party will go into camp and be absent from the city for several weeks. Mr. Butler returned yesterday afternoon.

LOCAL GROCERYMAN ELECTED DIRECTOR OF NATIONAL ASSOCIATION

Charles Hefed, president of the Charles Hefed company, wholesale grocer, returned yesterday from California. While at San Francisco he visited the big exposition and also attended, as the only delegate from New Mexico, the convention of the National Wholesale Grocers' association, which was in session in that city. The convention elected Mr. Hefed as a director of the association. Mr. Hefed says the association had the largest attended convention in its history, almost every section of the United States being represented by delegates.

OLGUIN GIVEN FIFTY YEARS IN STATE PEN

Special Correspondence to Morning Journal. Los Lunas, N. M., June 19.—Judge Herbert F. Reynolds, at the request of Judge M. C. Meschen, held court here today to dispose of a number of untried matters.

Leandro Olguin, who killed Adolfo B. Sanchez at Jarales on May 15 following a quarrel at a dance, pleaded guilty to second degree murder and was given a sentence of from fifty to sixty years in the state penitentiary. As Olguin is now 25 years old, the sentence practically means that he will spend the remainder of his life in prison.

Lugarda Sanchez, an 18-year-old girl, was committed to the insane hospital at East Las Vegas, and a number of minor tax matters were adjusted by the court.

District Attorney Harry P. Owen and Clerk W. D. Newcomb were in attendance during the session of court.

SHORTAGE OF ANILINE DYES OVERCOME BY REO

Business Foresight of Motor Car Company Shown in the Cornering of Fast Black Top Cloth.

"If you see any automobiles running around with white, cream color or khaki colored tops a few months hence they won't be Reos," said R. C. Hueschaw, sales manager of the Reo Motor Car company.

Reo has not occurred to most people that the European war has effected the automobile top situation," continued the sales manager, "but I can assure you it has and most seriously."

"We bumped into the condition just recently when we began to consider the plan of making 5,000 extra cars over the original schedule, in an effort to catch up with the demand."

"We had little difficulty in procuring other car top material when it came to tops we found it was practically impossible to procure any fast black cloth suitable for that purpose. This was due to the fact that we have always procured our aniline dyes from Germany and now there is none available."

"Reo purchasing power came to the front as usual, however, because, just as we were about to give up in despair—for if we could not put fast black tops on and have every other detail up to the Reo standard we would not make the extra cars at all."

"I walked a man with the startling information that he had discovered 99,999 yards of fast black top cloth."

"Where? Reo purchasing power came in, was, that having secured amount and found this invaluable adjunct to an automobile his next consideration was where to sell it with the greatest certainty of getting his money. His first thought was therefore, to his him to Lansing and within ten minutes after he arrived, Mr. Smith, our purchasing agent, had secured a forty-eight-hour option on the 99,999 yards. He needed the forty-eight hours to make sure that he was covered on all the rest of the material necessary to make the extra 5,000 cars."

"I know that other manufacturers who were not able, a few months ago, when money was tight, to cover themselves on top material, have had to use whatever they could get. The difference won't show up until after a few months of exposure to the sun and the rain—but when it does Reos will possess another distinguishing characteristic—Reo tops will still be black."

OVER 2,000,000 AUTOS IN USE IN UNITED STATES

"Even now," a Goodyear Tire and Rubber company official says, "we believe the tire business, as the automobile business, to be only in its infancy. Today, roughly, 2,000,000 automobiles are using up tires, about the United States. People want automobiles now more than ever before. Output of automobile factories increases year by year. The time will come when there will be 10,000,000—yes, 20,000,000 automobiles using up tires—and the effect of such an expansion on the tire business can better be imagined than computed. The tire business is more and more nearly standardized year by year."

STUDEBAKER GOES TO JEMEZ SPRINGS

Gus R. Rosenberg and Leopold Meyer left last night in a Studebaker roadster for the Jemez Hot Springs. In speaking of the trip, Mr. Rosenberg said: "There will only be one difficulty in getting to the Jemez, and that is the depth of the water in the river." Messrs. Rosenberg and Meyer in leaving, looked as though they were starting for the Philippine islands. A number of cars escorted them to the city limits and the last view was a red bandana around Roosevelt's neck and cowboy Stetson on Leopold, disappearing at the rate of fifty miles an hour.

BOY, LEARNING TO SWIM, DROWNED IN RIO GRANDE

Guillermo Cordero Disobeys Mother and Goes to River; Companions Bring Home Clothes With Growsome Tale

Guillermo Cordero, 14 years old, drowned shortly before 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Rio Grande a short distance above the Barajas bridge. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Epifanio Cordero, 216 North Sixteenth street. The father works at the Barajas bridge.

Guillermo could not swim, his mother said, and she had warned him against going into the river. Before leaving home to go to her work yesterday her last words to the boy were not to go swimming.

The first knowledge she had of the drowning was from one of the boy's playmates, who brought his clothes home shortly before 7 o'clock last night, and told them Guillermo had sunk in the river.

Subsequently the parents learned the boy went to the river about 3 o'clock. Several other boys were with him. Almost as soon as he went in he began to cry for help. The others, terrified, remained on the bank. He was carried downstream by the current, his head disappearing for the last time about fifty yards from shore.

The police were notified and Chief McMillin and Patrolman Pablo Lujan went to the place. By that time fifty men had lined the east bank and the Barajas bridge looking for the body. It had not been recovered by midnight. A report was circulated that it had lodged in the ruins of the old Barajas bridge but this was quickly disproved.

GOOD ROADS IDEA GRIPPING THE PEOPLE

Individual and Private Concerns Donate Money and Services. So Say the B. E. Goodrich Company.

State, county and township governments in the United States spent nearly $250,000,000 for good roads in 1914 alone. In the past two years the single state of California has appropriated $18,000,000 for the improvement of its highways. The country has gripped the people—gripped them in a most unselfish and patriotic way.

The unprecedented growth of this movement within the past few months has not only encouraged it in the opinion of the foresightedness of the American public. For the money spent in betterment of roads will be returned a hundred fold. Farmers will be able to market their produce, cities will be brought into closer touch, the country will be united, land will increase in value and over every road will pour a stream of trucks and pleasure cars that will surpass the dreams of the founders of the good roads movement. The coming of good roads means prosperity—enduring prosperity to all Americans.

So imbued with the good roads idea are the people becoming that individual and private concerns are appropriating time and money to the cause. And possibly one of the greatest contributions in point of actual benefit to those using the highways, is that of the B. E. Goodrich company of Akron, Ohio.

During the past four years the B. E. Goodrich company has maintained a National Touring Bureau which has marked nearly 70,000 miles of the best in America with permanent and attractive blue and white enamel guide posts. These markers point the way to nearest towns and warn of danger points, and are erected by three truck crews which are maintained during the greater part of the year. As a further service, the Goodrich Touring Bureau also furnishes motorists with accurate road logs between all points without charge or obligation.

Within a few years, with such concerted and constructive work as this, it is believed that American roads will outrival the best that Europe has boasted.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

Leonides Archibeque, 26 years old, died yesterday morning at his home on the Barajas road from pneumonia. The father, mother and widow survive. The body was taken to Fred Crockett's undertaking rooms. Funeral arrangements had not been made last night. Mr. Archibeque was a barber.

Manuel Bustamante, 44 years old, died yesterday morning at 501 North Eleventh street. He came here three months ago from Colorado for medical treatment. The widow and four children survive. Funeral services will be held at Fred Crockett's chapel at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. Burial will be in San Jose cemetery.

Funeral of D. E. Harring, who died Friday, was stopped yesterday afternoon on Santa Fe train No. 2 by Strong Brothers. Mrs. Harring, the widow, with her daughter and sister, accompanied it. Burial will be at Calumet, Mich. The Knights of Columbus held services here Friday night.

WILLIAM FARNUM, THE SCREEN STAR, AT THE PASTIME

This Well-Known and Popular Actor, Who Takes a Leading Part, Trained for Big Fight in "The Plunderer."

Listen, you aspirants who yearn for eminence in the motion pictures, do you realize what it means in the hard, cold reality to be a great photo-play actor? Read how William Farnum, the $100,000 star of the Fox Film corporation, William Fox, president, earns his stupendous salary and you may suffer a change of heart and decide that maybe the office, counter or factory is all right after all. In the first place right after Mr. Fox signed up Mr. Farnum (the first eminent dramatic artist permanently to forsake the spoken for the silent stage) he did what any business man would do and proceeded to "cover his investment." The actor's face and body were insured against injury or disfiguring accident for $100,000, the same amount as his yearly stipend. All these sounds very important and satisfactory; but, just a moment. To begin with the policy, one of the wisest pieces of insurance ever written, prohibits Mr. Farnum from going anywhere unaccompanied by a physician, he may not drive his own cars, sail his yacht, indulge in swimming or any other sport except under the supervision of his medical guard. Even his diet is prescribed for him and the insurance company gets a weekly report of his condition. The old pro had it right when he said "uneasy lies the head that wears a crown."

But that insurance policy is not the only thing worrying Mr. Farnum. He is still talking of the two months of rigorous training he was put through for the great fight in "The Plunderer" by Roy Norton, the latest of the William Fox photo-plays in which the most popular of all America's actors appears in a "real Farnum part."

The fight in "The Plunderer" is the most thrilling bare-knuckled battle ever filmed. It is positively terrific in its ferociousness. Farnum, single-handed, fights and beats a score of drink-mad and hate-crazed western miners. He toys with the enraged physical giants like an aroused Titan, as with his bare knuckles he hammers them into insensibility, avenging the murder of his aged friend, Old Belle Parks. To get the full realism of the part the actor conditioned himself for eight weeks just as rigorously as if he had been going after the heavyweight championship. In freezing weather he rose at 5:30 a. m. at his country place at Sag Harbor, L. I., and under the stern eye of a trainer, jogged ten miles over the frozen roads while his mentor rode at ease in an automobile. Then came a swift dip in the icy waters of the harbor from the dock of his estate; followed a brisk run-down and breakfast. After a brief rest Mr. Farnum spent most of the morning in his gymnasium, sparring and dallying with the medicine ball. In the afternoon came another jog over the roads and then a very light dinner and bed. So when you see that battle upon the screen in "The Plunderer"—and it is the most heart-quenching, breath-catching flat-fight ever filmed—don't forget, as you see the actor smashing and slashing his foes, that, not unnaturally, it was some job to find actors willing to face the Farnum fist.

"The Plunderer" can be seen at the Pastime theater today and tomorrow. Admission, 10 cents. Time of shows: 1, 2:10, 3:20, 4:30, 5:40, 6:50, 8, 9 and 10 o'clock.

BUSINESS COLLEGE ITEMS

A new shorthand class will start Monday and continue without vacation, till completed. Sessions are held in the forenoon and the class will be under the personal supervision of Manager Goodell and will include the new features adopted by the National Shorthand Reporters' association.

Miss Mary Anderson has accepted a position as secretary to President Fayette Jones of the New Mexico School of Mines at Socorro.

Miss Rachel Walker, principal of the business department of the Gallup high school last winter, enrolled in the teachers' training course Wednesday.

Miss Joyce Chase, now head stenographer at the state fair commission, is the fifth A. B. C. student to hold that position in as many years.

Mrs. Mary Vetter is relieving Mrs. Margaret Barnes, public stenographer, during the latter's absence from the city.

Mr. Herman Raff completed his business course Thursday, having finished in just five and one-half months and left Friday for Willard, where he has been employed a bookkeeper with the Willard Mercantile company.

Mr. Glen Dearing has accepted a position with the Bernadillo Mercantile company. His position with A. Fleischer has been filled by Miss Ida Parks.

LYRIC THEATER TODAY WILLIAM ELLIOTT IN "Woman and Wine"

BY ARTHUR SHIRLEY
In 5 Acts. Produced by Wm. A. Brady Picture Plays, Inc.

World Film Corporation presents William Elliott in a two-act play, "Woman and Wine," based on William A. Brady's famous production of fifteen years ago, which was a huge success on both sides of the Atlantic.

Arthur Shirley, the author of the play, took his inspirations from a French source and the scenes are laid alternately in New York and Paris, the underworld of both great cities being drawn on for material.

William Elliott is the suffering star of the play, and his part is one that is full of changes to put over his acting efforts. Dick Seymour, the son of an actor, has a pretty sweetheart, and he comes into some money; a combination of circumstances that should make for happiness.

"Instead of which"—The Great White Way (and an unscrupulous girl) plagues him. "Then in Paris (for his money) and more "woman and wine," with the immediate result that he finds himself charged with a murder that he did not commit.

His blind faith and his sweetheart are loyal to him, however, and being freed of the charge of murder he encourages his evil ways, and all ends happily.

Scenes of smart life in Paris and New York give the producer the opportunity of introducing some wonderfully effective settings. And there are some thrilling situations in which individualism and justice of the "half world" of Paris and the underworld of New York, figure prominently.
