INVASION OF AMERICAN COAST EASY, DECLARES GENERAL LEONARD WOOD; TOTALLY UNPREPARED

BRINGS LESSONS LEARNED IN EUROPEAN WAR STRONGLY BEFORE SENATE COMMITTEE

Says 126,000 Men in One Expedition Landed on Gallipoli Peninsula From Ninety-eight Transports, in Spite of Submarines, Land Batteries, Mines and Underwater Screens of Barbed Wire Entanglements; Nation's Need Is Universal Service, Making Every Man Eligible to Vote Subject to Enlistment, if Physically and Mentally Fitted; Continental System of Secretary Garrison Next Best; State Militia of Little Advantage in Actual Warfare; Danger Signals on All Sides and While This Country May Have Gold It Will Need Iron to Protect It.

(By Morning Journal Special Leased Wire.)

Washington, Jan. 19.—Major General Leonard Wood told the senate military committee today the coast line of the United States was open to attack by any well organized foreign army despite its equipment of forts, mines and submarines and that the oceans formed no serious barrier to invasion.

Events of the European war demonstrated clearly, the general said, that the sea was the best medium for the movement of troops, and he pointed out that a force of 126,000 men fully equipped, had been landed at Gallipoli from a single expedition of ninety-eight ships, against submarines, mines and underwater screens of barbed wire which fringed every available landing place.

Emphasizing his conviction that troops cannot be improvised to meet regulars, General Wood said the fundamental basis of any policy of adequate national defense must be the principle that with sufficient men an obligation for military service, such a policy was advocated by George Washington, he said, and if it had been adopted Canada would have become part of the United States in the war of 1812.

Only Once Prepared for War. "Only once in our history have we been prepared for war," he added. "That was immediately after the civil war, when we had a million and a half trained soldiers, our diplomatic correspondence with France at that time concerning Mexico was very brief. It required only one note because of our preparedness, France was told to get out of Mexico and she got out."

Must Protect Gold With Iron. "You will have all the gold, perhaps, but it will not do you much good unless you stuff it with iron."

As to the immediate needs of the regular army, General Wood expressed the opinion that the force of regulars with the colors should be maintained at 210,000. Of these, he said, 20,000 equipped and supplied for a year's time, should be kept in the Philippines; another 20,000 in Hawaii, and 15,000 at Panama.

Urges Reserve System. He urged that the regulars should have a reserve system under which in a six-year enlistment, men would be transferred into a reserve whenever their company commanders reported them efficient, to be definitely assigned to war stations.

Confidential System Second Best. General Wood said that if universal military service was not to be obtained, a continental army scheme substantially as proposed by the war department, "provided it is absolutely divorced from the organized militia."

The increase for the regular army proposed by Secretary Garrison, however, he characterized as "absurdly inadequate and indicating a failure to appreciate the lessons of the European war," particularly as to the proportion of field artillery. He recommended that the proportion of field guns be fixed at five to every 1,000 rifles on cadres.

Country Totally Unprepared. Reverting to the condition of the country to face war the general said the United States was utterly unprepared and knew nothing of the problems it would have to meet. At least
