refuting him.

We feel certain that the weather map and report which we receive daily will be of a great deal more interest from now on after such a lucid explanation. The hour was well spent.

At 9:45 Chapel exercises we had the good fortune to have for our leader, J. A. Brady of Cleveland, Ohio, general manager of the Midland Mutual Life Insurance Co. Mr. Brady is a graduate of Allegheny College, Meadville, where our own Prof. Lee is at present engaged in teaching chemistry. He has had several years of very successful work for the North-western Mutual and changed to the Midland three years ago. He is an expert in all matters, but as clean as a ribbon. He exemplifies the Christian business man and talked to our students along this line. He said the U. S. has made marvelous progress industrially, morally, and spiritually. But he also stated and produced examples to show that the spiritual side has not been keeping pace with the other two. He showed the place the rich man holds, and that he is an economic necessity. He showed that morals are cleaner in public life today than they were in the days of Henry Clay. And he puts the proposition that the United States has the tremendous problem of Christianizing herself. As a perpetual democracy she must do it.

Well, Sid has come and "went." He brought us a very delightful evening, devoted to the study of our great literary characters. From the popular standpoint he did not please so well. But we must not forget that many of the characters which he portrayed were as true as the platform artist can make them. His characters, many of them were humorous. His "Lincoln" brought loud applause, although he said but a few words.

On Nov. 19, Albert E. Wigram, in his inimitable lecture, Dollars and Sense, will be here. He is an orator of the type of Senator Beveridge. In fact, the boys of the Lyceum call him Beveridge. He has a message for you. Do not miss it.

Laston Frederiek is confined to his home with some kind of fever, we are told. We hope he will soon be with us again. Harry Bardsley has been unable to attend school for two weeks on account of illness.

The Sophomores and Juniors have issued a challenge to the rest of the school to play a game of football on the Athletic grounds as soon as the new football arrives. The welders of the nimble toe are out practicing setting in readiness for the event. In case the event is pulled off a large crowd of deeply interested rooters will be in evidence.

James Jones came to the scenes of his childhood and honored us by leading chapel Monday morning. "Jim" gave some quaint advice on what education "aint," how to get an education, etc. He defined education as a drawing out process. He used himself as an example of the "drawing out" but didn't know whether you would call it education. He stated that as was the custom in all professions he would be followed by Prof. Thomas Ankeny, another of Canfield's famous musicians. Come again, James. We are glad to have you.

The trustees of the Normal met and had one of the best meetings since the board was organized. An unusually large amount of business was transacted yet the meeting was over at 9:30. The order for this year's coal was given to John Delfs & Sons. The president of the faculty made his annual report to the board which will be reduced to writing and sent to each member of the board of trustees.

It is a sight for sore eyes to see the students sitting on the library shelves. Discipline them. Hardly. They can't help it. When the matter was brought to the attention of the board, they acted wisely and ordered two dozen chairs to meet the emergency.

J. A. Brady of Cleveland signed the agreement and note and by so doing has become a member of the board of corporators and trustees. Mr. Brady is deeply interested in the small college and will give us a boost wherever he can, so you may count on that. He thinks we can raise an endowment! What do you think?

HOW SHE DODGED BORROWER

Cleveland Woman's Clever Method of Avoiding a "Touch" Without Giving Any Offense.

Men have something to learn from women in the art of warding off "touchers" for coin. Women respond to such requests once in about every thousand cases, but they are scientific in their refusals. A woman with a reputation as a borrower turned up at the home of one of her friends the other morning with a most disconcerting story about a persistent and threatening dressmaker, and the usual request for the loan—"pay it back tomorrow, certain"—of $5.

"Why, my dear, certainly," was the pleasant response to her carefully rehearsed little yarn; "you poor thing, you! Just wait till I run upstairs and get my purse."

She ran upstairs. The male head of the house happened to be in the room where she kept her purse. He saw her slip the purse out of a chiffonier drawer and deliberately remove a wad of bills from it, leaving about thirty-seven cents in silver and copper in the change receptacle. The man was mean enough to lean over the stairs railing when his wife went downstairs to the parlor with her flattened pocketbook in her hand.

"Oh, I'm so sorry, dearie," he heard her say, "but I really thought I had the money. I find, though, that Frank, as usual, has been at my purse—I heard him say something about setting a plumber's bill last night when I was half asleep—and the mean thing has only left me enough for carfare. Too bad! Of course, you know, if I had it,"—and so on.

"Don't," said a man of experience, "tell people your age."

"I don't mean by that that you want to lie about it; indeed you want to tell the truth if it's necessary; but what I mean is don't go around blabbing about it. Keep it to yourself."

"You meet men who are proud of their age, men of mature years but who are still strong and rugged and able, that like to tell how old they really are, and then you meet youthful men who are getting on in the world and doing fine things that like to tell how young they really are. Mistakes both."

"The mature man may really look years younger than he is, and if he does that is to his great advantage, for the majority of people don't like old men around; they want young blood. And as for the young man who may look older but who boasts of his youth, that's a mistake because people don't like men too young; they want men seasoned with at least some age and experience."

"It's a foolish man, however able he may be, who goes around talking about how old or how young he really is. This can't do him any good and it may do him harm. It is a wise man, whatever his age, that doesn't talk about his age at all, but let's his work do the talking."

The Right to Die.

The man who has killed himself on Monday would on Saturday have wanted to live; but one only kills one's self once. Man's life is made up of past, present and future; so life must be a burden to him, if no life in the past, the present and the future, at least for the present and the future. If it is only a burden for the present he is sacrificing the future. The evils of one day do not authorize him to sacrifice the life that is ahead of him. Only the man whose life is unhappy and who could have the certainty—which is impossible—that it will always be so, and that conditions and desires will never change, either through modification of circumstances and situations or through habit and the lapse of time—which again is impossible—only this man would have the right to kill himself.—Napoleon Bonaparte.

Chinese Traits.

The Chinese are orderly, law abiding and well behaved; they have a strong sense of right and justice—are fair minded; they are reliable in commercial dealings—pay their debts and keep their agreements, whether verbal or written; they are dutiful to parents, fond of children and mindful of etiquette and punctilious about returning courtesies or favors; they are respectful to elders and superiors; they honor and respect character and intellectual ability, and do not recognize an aristocracy of wealth. This list might be largely extended, but it is enough to show what I have undertaken to show—that China has not by any means to seek abroad all the requisites for national greatness, and popular welfare; some of the most important are here already.—Address to Students at St. John's College, Shanghai.

The Truth Will Out.

Rich Banker (to his daughter's suitor)—Don't talk so much of love; you know that what really attracts you is the $0,000 marks that my daughter will get when she marries. Suitor—What! No more than that?—Flegende Blatter.

Sense of Superiority.

"Bliggins seems exceedingly self-confident."

"Yes, he has just bought an encyclopaedia and feels that if he doesn't know more than any of the rest of us he can whenever he chooses."

Pennsylvania Snake Story.

The latest snake story comes from Elliptsburg, Perry county. Samuel Poose had been missing turkey eggs for some time and finally the china nest egg disappeared. A few days ago an old tree was cut down, destroying the home of a six-foot black snake, which was killed. A post mortem resulted in the discovery of the nest egg.—Philadelphia Record.

Capt. Bogardus again hits the Bull's Eye.

This world famous rifle shot who holds the championship record of 100 zepons in 100 consecutive shots is living at Lincoln, Ill. Recently interviewed, he says—"I suffered a long time with kidney and bladder trouble and used several well known kidney medicines, all of which gave me no relief until I started taking Foley Kidney Pills. Before I used Foley Kidney Pills I had severe backaches and pains in my kidneys with suppression and a cloudy voiding. On arising in the morning I would get dull headaches. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent better. I am never bothered with kidneys or bladder and gain feel like my own self." F. A. Morris.
