This Investment Company is designed to take the place, to some extent, of life insurance. In life insurance you have to die to win. The Pan-American plan is that your certificate dies and you reap the benefits. We issue and sell $500 certificates for $1, on which you pay $1.25 each month. Each certificate carries nine coupons for $10 each, and the coupons are paid as fast as they mature. This company being conducted on the same accumulative plan as life insurance companies, it will be seen that it will be as able to meet its certificates when they come due as any life insurance company. Realizing the fact that a great desire prevails among the American people to lay by a sum annually for a rainy day, this company was created to encourage such frugality to the greatest extent, and for the best means in saving all alike in this direction. In this we propose to give the people the best and safest method extant in installment investment. To all doubting Thomases we say: Come into our office and investigate before giving your opinion. We will furnish you the names and addresses of parties to whom over $1,000 was paid during the month of September. We seek honest investigation. Call at my office.

The Graphic,

OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER.

Entered at the postoffice in the city of Kinsley as second-class mail matter.

FRIDAY, JULY 12th, 1895.

ATTORNEY GENERAL DAWES has finally filed charges against Bird, who will be prosecuted for misconduct in office.

Gov. MORRILL seems to be having a hard time, even the boards he appoints won't resign when he asks them to.

MORRILL is asking for a rehearing of the Breidenthal case by the Supreme Court. He must have got a cinch on another member of that court.

If the republicans had not lied to the people from the start, about giving them a business administration, some one would have prosecuted Morrill long since for appropriating public money to his private use.

CHARLIE LOBBELL must have found his job as speaker of the house rather profitable, as he has recently made extensive improvements on his Lane county property and also invested in several hundred Western cattle.

SENATOR BLACKBURN of Kentucky, has been requested to keep out of the democratic state campaign as he is not in sympathy with the financial policy of that party. Now if the Senator knows where he is at, he will step into the populist fold.

It was an Atchison school-marm, who occupied the dressing-room of the Pullman for three hours, a few days ago, to the despair of the other ladies who wished to curl their hair. Atchison always gets to the front but she should send her logs to Kansas City.

OUT in Washington the loan companies are having receivers appointed for farms where the owners are unable to pay up their interest. The capitalist has the money, the corporation will get the land, but who will get the people? Is the day of slavery about to return?

WRITE the shining example furnished by the governor, of absolute disregard of the laws of common honesty, it is not to be wondered at that the officers of the Hutchinson reformatory should have started out spending money as though they had the bank of England to draw on.

The disgraceful asylum investigation has at last closed, and after an expenditure of several thousand dollars the administration has gained possession of one more office with which to feed its hungry horde. This investigation was directed at M. A. Householder and W. S. Wait, of the board of charities, and Mrs. Pack, Mrs. Kneiberg and Steward James Butler, employees at the asylum. The latter three resigned some time ago, Mr. Wait's term expired about the time the investigation began, and the committee had nothing more to live for, except to get Householder's place, and make a report finding them all guilty, in order to make a showing of earning their money, and to furnish campaign unbecome. The committee consisted of Representatives Miller and Eckstein and Senator Carpenter, Republicans, and Senator Levia and Representative H. F. Smith, Populists. The latter concurred with the majority in some of the findings, and it is due to their efforts that the committee recommends changes in the laws governing charitable institutions, so as to prevent such useless expenditures of public money as the present system admits, and in some respects requires. The law requiring the five members of the board to travel over the state and visit all the institutions once a month, and permitting them to draw ten cents a mile for each member, is an imposition. It is due to Mr. Householder to say that he introduced a bill at the last session, calculated to greatly improve the system, but it failed to become a law. But the expense of this investigation is a worse imposition than those it was intended to correct. One stenographer's fees alone were $480, and as all the available money had been paid out before July 1, his bill was left unpaid. Finally, the attorney general, in order to help the business governor out of another bad scrape, strained a point of law and advised him to pay it out of this year's contingent fund, although it is clearly a violation of law. Mr. Householder has resigned, and it is now expected that the charitable institutions will run smoothly.—Advocate.

CAPITAL NOTES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 5, 1895. — WESTERN silver men who come to Washington do not talk as confidently of assistance from southern democrats as they did a few weeks ago. Indeed, some of them do not talk of it at all, except where they know what they say will not get into print. Privately, they do not hesitate to express the opinion that many southern democrats who have been prominent as advocates of silver in Congress are already hedging, and that they will soon be found on the Cleveland side of the financial fence. Senator Carter, of Montana, who left Washington for home this week, said just before going that he was perfectly confident that the republican national convention would recognize silver in a substantial way, even if it failed to grant all that will be asked of it by the silver republicans of the west. As Senator Carter has recently been in consultation at different times with nearly all the republicans of national prominence his words are considered significant.

About the most important event connected with the opening week of the new fiscal year was the removal of Prof. Harrington, who has been chief of the Weather Bureau ever since it passed under the control of civilians. About the middle of last month, President Cleveland asked for his resignation; but he declined to resign. Prof. Harrington says he was removed because he would not give his consent to replacing skilled scientists employed by the bureau with politicians. Secretary Morton refuses to discuss the matter, but his friends say that the whole trouble has come because of the failure of Prof. Harrington to recognize that he was a subordinate of the Secretary of Agriculture. You can believe either you please.

Every once in a while there is more or less agitation on the subject of taking our consular service out of politics and putting it on a strictly business basis. One of those agitations is now on. It was started by Secretary Olney before he left Washington on his vacation, by the announcement of his intention to revive a rule originated by President Grant, requiring all applicants for consulships to pass an examination before being appointed to office, and it has been kept up ever since, and will be heard from in Congress. Representative Livingston, of Georgia, just back from a visit to Venezuela, talked interestingly on the subject. He said: "The contrast between the average British consul and the average American consul is so marked as to be apparent even to the most prejudiced American who goes abroad. The Englishman is constantly seeking to divert trade to his country and to secure the importation of English goods. He is business, first, last and all the time, and everything he does is for the good of England. Our consuls want society, and they sit around, drawing their salaries. There are some exceptions of course, and I am not mentioning names. I do think, though, that there ought to be a change in the consular service. As a Congressman I have done my share in recommending men for these places, but I am willing to quit and have consuls appointed through some other agency than political recommendation. Senators and Congressmen are much to blame for the way they pay their political debts by procuring appointments of consuls. The trouble is not with the President, but with the system. If we could have our consuls appointed because they were qualified and if after appointment, they could be sure of promotion for services rendered, we would see the foreign trade of this country increase wonderfully. Our consuls should be alive to American commercial interests to a degree which is not now apparent, and I believe that in South America especially we would be able to build up an enormous business for American goods. If Secretary Olney is in earnest in his new move he will find in me a warm supporter on the floor of the House, and I can give him some practical observations on the necessity for a change."

Most people will agree in saying that stock speculation is a species of gambling that no government official ought to engage in; but if officials will do it they should not plead the baby act when they guess wrong and lose their money, as Assistant Attorney General Milliken did when he stopped the payment of a check for $100, given to a Washington stock broker, who is now suing him for the money. From this transaction it would seem that Mr. Milliken is a very poor sort of a man for the government to depend upon for legal advice. He needs advice himself, and it might be given him by Attorney General Harmon in one word—resign.

Geo. W. Pullman has recently discovered that there was some dissatisfaction with the scale of wages at the model city, and has raised them ten per cent.

The printer and newspaper man seems to be the legitimate prey of every jackleg statesman who wants to distinguish himself by cutting down state expenses. Every session of the legislature brings forth a dozen or two members who seem to labor under the delusion that the state and county publishers are getting too rich, and they propose some measure to save a few hundred dollars in printers' fees, while they overlook chances to save many thousands in other ways. It is true that newspapers can be found to do the printing at these reduced rates. So can there be found plenty of men who would take the places of the secretary of state and his small-souled assistant at half the salary. Hundreds of lawyers of Attorney General Dawe's calibre would take his place at $1,000 a year, and many others who can make just as good a guess on a point of law as Chief Justice Martin or Associate Justice Allen, who decided the case in question, would take either of their positions at a very liberal reduction of salary. If newspaper men would pay some retaliatory attention to the contemptible ingrates of their respective parties who are always looking for a chance to show their meanness, it might have a wholesome effect.—Advocate.

SUSAN B. ANTHONY was in town to-day enroute to Leavenworth to see her brother. In a conversation with a Press reporter, she scored Governor Morrill unmercifully. She says that the governor is playing the hypocrite in the saloon closing business, that it is a temporary "bluff" and nothing more, and that the saloons will be running wide open again as soon as the present temperance agitation has ceased.

Accompanying his instructions to the police commissioners to close the saloons, which were made public, were secret instructions that the public know nothing of," said she "and they were to the effect that the commissioners should not bear down too hard on the joint keepers and when they did come down upon them, to make as much public capital out of it as possible so as to allay the agitation of the temperance people."

"Why?" exclaimed Miss Anthony, "During the campaign both Cy Leland and Governor Morrill went down to Kansas City and promised the wholesale liquor men that they would be secretly protected by the administration if it were placed in power. The influence of these men, thus secured, elected Governor Morrill and he will not dare to violate his pledges so made to them."

Miss Anthony thinks the governor's policy of "seeming the saint when he most played the Devil" has been very detrimental to the cause of temperance.—Topeka Press.

The August number of the Delator is called the Midsummer Number, and contains a large variety of interesting matter suitable for the Season. Ladies who have deferred completing their Summer wardrobes will be particularly pleased with this number, for the styles were never more dainty and appropriate. A special article is devoted to Dressing for Stout Ladies, and another to Bathing and Swimming, with illustrations of the latest fashions in bathing costumes. The Ontario Ladies' College is interestingly described by an ex-graduate. There is a very practical article on cleaning and renovating laces, feathers and gloves, and a variety of useful information is given in the monthly talk Around the Tea Table. The housekeeper will find some new recipes in seasonable cookery, and much that will help to make housework easier in Things the Housewife Should Know. There is also an excellent article on the newest fashions, and others on Floral Work for August and the Relations of Mother and Son.

It has been proven by figures that a person riding a pneumatic tire bicycle, is absolutely safe from lightning, and now when you order your bicycle, you order it to prevent being killed by lightning, and not for the fun of riding the thing.

FELLSBURG.

The gentle rain of Tuesday night and Wednesday all day has insured the early corn.

The cattle in this region are having some disease of the eyes which is thought to resemble Pink-Eye. Probably there is a general disturbance of the system also, although no other symptoms are noticeable except an inflammation of the eyes.

Mrs. Fell who was run over by a wagon at the picnic proves not to have been seriously hurt though badly bruised.

Harvest is about over except the cutting of oats which in many fields are not yet ripe.

Mr. and Mrs. Webber are on the sick list.

Hereafter the meetings of the Y. P. C. E. will be held after preaching instead of before, as heretofore, and preaching will begin at sharp seven.

SOUTH BROWN.

Wheat harvest is in full blast but somewhat interrupted by the extremely wet weather.

The finest prospect for corn thus far that was ever seen in these parts.

Oats are making a splendid showing.

Elisba Parkhurst has cleaned the sand out of his binder, and will harvest his own wheat.

Charlie Williams is up from the Strip to harvest.

Scott Miller had the misfortune to lose one of his horses last week by a broken leg, caused by a kick.

Wm. Hargadine Sr. and lady and Miss Clara, were visiting at J. S. Craft's last Sunday.

Fred Williams, of Wendell is heading wheat this week for J. S. Craft. Quarterly meeting at Wendell next Saturday and Sunday.

The farmers are all happy, but then, well—it only takes a coffee-potful of water to make the average Kansas farmer think he is rich.

If wheat should bring $1.00 per bushel, we suppose the farmers of Edwards County will sell every cow, pig and chicken they have, and invest the proceeds in seed wheat, and try to get up another Overproduction. Thomas Knoetzer came in from the sandhills last Sunday, laden(?) with plums.
