

There is no use of crying over spilt milk and the result of the election, while not pleasing to the Democrats is accepted with the hope that time will demonstrate that the claims of the Republicans as to the future prosperity of the nation will be verified.

Mr. Taft has many things to make good. He must satisfy labor with a "full dinner pail." He will be obliged to carry out the strenuousness of Mr. Roosevelt's administration, besides keeping the moneyed interests from being frightened, and that will keep him busy.

WHAT SHALL BE DONE WITH OHIO'S PEN?

Columbus, O., Nov. 3.—The question of whether it would be wiser to abandon the penitentiary and build a new one, or remodel the present institution is no nearer a solution now than it was two years ago when a commission was appointed to consider the matter and recommended what should be done.

CANTON GIRL PRIZE WINNER

In National Food Magazine Contest With Contribution Entitled "Thanksgiving Dinner—After Grandmother."

Miss Kate M. Blackburn, 908 West Ninth street, Canton, Ohio, is the winner of first prize in the recipe, kitchen and diningroom suggestion contest of the National Food Magazine published in Chicago, for the month of November. Miss Blackburn's victory was won with a contribution entitled "Thanksgiving Dinner—after Grandmother." That others of Canton may profit by the honor achieved by Miss Blackburn, her prize winning contribution is herewith printed by special permission of the editors of the National Food Magazine and is as follows:

"We girls—there are three of us—have the dearest, kindest grandmother that ever was or could be, and once when we were discussing plans for Thanksgiving, she said a bit wistfully, 'Girls, I wish you might have a Thanksgiving dinner such as we used to have when your father was a girl. The selfsame impulse popped up in each of our minds and we cried in unison—almost, if not quite—'That's the sort of dinner we'll have, grandmother—and you're it!'"

"Mother heartily concurred in our plans, so we told the maid that she might go home for Thanksgiving and instructed grandmother to go ahead and arrange the menu. 'We girls looked after the table decorations which though pretty and unpretentious as one would naturally expect at an old-fashioned dinner. For the centerpiece we obtained a long slender squash which in growing had taken a notion to twist in such an odd way that, after a slice had been cut from the flower end, it resembled a cornucopia for all the world. And the cornucopia or horn of plenty is, as everyone knows, a symbol of prosperity, therefore exceedingly appropriate as a decoration for the after harvest festival. Having carefully scooped out the squash, lined it with oiled paper and a frill of paper about the cut edges, we filled it with autumn leaves, nuts and fruit's—small rosy-cheeked apples, bananas, mandarin oranges and overhanging clusters of red, white and purple grapes."

"With one end elevated to suggest a pouring forth of its contents, the cornucopia was placed upon a large circular mirror bordered round with sprays of maiden-hair fern. 'Grandmother's' old fashioned revolving casket occupied a place of honor and her dainty gold band and white china, unused for many a day, did commendable service, while our candles glowed from brass holders which had graced the Thanksgiving table of grandmother's mother sixty years before."

"First clam broth was served, then creamed fish in clam shells—baked in the shell after the manner of the Pilgrim Fathers; next the turkey and chestnut dressing followed with Irish and sweet potatoes, squash, succotash, celery, cranberry jelly, peach preserves, cucumber pickles, thin slices of brown and white bread with unsalted butter, and coffee. All the vegetables were placed on the table at once, and coffee was served with the meal. The dessert was pumpkin and apple pies, cup custard, fruit cake, nuts and raisins, with cider."

"Grandmother herself made the fruit cake, one of the most delicious I ever ate. She was famous for the baking of it fifty years ago or thereabouts, and I am glad to be able to give you her treasured recipe. 'Half-pound cake—Cream half a pound of butter and add gradually, while beating constantly, half a pound of sugar. Separate the yolks from the whites of five eggs. Beat the yolks until thick and lemon-colored, then beat the whites until stiff and dry, and add to the first mixture. Then add the grated rind of half a lemon, two teaspoonful of lemon juice, half a pound of flour and one-fourth teaspoonful of soda. Beat thoroughly and add half a pound of seeded raisins and add half a pound of dredged with one and one-half tablespoonfuls of flour, also half a cupful of English walnut meats broken into pieces. Turn into a buttered and floured angel cake pan, and bake in a slow oven one and one-fourth hours.'"

In the recipe, kitchen and diningroom suggestion contest, conducted by the National Food Magazine, thousands of contributions from all parts of the United States and Canada are submitted each month and out of these only five prizes are awarded. Hence the importance of the honor that has been bestowed upon the Canton girl through her victory in this strenuous competition.

The program for the evening was dispensed with, and instead Mr. Frank Braucher, of Canton, gave the union and their friends a very able and instructive talk along the line of temperance reform. His address was stimulating both spiritually and mentally. In his discourse he said in part: "Who is responsible for the greater number of boys received at the Mansfield Reformatory during October, 1908, than in October, 1907? Not the Sunday school, not the W. C. T. U., but the saloons, the destroyer of all that is noble and manly in manhood."
