I'd like to be the sort of friend that you have been to me. I'd like to be the help that you've been family. I'd like to mean as much to you each minute of the day. As you have many old friends of mine, to me along the way. I'd like to do the big things and the splendid things for you. To have you bring me out your skies and leave them only blue. I'd like to say the kindly things that I so love to hear. And feel that I could rouse your soul the way that mine you've stirred. I'd like to give you back the joy that you have given me. Yet that were wishing you a need I hope will never be. I'd like to make you feel as rich as I, who travel on undaunted in the darkest hours with you to lean upon. I'm wishing at this Christmas time that I could but repay. A portion of the gladness that you've strewn along my way. And could I have one with this year, this only would it be. I'd like to make a friend that you have been to me. —Detroit Free Press.
