WORSE THAN FOOT BINDING

Declaring the now obsolete Chinese custom of foot binding was not as bad as the American custom of wearing corsets, Mrs. Ma Soo, who is in Philadelphia, while her husband is attending the Kuo Min Tong (which means "People's party") convention in that city as chairman, startled residents of that staid city. Mrs. Ma, who wears an American wrist watch, fiscussed American and Chinese clothes with gusto. She said the short skirts are immodest, and much prefers the Chinese trousers for girls. Her daughter, Elee (Elizabeth), is wearing the trousers. Mr. and Mrs. Ma Soo live in New York city.

BIBLE PLAY SURVIVES WAR

Rival of Oberammergau Production Again is Staged in Nancy, France.

Mancy, France.-France's "Passion Play," rivaling that of Oberammergau, has opened its season here after five years of war's interruption. It was given, as it has been since 1904, in the Passion theater under the direction of Pere Pettit, a priest, with his parishloners as the cast. The play, costuming, verse, music and equipment, have been developed and improved since the prewar performances.

There are sixteen scenes. The play runs from 9 a. m. to noon and from 1:80 to 5. Intermissions between the scenes are filled by tableaux, representing, principally, prophetic passages of the Old Testament bearing upon the running story.

The text, where it is not that of the Bible is the verse of various poets, and the music is taken or adapted from various composers

The naturalness of the players, none of whom are professionals, critics said, was heightened by the definess and ingenuity of the staging.

SOUTHERN PORT IS BLOCKADED

Attempt to Land Telegraph Cable at Miami Brings About Queer Situation.

MIAMI IS IN THE LIMELIGHT

United States Warships Blockade United States Port in Time of Peace-Geographic Society Official Tells About Place.

By JOHN OLIVER LA GORCE. Vice-Director National Geographic

Miami, Fla.-Probably for the first time since the stirring days of the Civil war we find a southern port blockaded by United States warships. Happily, however, it is no crisis brought about by an uncompromising demand for the integrity of state rights, but to prevent a cable ship entering the port of Miami, the most southerly city on the Floridian mainland and the third largest in the state, from the standpoint of population.

Nestling beside the beautiful waters of Biscayne bay and separated from the Atlantic only by the peninsula of Miami beach, the city has rapidly come into its own, due to the strategic geographic location it occupies on the South Atlantic coast, and it gives promise to rival Jacksonville as a port of call. When one realizes that one-third of all the grapefruit in the United States comes from the county in which Miami is situated and that one-fifth of all the animal life in America north of Panama is to be found in the waters of the Gulf stream which lave the golden strand of Miami beach in its front yard, and with the great potential agricultural wealth of the Everglades at its back door, small wonder that Miami has grown, as shown by the last census report, 440

Blessed with a year-round climate that rivals the Riviera, with everblowing trade winds that temper the semi-tropical sun, Miami bids fair to take rank with anything of its size in the United States for development along highly profitable and thoroughly businesslike lines.

It is not surprising that a telegraph company desires to bring the Barbados cables into Miami instead of Key West, a hundred odd miles south of this point; but there is some diplomatic hitch about England's control of cables which has caused this pratically unheard of situation of United States war vessels blockading a United states port in the time of peace. Three years ago the money on deposit in the banking institutions of Miami amounted to something like $4,-000,000, in the summer of 1919 to $12,000,000, in March, 1920, to $17,-000,000, and today the amount is upward of $20,000,000. Moreover, in the winter months there are nearly as permanent population it has grown in ten years from 5,471 to 29,549. During New York .- Mrs. C. J. Goff, ST years | many traffic "cops" on its well-paved streets as there are in the national capital, ten times its size.

One of the most important developments of Miami beach is the innuguration and completion of the Miami aquarium and biological laboratory, located at the beach terminus of th wonderful 100-foot causeway stretching three miles in length which spans Biscayne bay, connecting the city with the ocean beaches. As the scientists generally agree that all land animals came originally out of the sea, the study of the myriad forms of life in the tropical seas will, it is believed, develop links between the sea and land animals that will add much to the world's knowledge of this important question. Since the question of food has been accentuated as an aftermath of the world war, the eyes of economists have turned to the warm seas to develop the possibilities of its innumerable fish life. New Species of Tuna.

Just as the shoemaker's child is proverbially without footwear, so it was that there was no aquarium or biological station on the entire Atlantic coast south of Philadelphia, and, consequently, no extensive and adequately equipped and situated institution to which the ichthyologists of the country could make pligrimages and study at first hand the wonders of the fauna of the Gulf stream. Heretofore these specialists in zoology traveled to the aquarium at Naples, Italy, and to other European institutions, simply because there was nowhere in the warm seas surrounding the southern part of our own continent a place where they have the means at hand to pursue their highly important work.

Only a month or two ago, an entirely new species of tuna, one of the most valuable food fishes in the world, was located and described by the director of the Miami aquarium, and if these great fishes of the borsemackerel family can be developed in a commercial way it will have an interesting bearing on the problem of lowering the high cost of living.

WHEAT CROP PEST

That Hessian fly will practically be the only wheat insect to contend with on next year's crop is pointed out by the entomological officials of the state. Last summer's survey showed that the wheat joint worm was not pres-ent in damaging numbers in any part of the state, with the exception a few counties on the western edge This insect has been diminishing in numbers during the past 3 years. The wheat midge or red weevil was found in some localities, but did no seriously infest the wheat in any sec The Hessian fly alone remains the worst insect to combat, but officpoint out that as a general rule the damage from this pest may be controlled by observing the wheat seeding dates which are being annunced station bulletins, daily pers and by county agents.
