MONDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1915
 UP TO ALBUQUERQUE AGAIN.

One week from today, the New Mexico Educational association will meet in Albuquerque. The program is the best that has ever been staged and the attendance is expected to be the largest. Certainly the benefits which may be derived from it are the greatest.

Last year the visiting teachers were enough to fill the high school auditorium and hall again. This year, the program, which costs $500, is to be held, and it is as much too large for the association proper as the high school auditorium is too small.

It becomes necessary, therefore, that fully 1,000 Albuquerque people attend every general meeting in order that there may be no appearance of vacant seats in the armory hall. Speakers like crowded houses. When there are enough people in a hall to touch elbows everywhere, they are more responsive, more enthusiastic, create an atmosphere quite as necessary to the success of an address as the address itself.

For the sum of one dollar, a membership in the association may be secured which entitles the holder to attend all of the meetings and there will be not less than ten addresses, each of which would be cheap to the holder at one dollar.

The sole way the New Mexico Educational association has of raising money for the payment of expenses is from one-dollar membership fees. It is from this source that the expenses of all talent are paid. This year we are to have one speaker from Columbus, Ohio; one from Madison, Wisconsin; one from Frankfort, Kentucky; one from the Agricultural college of Oklahoma and one from Cincinnati. The cost of the trip for each of these speakers, without figuring any remuneration, will average about an hundred dollars. The total expense of getting them here, paying for their time and entertainment, will run well above $1,500.

Then there are the other expenses of the organization which must be covered for making the total outlay for the association this year in the neighborhood of $2,500. All of this elaborate program may be enjoyed for the sum of one dollar.

Albuquerque must furnish at least thirty-five per cent of the audience. It has been charged in the past that the people of this city take little interest in anything beyond getting outside people here and taking their money. That sentiment was the biggest handicap encountered by President Payne and his flying squad. Even when they made their campaign to attract the counties in the state.

Albuquerque did her share in the maintenance of the state fair, both as to advertising money for it and in furnishing take receipts. We were all proud of the state fair when it was over and we were proud of the pure Albuquerque played in taking it out of the rut into which it had fallen and making it the greatest exposition the state or the southwest had ever seen.

We must approach the state teachers' meeting with the same whole-hearted spirit. It is of really greater importance to the future of the state than any fair ever held. It is the very foundation of future development, the greatest essential of progress.

The commercial agencies declare that we are now on the eve of the greatest era of prosperity this country has ever seen. The country can stand just such era.

DR. DERNBURG'S GREAT SERVICE

The people of Germany owe a debt of gratitude to Dr. Bernhard Dernburg for the clear exposition he has made of the attitude of the United States in dealing both with Germany and the Great Britain over questions of neutral rights growing out of the war. Secretary Lansing could not have expressed the Washington policies more fairly.

Dr. Dernburg, it will be remembered, spent nearly a year in the United States, after the beginning of the war, as the head of the German propaganda, and left while the Lusitania controversy was at its height, for the purpose of giving the German government a clear insight into the purpose of this nation. Therefore, he is prepared to speak with understanding of the American policy and purpose.

He has told the German people, in reply to their criticisms of the long delay in sending representatives to Great Britain, as compared with the promptness with which Germany was called to account for her submarine murders, that the losses of goods by merchants of the United States through the illegal actions of Great Britain were replaceable, while in the submarine warfare of Germany the irreplaceable lives of American citizens were at stake, consequently Germany had to be dealt with first. He also stated that a "submarine campaign, defended on the ground of modernity of the weapon" was impracticable with existing treaties defining the rights of neutrals. Hence, he argues, that the United States is entirely right in dealing with the submarine blockade first, and that the demands upon Germany by our government must be recognized as entirely just.

Regarding the controversy, now on with Great Britain, Dr. Dernburg says: "The German press has raised the question whether the United States would endeavor to force compliance with its demands. According to the diplomatic history of the United States—and the Lusitania case is a page in this history—there is every reason to believe this will be done at all costs."

The clear and fair statement by Dr. Dernburg should convince any German-American of the justice of the policy of the Wilson administration in dealing with Germany and Great Britain. The "hyphen" has tried to make this country an ally of the labor, and Great Britain has tried to force this country into an alliance with the entente powers. But the administration has had a mind single to one matter only: the rights of the United States and all neutral nations, not only in this but in any future war.

Germany was compelled to yield or engage in war with the United States. England will yield without even a threat of war on our part. Should she refuse, it would be an easy matter for congress to pass a bill prohibiting the shipment of war supplies in the allies, which beyond doubt would strike Great Britain far more vitally than would be possible by any hostile action of the American navy.

Uncle Sam may not play the game according to the rules of European diplomacy, but history has shown that he has played the game so as to win in every important international controversy of the past, as Dr. Dernburg points out, which fact is ample vindication for our methods of doing things.

The teachers, and the teachers' association, will determine this year, as they alone determined last year, where the next association meeting will be held. The main thing now is to make the meeting this year the biggest and the best ever held and lay the foundation for a big meeting of teachers next year, wherever it may be held.

"THINKING DEPARTMENT" NEEDED.

The allies are now making strong efforts to break the advance of the Austro-Germans in Serbia and prevent a junction of the Turkish and Teutonic forces in Constantinople.

Why the invaders were not met on the Serbian border, no member of the British government has ventured to explain. The plan, now being carried out, was not decided upon until Field Marshal von Mackensen had crossed the Danube and the Italian forces were striking the Serbian flank. Then an inconsiderable force—15,000 of it British—was landed at Saloniki. It reminds one of the 5,000 British marines thrown into Antwerp after the mighty guns of the Germans had pounded the fortifications into hopeless ruins. Throughout the war the British have acted late, and the forces they have sent have been just enough to lose.

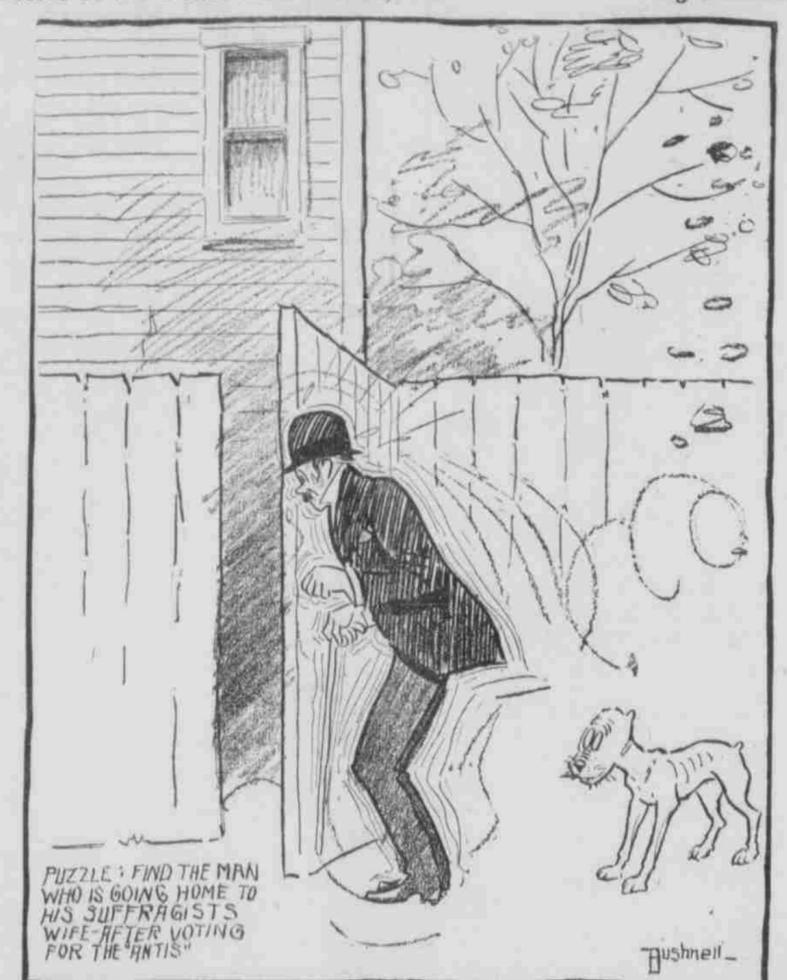

The London Observer says what the British government needs is a "thinking department." Heretofore, what has been done has been the result of afterthoughts. The Germans have won by forethoughts.

The Tammany tiger showed up at the last election with renewed strength. Sometimes they will get the most life of that big cat.

FRANCE STILL LEADS.

France is again demonstrating her splendid co-operation. Wherever there is fighting to do, the French are there. They are holding 250 miles of the 400 from the North sea to the Swiss border. The British, who held only thirty miles during the first year of the war, have taken on twenty miles more.

There Is No Place Like Home, But--

PUZZLE: FIND THE MAN WHO IS GOING HOME TO HIS SUFFRAGISTS WIFE AFTER VOTING FOR THE 'ANTS'

Dardanelles, it was about half French and half British. When the allies decided to assault Serbia 120,000 Frenchmen were landed at Saloniki and 12,000 British troops had even started for this new scene of action.

Even in Africa, there has been a larger French force operating against the Germans than followed both in the conquest of German East Africa. France is the chief inspiration of the quadruple alliance—she and Russia have done the fighting on every front.

In announcing that Sarah Bernhardt will sail for the United States in December, it is stated that she is "unwrinkled and undaunted." Sarah means to keep young if it takes a leg.

The women may not have the right to vote, but if one of them decides to vote her husband's neckless she is sure to have the election all to herself.

In coming out for a bigger army and a stronger navy, the president shipped a poisoned hephen into the ball mouze.

INDIANA'S CENTENNIAL.
 (Indianapolis News.)
 The centennial commission has probably acted wisely in deciding to concentrate its attention on two principal celebrations. Those, according to present understanding, will be in Indianapolis and Corydon. As the capital and largest city, Indianapolis has first claim in the most elaborate ceremony. On account of its historic associations, Corydon should have a large share of the celebration. According to reports of the commission's recent conference, the centennial observances will begin at Corydon May 12, 1916, and will conclude December 11. May 12 will be the centennial of the constitutional election, and December 11 that of admission day. In September or October the general official demonstration and pageant will take place in Indianapolis.

THE CHINESE, JAPANESE AD.
 (Boston Transcript.)
 Japanese advertisers believe in a lavish use of superlatives. "The paper we sell," runs the announcement in a Tokyo stationer's window, "is as solid as the hide of an elephant." "Step inside!" is the call of a big shop in the same city. "You will be welcomed as fondly as a ray of sunshine after a rainy day. Our assistants are as amiable as a father seeking a husband for a dowry's daughter. Goods are dispatched to customers' houses with the rapidity of a shot from a cannon's mouth."

A CENTURY OF SAVINGS BANKS.
 (Bradstreet's.)
 M. W. Harrison, secretary of the American Bankers' association, notes that in 1916 will be celebrated the 100th anniversary of the establishment of banks for savings in this country. The story goes that one Patrick Colquhoun, a local magistrate in London, in April, 1816, sent a letter with a pamphlet to a man in New York City by the name of Thomas Edly, Jr. which described the plan of a savings bank he was instrumental in forming in London. The Hon. James Savage of Boston received one at about the same time. Plans were drawn up and subsequently perfected for a savings institution in Boston and on December 13, 1816, the Provident Institution for Savings was chartered. A few weeks previous

MELROSE ORATORS GIVE CREDITABLE PROGRAM

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL.
 Melrose, N. M., Nov. 14.—The oratorical contest held at the Methodist church last Saturday night was the most enjoyable affair held here in several years.
 Supt. W. F. Osborne and his able daughter, Miss Blanche, with her musical and oratorical talent, are credited to the credit of the program, being ably assisted by the members of the high school and additional numbers. Professor Ferrill's male quartet made a big hit, and from now on will be looked for in the regular high school program. Special prizes were due to the beautiful soprano by one of the high school pupils, Miss Ruth Hamilton. The other instrumental and vocal solos were equally appreciated, also the recitation.
 Last, but not least, was the splendid oration well delivered by the four contestants, Honor Litchfield, Misses Leo Brady, Martha Monday and Ruth Downing. Superintendent Jackson of the Fort Sumner schools announced the winning orator, Miss Ruth Downing. The other judges were Rev. Stevenson and Mrs. Carver. The high school as a whole deserves great credit for their untiring interest and unbounded efforts in making the program a success.

Will Make Distribution.

Santa Fe, Nov. 14.—Early next week, State Treasurer O. N. Marron will make his last distribution of funds for the fiscal year which ends on November 30. The state institutions will receive practically the balance of their appropriations but the salary fund will run low and officials will have to wait until some time in December before receiving the balance that will be due them.

WOMAN IN BAD CONDITION

Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Montpelier, Vt.—"We have great faith in your remedies. I was very irregular and was tired and dizzy the time, would have cold chills, and my hands and feet were numb. My stomach bothered me, I had pain in my side and a bad headache most of the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me lots of good and I now feel fine. I am regular, my stomach is better and my pains have all left me. You can use my name if you like. I am proud of what your remedies have done for me."—Mrs. MARY GAUTHIER, 21 Ridge St., Montpelier, Vt.

An Honest Dependable Medicine

It must be admitted by every far-sighted, intelligent person, that a medicine could not live and grow in popularity for nearly forty years, and to-day hold a record for thousands upon thousands of actual cures, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that possessing great virtue and actual worth. Such medicines must be looked upon and termed both standard and dependable by every thinking person.

How She Cured Her Husband

"For five years my husband suffered with his stomach. The medicine he took only gave relief for a while, nothing cured. I wrote Mrs. Sarah Baker of Nottingham, Mo., and she said she had bought some of Chamberlain's medicine. I had just also received some free trial samples of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. She gave us some of them and I wanted my husband to try them. He said it would do no good. His stomach had been troubling him worse than ever. At last on Friday I told him if he would not take those tablets I was going to send for a doctor, and he said he would take them. By Monday he was like another man. The blues were gone, no more trouble with his stomach, and the best part is that the trouble has not returned. I cannot praise Chamberlain's Tablets too highly."

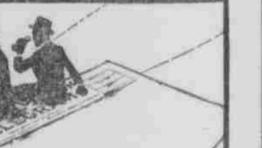

SPECIAL TO WOMEN

The most economical, cleansing and germicidal of all antiseptics is

Paxtine

A soluble Antiseptic Powder to be dissolved in water as needed.

As a medicinal antiseptic for douches in treating catarrh, inflammation or ulceration of nose, throat, and that caused by feminine ill it has no equal. For ten years the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. has recommended Paxtine in their private correspondence with women, which proves its superiority. Women who have been cured say it is "worth its weight in gold."
