

The Geo. L. Fordyce Co.

Youngstown, Ohio, Sept. 22, 1921. RELIABLE ADVERTISING 27-33 West Federal Street

Tie-Back Bungalow Aprons in Two Groups—$1.00 and $1.54

Six hundred tie-back dress aprons fashioned of high grade percales and gingham in checks, stripes and plaids.

These aprons are handsomely trimmed with ric rac braid and buttons. They have double patch pockets and a wide sash. You will agree when you see them that they are an exceptional value and pretty enough for street wear, too.

It often depends on How it is Trimmed

Whether or not your costume is a success, or whether your newest frock is one that you enjoy wearing, will often depend on the little touches that trim it. There are so many pretty ways of trimming the new fall frocks—they are braided, beaded and embroidered. In Fordyce's Art Department you will find embroidery floss, yarn for embroidering and there is a new service—you may have buttons made in many shapes and sizes to trim your fall suit or dress. Buttons being approved.

Only a Very Rich Woman Can Afford to Wear a Shabby Hat—And She Won't

Particularly when she can get a new one at $2.94.

If you have not yet purchased a hat for fall, you will be interested in this showing of attractive hats at a very low price.

There are pretty variations of chin-chin, sailor and jaunty styles in very dashing as well as the more sombre fall shades. Velvet, felt and duvetyne are the materials with unique trims of ribbon and embroidery.

Women Are Surely Making Their Own Fall Coats

And there is an emphatic reason for it. They can this early in the season purchase all wool Bolivias, fancy mixed plaids, Velours and Broadcloths, in all the most wanted colors—handsome fabrics from 54 to 58½ inches wide and regularly up to $6.50, for $2.74 a yard.

We said you could get these cloths, such as you later see made up in costly coats and wraps, in all the wanted shades. That means a host of the prettiest blues, blacks, greys and browns which shade into handsome tones of red and green as well as the intensely practical solid colors. And you will find them in distinctive weaves which just suits them for fall and winter wear.

They are priced at $2.74 a yard because they are shipped to Fordyce's direct from the mills.

Really, It Was the Talk of the Town

Fordyce's can remember years and years gone by (you know Fordyce's remember a great many things about this city), when there were sales just the same as there are now.

And it has always been true of the women of Youngstown and vicinity—they love to make their homes beautiful. A sale of curtains and hangings at Fordyce's would bring them together to talk it all over, and then arm in arm in the early mornings, they would walk (they almost always walked) to town and to Fordyce's to find the values they always expected there.

And so in this sale of curtains and draperies, there are values to please the home-loving women of today—beautiful white curtains and colorful hangings to make the long winter evenings indoors more pleasant.

IS OLD LONDON PLAYGROUND

Hyde Park Has for Centuries Been the Scene of Amusements Dear to Englishmen.

In Hyde park, London, nearly every game and sport known to the English has been practiced at one time or another. In 1550 the French ambassador hunted there with the king. In 1578 the Duke Casimir "killed a barren doe with his piece in Hyde park from among 300 other deer." In the reign of Charles I the park became celebrated for its foot and horse races round the ring, the "dusty mill-horse drive," as Lady Malapert calls it.

"Shall we make a fling to London," wrote Richard Brome, "and see how the spring appears there in the spring gardens; and in Hyde park, to see the races, horse and foot; to hear the lockets crack?"

Racing in the ring was one of the greatest attractions in the park, and some of the meetings were thought to be of great importance, as even among the state papers there is preserved the agreement for a race that took place there. Charles I mixed freely with his subjects on these occasions, but, looking on the royal park as his own possession, he once ordered the ejection of a Berkshire squire, whom he referred to as an "ugly rascal." The "ugly rascal" overheard the phrase. He went away quietly, but vowed vengeance, and gradually smothered the whole of his country against the king. He had, indeed, his revenge, for writ large on Charles I's death warrant was the name of the "ugly rascal."

James Ockerman and family and his father called on Canfield acquaintances Monday evening.

Thomas Weiser, who was recently stricken with paralysis, shows only slight improvement.

H. V. Ellison, linotype operator in the Dispatch office, is spending a week in Niagara Falls, Canada.

Mrs. J. M. Kendig of Pittsburgh is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Leichleiner on West Main street.

J. S. Wilson of Ellsworth and H. C. Heintzelman of Boardman were Canfield visitors last Saturday.

Dr. and Mrs. Daniel Campbell on Tuesday moved into their fine new home on the east side of Broad street.

Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Engler of Clay Center, Kansas, are visiting at the home of his sister, Mrs. Ella N. Lynn, in this township.

Fresh Holstein cow and calf, Holstein fat heifer 3 years old, 3 fat shoats, two heating stoves, Dennis Hawn, Berlin Center, O. Phone 8 on 30. 25-a

Miss Mary Edwards, who spent the summer here with her mother, left Tuesday for Los Angeles, Cal., where for quite a number of years she has taught school.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Force of California, Mrs. Clara Krehl of Girard, Will Schnable, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Martin and sister of Petersburg visited in Canfield Tuesday at the homes of I. Callahan and J. E. Neff.

W. C. Hine of Cleveland spent several days in the village this week. He was accompanied home Thursday by his sisters, Misses Millie and Lois Hine, who will make Cleveland their residence. Many Canfield friends regret their removal.

Hugh Coblentz and family of Enon Valley and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Bare of East Lewis town were Sunday guests of Isiah Paulin and family on Lisbon street. William Ferguson of Canton and Mr. and Mrs. Eli Baird of Youngstown were Monday visitors in the same home.

August and William Paulin of Green township were in Canfield Monday afternoon. The former will have a public sale on what is known as the Kate Roller farm Oct. 29 and soon thereafter will remove to a recently purchased farm near Newcomerstown, Tuscarawas county.

Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Boyer and little daughter of Darlington Heights, Va., are guests of his mother, Mrs. Catherine Boyer, in the southeastern part of Canfield township. Mr. Boyer for a considerable time has been engaged in the lumber business, but reports things along that line as having been very quiet the last year, high freight rates having much to do with curtailing shipments north.

J. A. Kline of Hiattville, Wyoming, arrived here last Saturday with two car loads of cattle, 61 head, from his ranch. He had intended to market the animals in Omaha, Neb., but found the market so much off that he decided to ship them to his farm in this township where they will be kept until the market improves. Mr. Kline will return to Wyoming within a few days.

Just a hundred years ago it is asserted that a certain Mr. Hellgarth, of Erfurt, started the reading and listening world by producing a wonderful and peculiar printing machine. Peculiar in so much that it was able to print eight sheets at a time, and to supply 7,000 copies of each sheet in 12 hours. To produce this astonishing result, a horse and three men were required. What has been accomplished since that time in the printing line would take a volume to tell. What would those three men think of it who were so essential to Mr. Hellgarth's achievement? As for the horse, he would find himself right out of the picture.

A New Orleans society woman is going to China to study the habits of ants, from which she hopes to get valuable ideas pertaining to gynarchical government, or government by women, ants being classified as gynarchists. But our notion of ideal gynarchy is where the gynarch maintains her throne in an American home peopled with about seven fat chubby children, says Houston Post. And American society women would better kill the ants and study gynarchy along that line.

A Boston man who is being sued for running his car over a dog claims that the little beast deliberately sought death. If he was a poodle, we can well believe it, says Houston Post. It must have been that, despairing of ever knowing the joy of being a real dog and hating his job of baby, he became desperate and threw himself under the wheels of juggernaut.

There is entirely too much propaganda. Not one per cent of it is worth the postage it requires to transmit it. Ninety per cent of it is a nuisance. The men who pay for it are bunched, the men who perform the work waste their time, the people who get it are disgusted.

The fact that the Japanese have taken up baseball suggests the possibility that the Yap dispute may be settled by a few games between the all-Japanese champions and the American winners of the post-season games, with, perhaps, Judge Landis to referee.

WHY

Boasting Is Comparatively Unknown in Japan

"To boast," said my Japanese friend, "is, according to our point of view, one of the cardinal sins. We so detest boasting that we go to the other extreme, deprecating anything or anybody connected with ourselves. Thus, when some one says to me, 'Your brother has amassed a great fortune; he must be a man of great ability' I will reply: 'He is not so very able. Perhaps he is only lucky.' As a matter of fact, it happens that my brother is a man of exceptional ability. But I must not say so; it is not good form for me to praise his qualities."

"In speaking of our wives and children we do the same. We say, 'my poor wife' or 'my insignificant wife,' although our wives may fulfill our idea of everything a woman should be."

"Also the reverse of this proposition is true. We sometimes signify our disapproval or dislike of some one by speaking of him in terms of too high praise."

"Among ourselves we fully understand these things. It is merely a code we follow. But I fear that this practice sometimes causes foreigners to misunderstand us. Being themselves accustomed to speak literally, they are inclined to take us so. Also, they are not likely to realize that we are most critical of those for whom we have profound regard. Why should we waste our time or our critical consideration upon persons who mean nothing to us or whom we dislike?"

"Yet, after all," he continued, "with a little twinkle in his eye, 'human nature is much the same the world over. There was an American here in Kioto once who used to forbid his wife and sister to smoke cigarettes, but I observed that he was quick to pass his cigarette case to other ladies.'"—Julian Street in the Century Magazine.

MORE THAN MERELY ORATOR

Will Crooks, English Labor Leader, a Man of Most Remarkable Personality.

Although he had such a wonderful way with him when talking to an audience, the late Mr. Will Crooks was the despair of reporters.

It was impossible to transfer his spoken words into cold print without losing the very thing that captivated his audience—the personality of the man.

It was all personality with Mr. Crooks, and experienced reporters have been known to go to a meeting which Mr. Crooks kept in roars of laughter, and when they had written their report tear it up because it failed to convey any idea of what had happened.

Mr. Crooks was good at telling a story, but even better at repartee. At a recruiting meeting during the war a man tried to interrupt him, and provoked the withering retort, "Yes, I know you. You are one of those who could settle the whole thing in a barber's shop on a Saturday afternoon."

Mr. Crooks' favorite story concerned a woman who bought some flowers from a flower-girl at Piccadilly circus. She was so pleased with them that she promised to buy more on Wednesday, "when my daughter is coming out." "She shall have the best posy, ma'am, that I can make," was the reply. "What has she been in for?"—London Tit-Bits.

Famines in History.

The famines of the ancient world, usually confined to comparatively small countries, such as Egypt or Palestine, were largely due to the smallness of the area depended upon for food. Unfavorable conditions were general and failure in one part usually meant failure throughout the country. And only one or two crops were depended upon.

Another cause of those ancient famines and of some of the famines in Europe during the Middle Ages, was want of means of transportation. The land where famine prevailed might not be more distant than a hundred miles from a district where there was plenty, but it was impossible to carry some of the abundance of the latter to the stricken country, or carry it in sufficient quantities and with sufficient dispatch to succor the needy.

One of the great assurances against want are our means of transportation—the steamship and the railway, which make available the whole world's supply of food.

Why Hats Cause Baldness.

It is necessary for the hair to have sufficient air and good circulation of the blood as it is for the body. Both must "breathe," and both must be supplied with blood to carry off impurities. In the case of hair, the blood is supplied through tiny vessels situated around the roots and any tight band around the upper portion of the head will cause the hair to die and fall out.

The construction of men's hats is such that they press rather tightly upon the forehead and the bulging portion of the head at the back, thus impeding free circulation of the blood.

The connection between a man's hat and his baldness is clear from the fact that there are but few men who are entirely bald. Most of them have a fringe around the ears and the lower portion of the back of the head, parts which are not covered by their hats.

Drink Plenty of Water.
Are you taking at least eight glasses of water a day? It is food and medicine! It is more necessary to drink at least this amount than to comb your hair or wash your face. If our bodies did not have an enormous capacity for taking punishment the terrible perils we daily subject ourselves to if we do not drink enough water would be understood by every man, woman and child.

It can be figured out, mathematically almost, that the lungs give off what amounts to more than two glasses of water a day. The skin gives off that much, or a good deal more, while the kidneys are subject to all sorts of irritations, followed by disease, when the fluids of the body are too heavy with the wastes and breakdown from every one of the billions of body cells. Copious water drinking dilutes these wastes.—Chicago Tribune.

They Had One, Too.
Five-year-old Mary Ellen likes the hospital in their square because when she goes over to visit the nurses they always take her around to see the new babies there. But recently her visits have been fewer than usual as her next-door neighbor has a small incubator which has been hatching fluffy chickens. Interestingly Mary Ellen has been watching him take them from the incubator.

But a few days back Mary Ellen went to the hospital and into the kitchen where they were placing a new style ice box. For a little while she looked at it and then she said to one of the workmen, "They always showed me the babies, but I never did see the incubator before."—Indianapolis News.

Tracing Movement of Birds.
The desire to learn what become of birds that flew south with the approach of cold weather led Audubon, the great American naturalist, to place silver threads about the legs of a brood of plovers. The following spring he was rewarded by having two of the birds return to nest near the haunts where they learned to fly.

This occurred early in the Nineteenth century, and was the first known case in America of bird banding. Since that time this means of securing information on the movements and life history of migratory birds has been used by many societies, and every fall thousands of birds fly south bearing a thousand ring, stamped with a number, about one of its legs.
