BENEFIT OF "LIGHT BATHS"

Rheumatism and Neuritis Yield to Treatment in Which Purple Rays Play Big Part. The usefulness of "sun baths" for health has long been recognized. Unlimited sunshine has much to do with the beneficial effect of a vacation at the seashore. Nowadays this matter is better understood than it used to be, and it is known that the heat rays of the sun have nothing to do with the physical benefit obtained from such exposure. It is the chemical rays in the sunbeams—particularly the ultra-violet rays—that do the good work. Electric light is rich in these rays, and many cures of rheumatism and neuritis have been accomplished by exposing the affected part of the body to a powerful incandescent lamp, its rays concentrated by a hemispherical reflector. For curative purposes physicians have turned to useful account a sort of cabinet lined with such lamps, into which the patient, lying on a padded board, could be slid. The newest method employs a quartz lamp containing mercury vapor, through which the electric current is passed. Quartz has the advantage of being extraordinarily transparent to ultra-violet rays. Such a lamp, made in the shape of a tube of small diameter, can be introduced into the nasal passages for the treatment of catarrh or into the throat for the cure of infected tonsils, thus saving the patient an operation. —Philadelphia Ledger.

WHEN DICKENS ATE 'POSSUM

English Author and Washington Irving Dined With Webster in the National Capital. "I have, sir, just purchased in the market a famous opossum"—so wrote Webster to Irving and the latter's guest, Dickens, in March, 1842—"and I have sent it home to Monica, my cook, who will stuff it with chestnuts and bake it with sweet potatoes in true Virginia style. It will be, sir, a dish fit for the gods. Come, with your friend, and partake." Dickens and Irving did partake in Webster's house, on Connecticut avenue, Washington, and Dickens did not relish the 'possum as much as he relished Webster's company. In a paper on literary aspects of the capital in the Catholic World Margaret B. Downing recalls another British visitor's introduction to a new dainty in Washington. Thackeray, in 1851, ate his first ice cream with Irving at the home of Hamilton Fish, on H street. Not many people realize that Irving lived for nearly five years in Washington. Of course, every one knows that George Bancroft long lived there, and that Whitman and Burroughs were in the civil service during the same Civil war years. Probably most people know also that Mrs. Uncle Tom's Cabin" was appearing in the National Era. Charles Warren Stoddard, the author of the "South Sea Idylls," also lived in Washington for a time. But no city really has title to an author until he not only lives in it, but writes about it. The author of this paper omits all mention of Henry Adams and the most notable novel of Washington life, "Democracy."—New York Evening Post.

HAS MANY CLAIMS TO FAME

Island of Jersey Has Been Called a Wonderland—Really is an Interesting Place. The island of Jersey is under for many things, remarks the "Under the Clock" columnist of the London Daily News. . . . lilies, golfers, "wonders," potatoes and cabbages ten feet high, to mention only a few of its most obvious specialties. But its chief claim to fame is that it is the residuary legate of the old Norman duchy, therefore the inheritor (and presumably the proprietor) of the British empire. Jerseymen undoubtedly fought in William's victorious army, at Hastings, and to this day the island has a constitution and laws which have been little altered since the reign of King John, and which, on occasions, have even dared to defy the thunders of the privy council. The inhabitants are a most intensely loyal people, and the two greatest blows that can be offered to their pride are, first, to confuse their island with Guernsey, and second, to call them French. Fancy the joy of the Jersey contingent which was welcomed into Fermanoy with the strains of the Marseillaise! Jersey has never been conquered; England has; the deduction is obvious. Cypress Lumbering. Not many years ago owners of cypress swamps regarded their property as practically worthless. Cypress lumbering was attended with peculiar difficulties because of its swampy growth. The green logs could not be moved with oxen or mules because of their great weight and the softness of the soil. And often the logs were so saturated with moisture that they would not float. Sometimes only about 15 per cent of a cut could be sold to market. Finally lumbermen began to girdle the trees six months or a year before cutting, which resulted in a great saving. Now the lumbermen drain the swamps before cutting. Swamp drainage is an important part of modern cypress lumbering. Massive machinery also is used. In the overhead cable skid method the logs are brought in by a carrier traveling over a powerful cable suspended between two trees, usually about six hundred feet apart. Color Blindness. In total color blindness the eye distinguishes only light and dark, in the more common partial color blindness red is mistaken for green, or black for brown, and in a third form only primary colors can be made out, often with confusion of blue and violet. The new spectrometer of F. W. Eldridge-Green measures the portion of the spectrum appearing to be monochromatic and the limits of visibility at each end of the spectrum. The average eye sees six definite colors and 18 apparently monochromatic parts of the spectrum; another more or less imperfect color vision separates not fewer single color patches than 18. Exceptional eyesight detects seven distinct colors, with as many as 25 monochromatic patches. Joke on Him. The bride and groom, followed by the usual shower of old shoes and rice, boarded the train. The traveling man across the aisle enjoyed the fun to his heart's content. After the train started, the groom tried to clean up the rubbish left by the merry-makers. He opened the window and threw out the old shoes and rubbish. The traveling man was so amused that he forgot that he was sitting there in his stocking feet. Later he came to his senses and then he found that the groom had mistaken the only pair of shoes the traveling man had with him for some that the merry-makers had left.

DON'T FAVOR WEDDING RINGS

Men Dislike Them, but Most Women Insist on the Gold Symbols of Matrimony. "When I marry, I won't insist on my husband wearing a wedding ring, as people might think he was henpecked," said a pretty miss to a friend recently. According to a jeweler, 80 out of 100 brides do insist, however, says the Milwaukee Journal. "During the month of May most of the newly engaged drop in for their rings. Occasionally the young man, after selecting a ring for the girl, tells the clerk that he doesn't want any for himself. "The girl will look at him quickly and say: 'Oh, yes, you do, John dear,' and he buys one. In the majority of cases a plain gold band is selected, but lately a few carved and engraved rings have been sold. This, of course, does not prove that men wear the rings. A certain young man, on leaving the house in the morning, places his ring in his vest pocket. When leaving the car, on returning home, it is again slipped on his finger. In this way both wife and hubby are perfectly satisfied. Newspaper Advertising. Newspaper reading is a universal daily habit; newspaper advertising reaches each day virtually all who buy. Newspaper advertising is the life blood of local trade because it touches all consumer sources in every community. Newspaper advertising cuts selling costs because it entails no waste in locality of circulation. Newspaper advertising insures quick, thorough and economical dealer distribution and dealer good will. Newspaper advertising enables manufacturers to tell where their products may be bought. Newspaper advertising can be started or stopped over night. Newspaper advertising enables manufacturers to check advertising results and costs in every market they enter. Newspaper advertising costs less than any other kind.—From the Fourth Estate. Every House Numbered in India. Numbering houses is an important preliminary to census-taking in India. Nearly 12 months in advance of the census date all the villages in the empire are scheduled, and every house is numbered. In some provinces the census authorities determine in advance the size of the number and specify the proportion of red ochre and oil, or other ingredients, forming the substance with which the number is to be painted. Racial prejudices have to be considered. In Hyderabad objection is made to tar because of the color, while in other districts the natives consider red ochre unlucky, and if it is used they erase the figures. In the case of huts made of leaves, and also when objection is made on account of caste restrictions to the numbering of houses by enumerators, the numbers are painted on bits of tin, tiles, or pots, and are usually treated with great respect by the natives. "Burying the Hatchet." The origin of the synonym for forgetting old quarrels, "Let's bury the hatchet," is traced to an ancient custom of the North American Indians. After indulging in the most ruthless warfare, tribes would assemble at what they believed to be the "call of peace." This, it was supposed, was uttered by the Great Spirit, and in the course of a great council and amidst singular ceremonies, they would smoke the calumet, or pipe of peace, and bury their tomahawks under a mound erected in the center of the smoking circle. This was equal to an agreement that all enmity was at an end, and the spirit of peace had settled on the camps.
