

HOME HAPPENINGS

The macadam road west of Canfield is being widened and resurfaced. Quite a number of people from this neighborhood are attending the Warren fair. Blackberries are selling in the local market at from a shilling to eighteen cents a quart. The road between Cornersburg and Lynn street is closed while resurfacing is in progress. Many automobile touring parties have passed through the village this week, some of them coming from the Pacific coast. The 39th annual reunion of the Lynn family will be held Wednesday, Aug. 22, at the residence of Miss Lillie Wehr, 1 1/2 miles east of Canfield. No contract has yet been awarded to carry the mail between the Canfield postoffice and the Erie railroad station, temporary service now being employed. Every property owner should take pride in beautifying his home by caring for the lawn and keeping the shade trees neatly trimmed around the lower branches. Bids to carry the mail between Canfield and Youngstown by motor vehicle close August 21. Prospective bidders can secure necessary blanks at the local postoffice. Most macadam and dirt roads were very dusty last Sunday but that seemingly kept no one owning an automobile at home, highways being lined with machines all day. The annual reunion of the Dickson family, held Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McMaster in Dublin, was largely attended and all present greatly enjoyed the occasion. A good rain came Monday afternoon, the first this section had for some time, and with it came a gale that leveled corn and oat fields and tore limbs from fruit and shade trees. Andrew M. Harroff and Anna Riley of Youngstown were united in marriage a few days since. Mr. Harroff is a native of Canfield and long resided here. A host of friends extend congratulations. C. H. Edwards of Washington, D. C., who is here with his two little sons visiting Mrs. Nettie Edwards and other relatives, sang at the services in the Presbyterian church last Sunday morning and greatly pleased all who heard him. A freak pig was born Monday on W. E. Fink's farm northeast of the village. The animal had two perfectly formed bodies and only one head. Dr. A. B. Detchon says that in all his experience he never saw anything like it. Piggy did not live. Blaine Bowman, son of J. Brady Bowman formerly of Canfield, now dean of Mt. Union college, leaves Ft. Benjamin Harrison, where he trained three months in the officers' reserve corps, with honors, having been appointed a second lieutenant. While Carl Follweiler was at work last week at the Wehr saw mill in W. E. Fink's woods, northeast of town, his axe glanced and cut an ugly gash in his right leg. He was given attention by Dr. Campbell and is reported to be getting along all right. A shepherd dog that gave evidence of suffering with rabies roamed over farms on Lynn street last week and it may have bitten other dogs in live stock before it was shot. A. S. Lynn feared his dog might have been bitten and Wednesday had the animal killed. Several pairs of red birds have been noticed in the village the past week. For some years these feathered beauties have wintered in the village, becoming very tame. From the number now in evidence their cheery notes will be much heard when the chilly breezes come again. Preparatory to resurfacing the macadam road north of town the water trough near Zion Reformat, which is supplied by a spring on the Barger farm, has been moved south several rods and is now located so that surplus water will run into a sewer instead of across the road. Bids were opened Thursday in the office of the State Highway Commissioner in Columbus Thursday for the construction of two macadam roads in Canfield township, one north and one west of the village. When these roads are built there will be continuous improved highways between Canfield and Austintown and Canfield and Ellsworth. The nineteenth annual reunion of the Coy family was held Saturday at Ellsworth lake, with an attendance of about 100. The officers for next year are: President, E. E. Zimmerman, of Youngstown; vice president, William Dressel; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Joseph Kendig. The reunion will be held at the same place next year on the second Saturday in August. Donald Kirk of Baltimore, Md., and Miss Ruth McMaster, an accomplished young woman of Mobile, Ala., were united in marriage at Mobile Monday by Rev. W. H. Venters of St. Stephens Road Methodist church in the presence of a few close friends. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Kirk of Axis, Ala., formerly of Rosemont, and is well and favorably known in Canfield where he attended the normal college. The couple will reside in Baltimore where the groom has a fine position. Prior to T. Jones, who resides on North Broad street, is 81 years of age but still has the go of many men half his years. He had a two-acre field of oats in which it was impossible to take a reaper, but Mr. Jones was equal to the occasion. He hunted up a cradle he used years ago, and tacked the field. And he finished the job within a few days. He had for an assistant Aaron Wiesner, the clothier, who more than a quarter of a century ago learned the trick of binding grain, and to prove that he had not forgotten it and was willing to come to the rescue in time of need bound up the oats with a speed that surprised even himself. Now the crop is ready for the thrasher.

SAMPLES RECEIVED

Miss Lyle Hime representing the Buckley Co. of New York City, has just received the new line of fall samples of dress goods and linens. Will be pleased to show them to all interested at my home on West Main street in Canfield. If you prefer will call with samples at your home. Phone 22.

RALPH R. CROSS Who spent three months at Fort Benjamin Harrison doing intensive training to fit himself for an officer of the new national army, last week received notice that he had been granted a Captain's commission with annual salary of $2,400. Sixteen thousand Ohio men West Virginia men trained for officers and of necessity many were disappointed. Those who were not commissioned may join as enlisted men or join the new course which starts August 27. Captain Cross' host of Canfield friends are delighted with his success. He came to Canfield as principal of the high school and his work was of a high order. In order to enter the officers' reserve training camp it was necessary for him to leave before school closed in June. He will have a short furlough and it is expected will spend several days here with friends.

WHEN MEN GROW OLD.

When does a man get old? What are the signs? Some will say instantly gray hair, baldness, stiff knees, shortness of breath and so on. An Eastern authority rejects all of these as proofs of age and cites doctors to prove that there are two invariable signs—an increasing waistline and a decrease of physical agility. These indications may not show themselves until a man is 40 or 50, but they may manifest themselves at 25. Whatever the time, the man is old. This is rather an arbitrary ruling, but it has some basis, no doubt. There are many men, of course, who, by force of nature rather than any care of their own, retain a spareness of figure until they are far along in life, and usually with this slimmness is activity of movement. But the average man not engaged in active physical labor that keeps superfluous flesh down is extremely likely to develop increased girth in comparatively early years, and whether or not it classes him among the old or even elderly it does take him out of the realm of youth. However youthful a man may feel no one longer mistakes him for a boy when the big waistline comes. No man who takes thought for himself need have that added girth, but the trouble is that he does not think of it until his weight has come and then the remedy calls for treatment that is irksome—exercise, limited diet and all the science of "reducing." The next generation should have no trouble in this direction. Universal military training will teach them the secret of continual grace and slimmness.—Indianapolis Star.

THE UPWARD CLIMB

It isn't what one does But how he goes about it; It is the pull or push that moves, No one succeeds without it. Making's life moving onward, The upward climb is slow; No turning back but forward Is the river's ceaseless flow. The clouds that pass above us Do cast their fullness down; With outstretched wings, they truly bring To earth a priceless crown. A youthfulness that passes on To ripeness and to age; A reaching out without a doubt To rightful heritage. Service and sacrifice today, Living a life sublime, "Know thyself," 'tis best always In nature's house of time. These rocks of civilization Are the people's measuring line; Are character ministrations Eternal and divine. —S. J. Bush, Greenford.

CURING HAM AND BACON.

It is customary on the farm to do all or the greater part of the butchering of the meat supply during the winter and then to resort to some means of preservation to store meat for summer use. Pork is best adapted for this purpose because such a large percentage of the carcass can be disposed of in some such way. The ham, shoulders and sides of bacon can all be cured for summer use in a pickle and then smoked, and if properly done will furnish a very good product. If salt alone be used for brine there is likely to be a little disappointment on the part of the housewife because the meat may come out dry and hard. This can be remedied by using sugar in the brine, preferable brown sugar. In order to retain a natural, rich color in meat a small amount of saltpetre can be added. A large earthen jar is the best vessel for the pickling of meat, but an ordinary barrel, if it be clean will answer the purpose. To make the brine, take eight pounds of salt, four pounds of brown sugar and two ounces of saltpetre for every one hundred pounds of meat. Dissolve these in one gallon of water and then mix with three more gallons of lukewarm water. This brine should be boiled and then allowed to cool, if used in the summer time. Be sure to have all the animal heat out of meat before putting it into brine; otherwise meat is sure to spoil. Allow the meat to remain in the brine for five or six weeks. Remove the meat and smoke over a smouldering fire. Some brands of condensed smoke will answer the purpose. To insure keeping smoked meat in summer it should be wrapped in paper or burlap and hung in a dry place where flies cannot reach it. Some people pack such meat, after wrapping, in dry grain, where it keeps nicely. A compound can be mixed which, when applied to hams or bacon with a brush, will keep them nicely. For one hundred pounds of hams or bacon take: Barytes (barium sulphate) . . . 3 lbs. Glue 06 lbs. Chrome Yellow (lead-chromate) 08 lbs. Flour 4 lbs. Fill a pail half full of water and mix in the flour. Dissolve the chrome in a quart of water in a separate vessel. Add this solution and the glue to the water and flour. Bring the whole to a boil and slowly add the barytes, stirring constantly. Prepare your wash the day before it is used. Stir it frequently when using and paint it on with a brush.

To Save Shoes.

Shoes should be oiled or greased whenever the leather begins to get hard or dry. They should be brushed thoroughly, and then all the dirt and mud that remains washed off with warm water, the excess water being taken off with a dry cloth. While the shoes are still wet and warm, apply the oil or grease with a swab of wool or flannel. It is best to have the oil or grease about as warm as the hand can bear, and it should be rubbed well into the leather, preferably with the palm. If necessary the oil can be applied to dry leather, but it penetrates better when the latter is wet. After treatment, the shoes should be left to dry in a place that is warm, not hot. Castor oil is satisfactory for shoes that are to be polished; for plainer footwear neat's-foot, fish oil, or oleine may be substituted. If it is desired to make the shoes and boots more waterproof, beef tallow may be added to any of the substances at the rate of half a pound of tallow to a pint of oil. The edge of the sole and the welt should be greased thoroughly. Too much grease can not be applied to these parts. A simple method of making the soles more durable, pliable, and water resistant is to swab them occasionally with linsed oil, setting them aside to dry overnight. Many of the common shoe polishes are harmful to leather. All those which contain sulphuric, hydrochloric, or oxalic acids, turpentine, benzine, or other volatile solvents, have a tendency to harden the leather and make it more liable to crack. It is poor economy, too, to wear a shoe with the heel badly worn on one side. This throws the shoe out of shape and may soon result in its ruin. It is also likely to cause temporary injury to the foot.

To Preserve Harness.

Harness leather, like shoes, can not be neglected without injury that lessens its durability. It should be washed and oiled frequently. The washing should be done in tepid water with a neutral soap and a sponge or stiff brush. After rinsing in clean tepid water, the harness is hung up to drain a little while before oiling. For driving harness neat's-foot or castor oil is best, but for heavy harness there may be some tallow in the oil. The applications should be light for driving and liberal for heavy harness. The oil, warm to the hand, is rubbed thoroughly into the leather while it is still wet from the washing. Excess oil which the leather is unable to take up should be removed with a clean, dry cloth.

A Big Churn.

An immense churn, in use in England, can turn out 600 pounds of butter at one time. Sweet clover is adapted to a wider range of climatic conditions than any of the true clovers, and possibly alfalfa.

Summer Complaint

During the hot weather of the summer months some member of almost every family is likely to be troubled with an unnatural looseness of the bowels, and it is of the greatest importance that this be treated promptly, which can only be done when the medicine is kept at hand. Mrs. F. F. Scott, Scottsville, N. Y., states, "I first used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy as much as five years ago. At that time I had a severe attack of summer complaint and was suffering intense pain. One dose relieved me. Other members of my family have since used it with like results."
