Poetical. WHERE MAY REST BE FOUND. Tell me, ye winged winds, That round my path you roam, Do you not know some spot Where mortals weep no more?

Miscellaneous. THE UNYIELDING WIFE. OR—THE EFFECTS OF ILL TEMPER. BY A FARMER'S WIFE.

Before proceeding to the subject matter of this paper, allow me, my young friends to exhort you to pause long and strive earnestly at self culture and self control, before taking a step which involves your all of earthly happiness...

so absurd a determination, how little did I reflect, how much influence, pride and obstinacy would exert in causing me to adhere to this extension of perverted will. Joseph and I were at length married. It seemed to me that I had never been so happy before; weeks passed as days...

save in harshness and reproach. We had been married about two years. One morning Mr. Leonard went to the store as usual, but soon returned. On looking at him, I caught my breath in astonishment. His eyes were wild and gleamed like hot coals and he staggered across the room and would have fallen had he not grasped a chair which he sank in at a moment, as if collecting his thoughts...

THE BLACKSMITH'S DAUGHTER. BY KATE GLENMORE. 'Till to exact a promise from you, Fred, on this anniversary of my birth-day—shall it be given? 'Most assuredly, Lucy, if it be anything consistent, an eas, indeed, it be that I shall relinquish my cigars. 'No, Fred, that is not what I was aiming at, so rest easy. I will not tease you on that point to-day; but it is one of infinitely more importance to me...

THE NOBLE HEARTED ACTOR. A most popular actor, who had just played a series of characters with great effect, had remarked every evening in front of the curtain, a young person of extreme beauty, who had watched his playing with an attention in which it was difficult to believe the motive a single one...

THE CLARET JUG AND THE ELDERS. There is a story very well known among Scottish anecdote mongers (writes a Times correspondent) respecting the celebrated Dr. Pitcairn. The Dr. seldom troubled the inside of the kirk, but every Sabbath morning his jug of Claret was to be seen on its way from the lair, just as the more staid portion of the population were going to morning service...
