D. M. FROST, Editor and Manager. L. A. LAUBER, Asst. Editor and Man. WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1890

T. E. LEITCH, of the Larned Eagle-Optic, is suffering from a blow in the neck received at the hands of a man whose love-letter was published in the Optic. According to Tom's version of the affair he was on top and about to put "the lock-up" on the wounded lover with a mallet, when outsiders interfered and parted them.

THE Bellefont Ensign wants J. H. Finlay, president of the agricultural society, to represent Ford county in the state legislature next term.—Dodge City Democrat.

In the above Brother Pettion has got mixed and given us credit with what is due to the Sporeville Blade.—Ensign. The brothers are all mistaken. The president of the agricultural society is Mr. J. L. Finley. Which of the two do you mean?

HON. C. J. JONES, more familiarly known as Buffalo Jones, of Garden City, is at Washington figuring with Uncle Sam on a big deal, that if consummated will prove another trust or combine added to the many already in existence. He proposes to let Uncle Sam into the deal, take him in as full partner, as it were. The scheme is to start a buffalo ranch. Jones to furnish the buffalos and the experience, Uncle Sam the land to graze them on and the money necessary to run the business. A big scheme for Jones.

ALL the leading Kansas railroads were represented at the emergency corn rate conference before the board of railroad commissioners at Topeka last Saturday, and a fifty per cent. reduction on the Kansas local rate was the result of the meeting. The new tariff of rates will go into effect on the 20th inst. The Hutchinson News was foremost in the fight, and is untiring in its efforts to secure better prices for Kansas grain. To what extent this measure will help the farmers remains yet to be seen. We hope the problem of better prices has been solved.

WE are in receipt of a circular letter from Robert P. Porter, Superintendent of the Census, in which he informs us that blank schedules have been forwarded to the treasurer of Ford county for favor of completion and requests us to make mention of the matter in the GLOBE-REPUBLICAN. The statistics called for in these schedules are necessary to facilitate the progress of census investigations—covering a period of ten years, from 1880 to 1889 inclusive—and in order that the returns of the Eleventh Census may be complete and practically useful, the statistics called for are absolutely necessary. The servants of the county, by making a special effort in behalf of the census office, can give such a showing as Ford county deserves, whereas, if they neglect this opportunity the record will necessarily be imperfect and contrast unfavorably with that of other counties in our state. We therefore urge our county's financial officer to immediate action in this matter. The task is a difficult one, as much painstaking clerical labor and research must be performed in order to collect and enter the facts and figures required.

Immigration Meeting. On last Friday evening a body of business men assembled at the city hall for the purpose of calling an immigration convention for southwestern Kansas, to be held at Dodge City, in accordance with the wishes expressed in many of the newspapers published in our neighboring towns.

The meeting was organized by electing Rev. C. L. Kearful chairman and L. A. Lauber, secretary. On motion of G. M. Hoover, Friday, the 28th day of February, was selected as the day for a general meeting of delegates from the various counties, and a committee consisting of B. F. Milton, Mayor R. W. Evans and L. A. Lauber, were appointed to issue the call for said meeting. The committee was instructed to extend invitations to the mayors, boards of trade and county officers of every county in the western part of the state, and to prepare calls for publication in the several newspapers in the district—extending from Newton west to the state line.

There will be another meeting Friday evening, the 14th inst., at the city hall to perfect organization and take action in regard to entertaining visiting delegates, also to elect delegates to represent Ford county at the convention to be held on the 28th inst.

It is hoped that every county in the district will lend its hearty cooperation in the matter, and in so doing the meeting of the Southwestern Kansas Immigration Society will be productive of great results. Now is the time to strike.

EXTRA SESSION.

Petitions are being circulated throughout the state asking Governor Humphrey to call a special session of the legislature for the passage of a stay law. The petition emanates from the Farmers' Alliance and is being circulated in nearly every county in the state. It is receiving signatures of a very large number of farmers and it begins to look as though the Alliance would make quite a formidable showing in demanding an extra session. Already a large number of these petitions have been received at the executive office and the gentlemen who are engineering the movement say that by the 15th of the present month the governor will be convinced that the farmers are in earnest when they ask that the law makers be convened. The petition is in printed form and reads as follows:

WHEREAS, the shrinkage in values upon both real estate and personal property in the state of Kansas, in the past two years has caused very great financial embarrassment among the farmers of our state, and in many instances the farmers have become unable, by reason of these shrinkages, to prevent proceedings in foreclosure, which are increasing to an alarming extent. We, the undersigned electors of _____ county, Kansas, therefore respectfully petition your Excellency to call a special session of the legislature of the state of Kansas for the purpose of providing for the relief of our farmers, by the passage of a law giving the mortgagee of a homestead at least two years in which to occupy, enjoy and redeem, if possible, after sale of mortgaged premises, and to provide also for a stay of execution on all judgments on promissory notes and mortgage bonds for a reasonable time after judgment, without bond.

Another petition is being circulated asking that a special session be called to amend the railroad laws and compel the companies to lower their transportation rates.

Belle Items.

Our farmers are preparing for spring work.

Miss Cora Merrill taught Mr. Gilbert's school Monday, he being away on business.

Invitations are out for an oyster supper to be held at the residence of Mrs. W. B. Logan this Wednesday evening.

Tom Olive, of Dodge City, the broncho buyer, came out and tackled a colt for Niles Wiseman and got busted, Saturday.

Two months more school at Twin Hills. Social hop at Niles Wiseman's the 18th.

We have a set of hoodlums in this neighborhood that are doing a great injury to our Sabbath school and literary societies.

Many of our farmers will fall short on feed this spring.

Mr. Baynum's family will go to Nebraska in the near future.

Those who failed to sow wheat last fall are among the ones that missed it.

Rev. Ridenour filled the pulpit at Quail Trap both afternoon and evening last Sabbath.

Don't miss the Valentine supper at Belle Center. Bring your best girl and her basket.

Miss Marion Gilbert, of Jetmore came out to keep house for her brother Hiram, Monday.

Joe Steffen is doing his own cooking at present. His mother is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Carmichael, of Dodge City, for a few days.

He opened it yesterday and found everything in a perfect state of preservation, and in the same condition as when stored away. We might suggest to our farmers who think of devoting more attention to the raising of hogs in the future, that if green feed is preferable silos could be constructed at small cost and alfalfa grass could be preserved for hog feed in the winter. These suggestions may be worthy of the consideration of our farmers.—Garden City Herald.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Special Correspondence to the GLOBE-REPUBLICAN. WASHINGTON, D. C. Feb. 10, 1890. One of the ablest leaders in the republican party in the House of Representatives is Congressman Wade, of Missouri. He has taken hold of the work of the committee on labor in a manner which vindicates the wisdom of his appointment to the chairmanship. He is a modest, unassuming man, but there is no harder worker in congress; no laboring man in the land who works more diligently than he. The representatives of the various labor organizations throughout the country constantly come here to state their desires to the chairman of the committee on labor, and in Mr. Wade they find a man of their own kind, fully in sympathy with them and determined to legislate for their welfare.

The working people of the country should know, however, that the democrats in the House have blocked the wheels as tight as they could, and delayed legislation. This delay will result in the defeat of many important matters because of the lack of time at the close of the session. Had it not been for democratic obstruction the appropriation bills would have been passed by this time and the tariff bill would be under discussion. None of these things have yet been attended to, on account of the filibustering of democrats who have stood in the way and shouted themselves hoarse.

The select committee of the Senate investigating the subject of irrigation, has concluded to give $150,000 to the state of South Dakota for the purpose of digging artesian wells in that state. It is believed that sufficient water can thus be obtained, to obviate the droughts which of recent years have almost ruined that country. The state of Washington, through its legislature, has memorialized Congress to make a similar appropriation for the artesian system of irrigation in certain arid portions of that new commonwealth. It is probable that Washington and South Dakota will receive recognition.

Secretary Blaine is in exceedingly feeble health. During the past three years he has not been a well man, but his European trip greatly benefited him. When he entered the cabinet last March he was comparatively well; but the arduous and exacting duties of his high office, followed by afflictions fast and intense, have combined to reduce his strength. The severe blows which have fallen upon his family circle have well nigh crushed the indomitable will and broken his heart. It is more than likely that he will be unable to continue in public life.

President Harrison came very near being bereaved deeply as the gentlemen of his cabinet within the past few weeks. It has not been generally known that Baby McKee was ill, and it was feared, seriously; but it is a fact. Nothing could more deeply afflict the president than the loss of that little grand child. He worships the baby as only a grandfather can; and every breath of air seems to him too harsh for the baby to bear. President Harrison is a man of very sincere domestic nature and no social scandal ever crossed his threshold. This can be said of but few public men.

Senator Allison, of Iowa, is the most imperturbable man in the Senate. Nothing moves him either to laughter or tears. He is an emotional man, too, but thoroughly self-controlled. He accepts pleasant sayings and kind deeds with an earnest smile and warm pressure of the hand, while disappointments of any kind move him to look grave, but never worried, angry or ill-tempered. During the recent contest in the Iowa legislature for the nomination of his successor, Mr. Allison never evinced undue excitement or anxiety. As soon as the caucus decided to re-elect him the Senator returned to his committee room at the capitol, and resumed the consideration of appropriation bills. His state should be proud of Allison, for he is in every way a strong man.

The recent supreme court decision on the Idaho test oath case settles the question of the admission of Idaho. She will probably come into the union along with Wyoming. The decision of the court also settles the Mormon question in this country. It is now simply a question of time when the immoral, beastly, sensual religion will go off in the woods and hate itself to death. Its existence for so many years in this country is a national disgrace. Its extermination will now be but a matter of time. Of course, we shall have criminals with us until the millennium, and there will be cowards who will maintain polygamous relations secretly, but public prostitution of the sacred marriage rite will no longer be permitted under the constitution.

—We have made arrangements with the publishers of the Kansas City Evening News, one of the spiciest daily papers in the west, whereby we can club that paper with the GLOBE-REPUBLICAN for the small sum of Three Dollars a year. This gives you a choice daily paper—365 times a year—and your home paper for less money than was ever heard of before. This offer is limited to only a few weeks, and all who wish to avail themselves of this clubbing rate should call at once.

Thoughts by the Way.

Written expressly for the GLOBE-REPUBLICAN. THE NEED OF SACRIFICE.—In all ages of the world the religious instincts of the race have pointed toward a sacrifice for sin. Because of the universality of this deep seated conviction it is very justly concluded that it has its origin in the inherent needs of man's innermost nature. "Without shedding of blood there is no remission." Why should blood be shed that sin may be forgiven? Sin is a fearful thing in the moral universe, as both observation and experience teach us. Yet man is very slow to apprehend its nature, or to estimate its true character. The same sin is vastly worse when observed in some one else than when experienced in ourselves. Man is inclined to look upon it as a light thing, not very offensive to himself, and should not be so to others. But sin involves the spiritual life of man, and sometimes degrades the physical life to the level of a brute. No presentation of this truth in words would sufficiently impress it upon man's mind, so that he would comprehend its fullness, unless with the presentation there should be an object lesson. So in the typical lessons of the Jewish dispensation the bullock, lamb and dove were objects used to teach the need of sacrifice.

BUT IN THIS connection man is very slow to believe that his whole nature is tainted by sin. As when, on exposure to small pox the blood becomes tainted, and finally the poison breaks forth in the visible and dreaded disease, so the moral nature of man is tainted by sin and the poison breaks forth in the visible and dreadful sins and crimes that are committed by both men and women. But man tries to convince himself that some part of his moral nature is left intact, untouched by sin, pure; and that by some means, he knows not how, he may of merit, receive the smile of God. But to impress upon his mind the deep, dark, withering, destroying nature and effect of sin, there is need of the "shedding of blood," that he may know the depth of sin. As the shedding of blood involves the life of the animal, so the commission of sin involves the life of the soul. And as the taking of blood destroys the life, so sin destroys the soul. So without the shedding of blood man never could have apprehended and seen the full effect of sin until it would have been too late. It would have involved the life of the soul without his knowledge of the fact. But now with a due appreciation of his sin and guilt, and with an apprehension of God's mercy he turns to Christ and asks pardon and forgiveness, knowing that He who reigns above is not only just, but merciful and holy. Thus, not alone to satisfy Jehovah, but to teach man his sin and guilt "the sacrifice is slain from the foundation of the world."

THE TONGUE!—The apostle James knew human nature pretty well. In his Epistle he says some very wise things about the use of the tongue. "The tongue is a very little member and boasteth great things. The tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity. So is the tongue among our members that it defileth the whole body, and setteth on fire the course of nature, and is set on fire of hell. The tongue can no man tame; it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison. Out of the same mouth proceed blessings and cursings. My brethren, these things ought not so to be." The apostle was certainly a practical, observant man. He knew where one of the greatest of evils was, that anywhere infests society—the evil of an unruly tongue. He knew how its deadly influence made itself felt. No one is exempt from its biting criticism. Such a tongue vents the spleen of its possessor upon old, middle-aged and young. It attacks the poorest, the richest, the meanest, the best in society. It is never satisfied unless dissecting character, but strange to say, will never taste the good qualities of man, woman or child. The tongue will search all day for a defect in a life, and then roll the defect over and over, tasting, relishing it, as if it were the choicest tidbit. Such a character as Thomas a Kempis, Bishop Simpson or Dr. Hall, it has no use for—would turn away from in disappointment—nothing there to the taste. But did you know that Mr. Meddlesome, Madam Rumor and Miss Gossip never take a good, clean mental meal? They are always hunting around in society and in people's back yards for the rubbish, garbage, refuse and offal—even the slops, that they may find a delicate morsel to roll under and around their slimy tongues. Like the vulture, the morsel never tastes good until from its stench they scent it from afar; and the more unsavory the richer the dish to their perverted tastes and appetites. Did you know that the reveler in gossipy filth had a very dirty mouth, and a darker mind and heart? Did you ever see pure water come from a muddy fountain? Neither will you see nor hear pure words and thoughts come from an unruly tongue that is guided by an evil heart. Guard well the tongue, for therewith is "blessing and cursing."
