SNOWS IN NORTHERN ARIZONA FORCE AUTOS TO DETOUR TO SOUTH

Colonel Sellers yesterday sent out an extra to his weekly road letter. Here it is: Advice from Northern Arizona Motor company, Flagstaff, says: "Roads almost impassable account of recent snows and rains in this and the Grand canyon sections. Still snowing. Would advise tourists not to make trip this way until storm is over." Will detour all west bound travel for the present, from here to Deming, thence Phoenix and thence either via Yuma or Prescott and Needles, as tourist may desire. Until the weather becomes very warm, this detour is much preferable and the road fairly good the entire distance from here to Los Angeles and San Diego. Advise tourists to call at this office for complete information. (Signed) D. K. B. SELLERS.

DEMPWOLF JURY TOLD BY COURT TO SEAL VERDICT

If Agreement Is Reached During Night Finding Will Be Announced at Opening of Morning Session.

Judge Reynolds, of the district court, last night instructed the jury in the Dempwolf case to return a sealed verdict providing an agreement was reached before this morning.

Taking testimony in the case was ended at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A night session was necessary to complete the arguments and instructions to the jury. The case was begun yesterday morning. Both Theodore Dempwolf, the defendant, who is charged with kidnapping his son, Glenn, and his former wife, Mamie Dempwolf, were on the stand. Dempwolf was quite dramatic in his statements, referring to the boy as "my little child" and compressing his lips evidently to suppress his emotions. Mrs. Dempwolf, who sat behind District Attorney H. B. Jamison, dabbed her eyes with her handkerchief occasionally while her former husband was testifying.

Councilman Scheer on Stand. Councilman George C. Scheer was called as a character witness. He said Dempwolf's reputation was good, as much as he was permitted to say under rules governing that sort of testimony.

The Dempwolfs were divorced about a year ago and the court gave Mrs. Dempwolf authority over the child. Dempwolf was permitted to see him. One day when Dempwolf went out with the boy neither returned. Dempwolf was found in Indiana by the officers and brought back here several months ago. He told his attorney, Judge W. C. Heacock, that the child had died in the north.

The jury in the case follows: Simon Turrietta, Elias Vigil, A. T. Chavez, Higinio Montoya, Miguel Garcia, Ysidro Lopez, Marcelino Saveria, W. W. Condit, Jose de la Luz Armijo, J. H. Rivera and Antonio Garcia.

Dempwolf was at one time owner of a restaurant on South Second street.

Mrs. O'Shea Wants Divorce. Mrs. Frances O'Shea yesterday brought suit against Mike O'Shea for divorce. She alleges her husband is a man of great austerity and violence of temper and that frequently in the last two years in violent sallies of passion he used abusive language toward her and charged her with cruel and inhuman treatment.

According to Mrs. O'Shea her husband on April 29 threw her on the floor, dragged her about the floor and choked her with his hands. She says she has supported herself and contributed to his support.

Mrs. O'Shea asks that in lieu of alimony her husband be required to deed to her his right in real estate. O'Shea was enjoined by the court from disposing of his interest in the property.

SCHOOL CHILDREN OF COUNTRY WILL SEE THIS CITY IN MOVIES

The industries and advantages of Albuquerque and New Mexico are to be placed before the school children of the country by means of stereopticon slides by the McIntosh company of Chicago. This firm is engaged in the business of making slides for school displays which are supplemented by lessons and lectures on the subjects displayed. By this means the resources and industries of every state will be taken up separately and taught in the schools.

The publicity department of the Commercial club is providing the photographs from which the slides will be made and the material which will furnish the basis for the lectures. Photographs of farming, irrigation systems, Indian weaving, wool scouring, lumbering, grain and truck farming, cattle and sheep on the range, the plant, mining operations and of the schools of New Mexico are being secured for this purpose.

DR. COLBERT TO EUROPE FOR WORK IN WAR THEATER

Writes Friend Here He Expected to Sail From South America Before April 12 on English Ship.

It was learned here yesterday that Dr. J. W. Colbert, formerly surgeon for the Santa Fe coast line here, sailed from South America last month for England intending to go to the western war zone as a surgeon. The news came in a letter to H. O. Strong, of Strong Brothers. It was dated Santa Marta, Colombia, South America, March 8. In it Dr. Colbert said he intended to leave there the following month and to send his letters to England after April 12. He was to sail on an English ship.

Dr. Colbert went to South America to study the "hookworm" for the Rockefeller foundation. He was seriously ill four months ago at Kingston, Jamaica, for a month. He wrote that he had fully recovered, however, and felt ready for the strenuous work of an army hospital or the firing line.

ACCUSED RAISER OF CHECK ARRESTED AT BANK BY M'ILLIN

When Ambrosio Sanchez presented a check for $200 at the First National bank yesterday morning the teller's suspicion was aroused. The amount appeared to have been raised from $20 to $200, so the teller engaged Sanchez in earnest converse while word was sent to Chief McMillin. The chief arrested Sanchez in the bank. When questioned by Chief McMillin, Sanchez is said to have admitted that he raised the amount. It was learned that James Bezemek, dairyman, had given Sanchez the check for $20 as a loan. Bezemek was sent for and this information was corroborated. The check had been made out to Ambrosio, but Sanchez changed the given name to Alfredo. Sanchez was held in the city jail.

'THE CUP OF LIFE'

BESSIE BARRISCALE IN "THE CUP OF LIFE"

The career of a young woman who deliberately chooses the path of luxury and direction is set forth with some power in the five-part Mutual Masterpiece, "The Cup of Life," a production made under the direction of the famous Thomas H. Ince, with Bessie Barriscale in the leading role. According to a number of clergymen who have seen this picture drama, it has all the force of an eloquent sermon, and in a number of cities where it has been exhibited it has been specifically recommended from the pulpit.

"The Cup of Life" will be shown at the Pastime theater tomorrow and Monday.

LITTLE STREAM WATERS FERTILE FARM COUNTRY

Cottonwood Valley, With Progressive Population, Is One of New Mexico's Most Prosperous Sections.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL) Artesia, N. M., May 7.—One of the highest developed irrigated sections of New Mexico lies in the Cottonwood valley, from five to fifteen miles northwest of Artesia. The Cottonwood is a small tributary to the Pecos, and is kept alive during the dry weather by springs. In ordinary times it carries but a small amount of water, but in flood times it is often half a mile in width. At one place a strong concrete dam holds storm water for irrigation, but this is only a small territory compared with the thousand of fertile acres which are watered by artesian wells. It is in Cottonwood valley that the famous artesian belt of southeastern New Mexico reaches its maximum width, and as a rule strong wells are found at a shallower depth in this section than in any other part of the Artesia belt.

There are at least two distinct artesian flows in the Cottonwood valley, the first, found at a depth of from 300 to 500 feet, being a weak flow of good water. At the depth of from 500 to 700 feet is found the flow of sulphur water which is so powerful that it throws the water over the casing to a height of two to four feet in the lower parts of the valley. This sulphur water is of strong medicinal properties and many sufferers from chronic troubles which have come to this country and drunk the waters have been completely cured. The sulphur in the water, while not particularly pleasant to the taste, does not render it altogether unpalatable, and in no way affects its use for irrigation. It does not injure the growing crops, as is amply testified by the many fine alfalfa fields and healthy orchards to be found in this favored section.

Well-kept Farm Houses. The homes of the farmers out on Cottonwood show more care and attention than the average throughout the state. Especially is this true in the matter of ornamental trees and shrubbery. The giant Spanish daggers are easily obtained in the foothills a short distance to the west, and many of the homemakers who have invaded this little paradise have used these distinctive plants for the decorations of their farm homes and lawns, producing an effect not unlike a tropical garden.

Vines and flowers of all descriptions have been used lavishly and the long growing season has in many instances given an appearance it would have taken years to produce in a colder climate. The little lakes around the artesian wells are also scenes of great beauty, being bordered by willows and other water-loving trees and often full of fine fish. One pond is fairly alive with gold fish, some of which have crept into a nearby lake and grown to more than a foot in length, yet retaining all the beauty of their tame parent.

A Modern Community.

The valley of the Cottonwood is a modern community in every sense of the word, with service not only given from two rural lines, telephones, and two school houses, one of them built of concrete. The roads are the finest in New Mexico and require but little work. The natural slope of the country to the east, not only gives a perfect plane for irrigation, but causes the roads to dry quickly after an occasional rain, and a little dragging at long intervals keeps them in splendid condition. The Cottonwood roads are much frequented by autoists from all parts of the Pecos valley, on account of the good roads and the magnificent views to be had of the irrigated section from each rise. For a background, the picture has the Capitol, the Sacramento and the White mountains. The latter tipped with snow even during the warmest summer.

From the western rise the view is especially to be admired. A orchard sweep of country, dropping rapidly towards the east, is dotted here and there with farm houses, the clou rows of the orchards alternating with the vivid green of the alfalfa fields, and in the distance, the winding Pecos, and farther still, the red sand hills while here and there throughout the view flashes the crystal of artesian wells—that is a typical picture of the peaceful Cottonwood, one of the garden spots of the southwest.

Small Check Proves Expensive. Artesia, N. M., May 7.—C. C. Palmer, a farmer living sixteen miles northwest of Artesia, is in jail at Roswell on the charge of issuing a worthless check for six dollars on the First National bank of Roswell last December. The check remained unpaid, and finally a complaint was made in the matter. Officers arrested Palmer at his home a few days ago and took him to Roswell. A local banker interested himself in the case today and loaned Palmer the money to pay the check and the costs, it being understood that the case is to be dropped when this is done. The costs in the case run to nearly fifty dollars.

Supreme Court Proceedings. Santa Fe, May 7.—Two cases were argued before the supreme court and submitted today, one case being No. 1773, the First National Bank of Las Vegas, N. M., appellee, vs. John S. Clark, trustee of the estate of A. M. Adler, bankrupt, et al., appellants. The other case is No. 1780, Joyce Fruit company, a corporation, appellee, vs. Elise De Witz, et al., appellants, which originated in Eddy county.

SEARCH FOR MURDERERS OF FOUR-YEAR-OLD BOY

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADERS) New York, May 7.—With Inspector Faunt, chief of the detective bureau, assigned by Police Commissioner Woods to take personal charge of the investigation into the murder of 4-year-old Charles Murray, the police brought in another suspect today and made arrangements to begin a systematic search for the writer of threatening letters written to the murdered boy's mother. Mrs. Murray today received two more such letters, which said that on Monday next, in a specified locality, a similar crime would be committed.

Cutting Hay in Pecos Valley.

Artesia, N. M., May 7.—This is one of the latest seasons the Pecos valley has known for years. The rain, and the accompanying cool weather, has held back all crops and it was not until this week that the farmers began to cut their alfalfa. J. P. Cobble, living southeast of town, is the first to report a cutting. He began Monday.

New Oil Company at Artesia.

Artesia, N. M., May 7.—A new oil company has been formed to prospect the Dayton-Artesia field, six miles south-east of this city. All of the stock, excepting four shares, is held by a Mr. Oliver, who hails from Denver. It is said that Denver men are interested in the firm and will put up money to put down a test hole.
