

WRIGLEY'S

"I always keep a supply at the studio and some at home—it's a friend in need."

If You Were

a great movie actress, getting — oh, ever-so-much per move, playing emotional leads in which you had to emote for all you were worth through several thousand feet of film—you too would find solace and refreshment in this delicious mint-flavored goody.

Sealed Tight Kept Right

Write for the Wrigley's Spearmint Gum Plan book in colors, free. Address W.M. WRIGLEY Jr. Co. 1623 Kesner Bldg., Chicago.

Don't forget WRIGLEY'S after every meal

Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast a Splendid Habit

Open sluices of the system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisonous and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should arise, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, rashes, waste and acidity and gives that splendid appetite for breakfast and it is said to be but a little while until the roses begin to appear in the cheeks. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but it is sufficient to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation. Try it and you are assured that you will look better and feel better in every way shortly.

concern, Robert H. Cochran, politely declined to discuss the first run of the film. It was also learned that some of Reid's friends, when told of his new photoplay, expressed themselves in substance, as follows:

"I do not believe that I have listened to anything that shows such real rottenness in politics as this idea of the republican national committee."

"It is the most disgusting thing I ever listened to."

"It contributes a series of deliberate and studied insults to the nation's chief executive."

"Thinks It a Powerful Weapon"

"I call it 'watchful waiting,'" said Reid, at his new office, in number 1609 Broadway, when asked about the picture by a reporter on the World.

"I think it will go a long way toward beating Mr. Wilson."

"First I show Villa peeping through the bushes. Then there is a sub-title, reading about like this: 'Why didn't President Wilson stop the war in Europe by putting an embargo on all exports to European countries alike, except food-stuffs?'"

Reid was asked whether it was his own idea, or whether it had originated with the republican national committee, as it would obviously have been of great interest to the business men of the country had the latter been the case.

Mr. Reid modestly acknowledged that the idea was his own, and added: "Mr. Wilson could have stopped the war in a few weeks if he had done that. I often lie awake at night and think of the thousands who have been killed and the blood that has flowed simply because he would not put his pen to such a document."

Having thus indicated the possession of an active imagination, Reid went on telling of the scenario.

Next I show Vera Cruz. A launch filled with American sailors is approaching the wharf. I show a close-up of the Americans in the boat. Then I show the wharf and Mexicans armed, standing there. They fire on the boat. I show the officer in the boat picking up the American flag, riddled with bullet holes.

Shown Asleep Many Times

Reid explained that he played the American consul himself and demanded an apology from Huerta. In his photoplay Huerta, played by William C. Coker, exclaims dramatically:

"If your gringo president wants an apology he can come here and get it!"

"And then," said Reid, with a pleased smile, "I show the president asleep at his desk. I show that all through the piece a dozen times or more—the president asleep. I show it after the attack on Columbus and after Carrizal and after the news are attacked."

But having come a little ahead of his story, Reid returned to the Vera Cruz incident.

"I next show," he said, "the funeral of the seventeen men who were killed there. The funeral took place here, you know. I show the funeral and the president riding in a carriage and I follow that with this line: 'And he had the effrontery to attend the funeral.'"

Reid went on to say that he had woven a love story tightly through the "historical incidents." The story was that of a young girl engaged by a young man, and suddenly ordered to the border. He is killed and she enters a convent.

"Based on History"

"Villa never had become any amount of her," explained Reid. "Villa and his men, attack the convent and the sisters run away. I show the Mexicans pursuing them, catching them and dragging them into the brush, where they are executed."

"Is there any authority for that scene?" Reid was asked.

"I have used the incidents that Colonel Roosevelt has spoken about and written about many times, and which have never been contradicted. You can't deny history. I have used the story incidents that Mr. Wilson himself referred to in the letter he sent to Carranza. Here, with a minute's turning to his typewriter, Reid wrote the following and handed it to the reporter:

"Had I taken Mr. Wilson's own letter to Carranza in which he recited to Carranza the outrages perpetrated in Mexico, in which he said: 'I have given you forty-seven reasons why I could have intervened, I could have made a thousand-foot picture with Mr. Wilson on the scenario writer.'"

"No Such Sentence in Note."

Reid presumably meant the note sent to Carranza on June 29, not by Mr. Wilson but by Secretary of State Lansing. A perusal of this document fails to disclose any reference whatsoever to forty-seven incidents, though the note does state that the government of the United States "would have had no difficulty in finding sufficient evidence of violations and the order many plausible arguments for intervention in Mexican affairs."

The interruption broke the chronology of Reid's photo play recital. It was recalled that he had been speaking of the assault of the movie.

"Oh, yes," he continued, "then immediately I flashed on the screen the picture of Mr. Wilson asleep at his desk. You see the connection."

Another incident introduced, said Reid, is the raid on Columbus. "This depicts a family of Americans on the porch of a house. There are a father, mother and little child. A Mexican rushes up and shoots the child, who falls dead, leaving her mother."

"They again," said Reid, "show the president asleep at his desk."

Reid's narrative was frequently broken into by himself. He told his own views of the political situation of his country, his country for Colonel Roosevelt, and of his own feelings of incidents in Washington that have had effect on the president's cabinet.

Then Mrs. Reid came in and the information was volunteered that she plays the part of the man who is in love with the soldier and who later attracted the attention of Villa.

"Sun Ends Her Life."

"What happens to her," Reid was asked.

"Oh," he replied, "there is a scene in the brush. She has no revolver and so she seizes Villa's and shoots herself."

Reid did not say at this point that he again flashed on the screen the picture of President Wilson asleep.

The playlet said that in his picture he showed the house at Richmond Hill, L. I., in which Huerta lived after he was driven out of Mexico.

"It's a place," he said, and dwelt on the fact that the president permitted the armed Mexican ruler to come into this country.

"If he had done the right thing," said the republican national committee's scenario writer, "he would have declared Huerta an undesirable alien and have kept him out of the country."

Reid went on to say in this connection that in his play he shows how the president lifted the embargo to let Villa get sufficient ammunition to destroy the Carranza forces. The picture shows the ammunition delivered to Villa and the inference is given that this was done by the president against the advice of one of his associates who told him the ammunition and rifles would be used to kill Americans.

Another scene shows American soldiers attacked by the Mexicans. Some of them are about to return the fire, quickly an officer steps in front of them and orders them not to shoot.

Role of Wilson.

"The president has ordered," says the officer, "that not a shot must be fired. We are watching waiting."

"Then, again," said Reid, "I flash the president asleep."

"Who plays the part of President Wilson?" Reid was asked.

"Captain Johnson, of the Thirtieth regiment, New York national guard," readily responded Reid. "The World had obtained this information from another source and had also learned that several members of the same regiment of the national guard, through arrangements made with Harold Bergman, had posed as 'soldiers' in the production, being dressed in uniforms of American soldiers."

Captain Johnson does not resemble President Wilson. A "stiff" photograph taken for advertising purposes, reveals the fact that even with his makeup he does not look very much like the commander-in-chief of the United States army, to a branch of which Captain Johnson belongs.

These "stiff" photographs to be used in advertising the republican national committee's play are quite interesting, one of them shows a nun, Mrs. Reid, at her devotions. Another shows the pseudo Carranza, and a third a scene of the raid on Columbus. The notion pictures were taken near New York, some of them were prepared at a studio at Clifton, N. J. The "Mexican" scenes were photographed in the neighborhood of Shreveport, La., north of Pine Island, where there is a stretch of brush and scrub cedars.

"You wouldn't know it from the Mexican location," said Reid with a grin.

Other pictures were taken at Rock-away Point—the Vera Cruz of the republican national committee.

TUGUMCARI MAN SAYS HE KILLED BROTHER-IN-LAW

Lee Anderson Confesses to Firing Shot That Snuffs Out Life of Sister's Husband in That City Aug. 30.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL

Tugumcari, N. M., Sept. 17.—Saturday morning the murderer of George Zant, who was shot to death while he slept in a bed in his home two miles southeast of Tugumcari, on Wednesday morning, August 30, confessed to shooting Zant at 4:20 a. m. The confession was brought about after a series of attempts by the following method:

When it was found that Zant had been murdered by a person, evidently well acquainted with the immediate surroundings, Sheriff Ward and Deputy Winter began to weave their net as closely as they were able, but not until the arrival of H. Herron, deputy sheriff of Shackelford county, Texas, were they in a position to draw up the net.

After the killing Lee Anderson, a brother of the murdered man's wife, was suspected, and every movement was watched. He became anxious to find work and in order to keep him near Sheriff Ward sent him to his ranch southeast of town and put him to work.

Meets Old Acquaintance.

H. Herron arrived Thursday from Albany, Tex., having been sent here by Zant's brother. He strolled leisurely around town asking questions about first one thing then another. He was sure he would lay his hand on the guilty party, but was mistaken. He then took up another trail and believed he was on the right one. After deciding there was nothing doing so far, there was only one more place to find the murderer. Mr. Ward then made arrangements for him to reach his ranch with his camping outfit and ask to be allowed to camp over night. Sheriff Ward was at the ranch when Herron drove up and asked to camp, which he permitted and made it a point that Anderson should occasionally meet Herron, whom he had known for several years. They recognized each other and Herron asked him how he happened to be in this country. How long he had lived here and how he liked it. Anderson told him his sister, Mrs. Tugumcari, and she and her husband (George Zant) liked it fine. Herron said he never mentioned his mission here but went to bed believing he was on the right trail.

Anderson Unshaken.

The next morning he arose early and met Anderson again. Then he told Anderson that he was here at the request of Lee Zant, the dead man's brother, to find the murderer and he had found him. He then asked Anderson why he did not tell him that George Zant had been killed, but Anderson was surprised at the statement of his old time friend and was unshaken in his determination to know nothing of the case. He told Herron he did not tell him about the death of his brother-in-law. Then the deputy put forth his every effort to make the young man confess. He told him the officers knew he killed Zant, that his fingerprints were on the stick which was at the head of the bed and moved to the shelf in the room. He also told him as further evidence that he had killed Zant was the only person who knew the exact location of the gun and the place where the shells were kept.

Mr. Herron worked hard and was about to give up the proposition when Anderson gave up and confessed all. He was brought to town and reported his confession before a stenographer and a jury. He was convicted and after he had read same he willingly signed it as his free act and deed. The confession was in substance about as follows:

Details of Crime.

"The killing happened about 1:30 in the morning," he said. "I went to the room and killed him on Wednesday morning at 4 o'clock, August 30. After I killed him I threw the gun on the bed and went back and hid under the bed. It was only a few minutes before Mrs. Zant called to me. She told me George had killed himself, then I went in and put out the fire on the comfort. The attack was made by me, therefore, and I was away about thirty minutes before I went into the room. I thought I would kill him. I had a pretty good idea where the gun was and it was already loaded."

"When Mrs. Zant called to me you were awake, but let me go and I went to bed and let her call two or three times before you answered," he answered. "Yes, sir."

"What was the idea when you threw the gun on the bed and hid under it?" he asked. "I was afraid of the view of making people think he had committed suicide." To this he answered, "No, sir."

"He said he had three B after he got the shot with it."

"He said he had never thought of killing him until he came out here a month ago. He just got to studying about it a day or so before. He did not plan to do it that night, but when he was awake that morning he thought how easy it would be to go in and kill him while he slept."

He said the little boy was away far enough to be safe and he could not get out of trouble. He said he shot Zant in the face. He had the barrel of the gun closer than fifteen inches when he fired the shot.

No Others Implicated.

The above confession is approximately as Lee Anderson told Mr. Ward and Mr. Herron. He signed the statement before a notary public in the presence of witnesses. No other parties were implicated by Anderson, and he said he was alone and he did not think he saw him at all. He also said that he did not intend to report suicidal intent on Zant's part, but when Mrs. Zant suspected suicide he thought that would be a good way to get out of trouble. He said to Mr. Herron that he just intended to kill Zant and take the consequences.

The trial will come up at this time of court. It is thought, as Walter L. Myers, one of the leading attorneys of Albany, Tex., has arrived in Tugumcari to handle the defendant's side. He will be assisted by local talent.

The plea of insanity is perhaps the only hope of keeping Anderson from swinging from the gallows, because any man who is in his right mind would necessarily be a hard hearted

MEXICO INTERNAL AFFAIRS ARE TO BE CONSIDERED

It is Believed That the Mediators Will Turn to This Phase of Problem; Border Question Still Unsettled.

BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADER WIRE

New London, Conn., Sept. 17.—Both American and Mexican members of the joint commission studying international questions growing out of Mexico's revolution, were confident tonight that mutual progress toward a mutual understanding would be made this week, but an early agreement upon a program for the maintenance of order along the border was considered impracticable.

An effort probably will be made by the Americans when the session resumes tomorrow to confine the immediately discussions to subjects related to Mexico's internal affairs. To obtain advice on this subject and others touching upon the status of American in Mexico, the American commissioners have requested the presence of Counselor Park of the state department.

FOREIGNERS MAKE RUN ON PRIVATE BANK IN CHICAGO

Russians and Poles, Panic Stricken Over the Failure of Several Similar Institutions, Raid Schiff & Co.

BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADER WIRE

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Russians and Poles in Chicago, West side foreign quarter, panic-stricken by failure of several private banks, jammed and fought their way today into a state bank in that district and created a run on the institution. The bank was that of Schiff & Co., which has more than $2,000,000 in deposits and is believed to be absolutely solvent.

Girls in the West side foreign quarter were crowded into the few hours of service. When the foreign bank opened at 8:30 a. m. a crowd of depositors entered and began withdrawing funds. Police protection was called. More than 150,000 mostly in savings accounts, had been withdrawn when the bank closed at 11 a. m. Samuel R. Schuster, cashier, announced there is plenty of money on hand and that all depositors who wish will be paid tomorrow.

Mediators Struck the Tip of the Iceberg Caused by the Crash of the Silver & Co., Michael Michnik & Sons and the M. Winkler & Sons, private banks within a few weeks.

Shiff & Co. is one of the largest banking institutions on the West side.

Azel Veteran Is Dead.

Santa Fe, Sept. 17.—Out of respect to the members of Federal Judge William H. Pope, district court in Eddy county, over which he presided for one term, an adjournment for a week by District Judge J. A. Richardson, who arrived today to attend the funeral.

Want a high grade employee or the better grade of service? Make use of the want columns of the Journal.

TO RECONSTRUCT WHOLE WORLD IS BRITAIN'S PLAN

Division of Earth Into Economic Stratas, Separated by Tariff Walls, Advocated by Chamber of Commerce.

BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADER WIRE

Washington, Sept. 17.—Proposals of the world into economic stratas separated by tariff walls and divided as allies of the British empire, friendly neutrals, unfriendly neutrals and enemy neutrals, are being advanced by the London chamber of commerce.

By adoption of the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

Another plan, experts are expected to show the greatest interest in the chamber's recommendations. This involves a plan to be known as the foundation of a new central credit bank.

In addition to the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

By adoption of the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

In addition to the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

By adoption of the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

In addition to the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

By adoption of the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

In addition to the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

By adoption of the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

In addition to the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

By adoption of the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

In addition to the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

By adoption of the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

In addition to the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

By adoption of the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

In addition to the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

By adoption of the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

In addition to the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

By adoption of the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

In addition to the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

By adoption of the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

In addition to the discrimination tariff, subjects of countries now at war with Great Britain would not be allowed to buy in British markets, except on license.

J. HAM LEWIS TO START ON TRAIL OF HUGHES

BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADER WIRE

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois left for Indianapolis today, where he will open his speaking tour through the north-west in behalf of Wilson and Mrs. Hull. Monday he will follow the route taken recently by Charles E. Hughes to the Pacific and return to Illinois about the middle of October to close the campaign in his home state.

BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADER WIRE

Chicago City, Colo., Sept. 17.—While returning from a hunting trip Elmer Gould accidentally shot and probably fatally, injured his brother, Marshall, about 5 years, near this city last night.

The older boy was carrying the rifle over his shoulder and the younger brother was trailing along behind when in some unknown manner the gun went off. The bullet struck the child in the head and passed through the other part of the brain. Little hope is entertained for the recovery of the boy.

BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADER WIRE

Chicago City, Colo., Sept. 17.—While returning from a hunting trip Elmer Gould accidentally shot and probably fatally, injured his brother, Marshall, about 5 years, near this city last night.

The older boy was carrying the rifle over his shoulder and the younger brother was trailing along behind when in some unknown manner the gun went off. The bullet struck the child in the head and passed through the other part of the brain. Little hope is entertained for the recovery of the boy.

BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADER WIRE

Chicago City, Colo., Sept. 17.—While returning from a hunting trip Elmer Gould accidentally shot and probably fatally, injured his brother, Marshall, about 5 years, near this city last night.

The older boy was carrying the rifle over his shoulder and the younger brother was trailing along behind when in some unknown manner the gun went off. The bullet struck the child in the head and passed through the other part of the brain. Little hope is entertained for the recovery of the boy.

BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADER WIRE

Chicago City, Colo., Sept. 17.—While returning from a hunting trip Elmer Gould accidentally shot and probably fatally, injured his brother, Marshall, about 5 years, near this city last night.

The older boy was carrying the rifle over his shoulder and the younger brother was trailing along behind when in some unknown manner the gun went off. The bullet struck the child in the head and passed through the other part of the brain. Little hope is entertained for the recovery of the boy.

BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADER WIRE

Chicago City, Colo., Sept. 17.—While returning from a hunting trip Elmer Gould accidentally shot and probably fatally, injured his brother, Marshall, about 5 years, near this city last night.

The older boy was carrying the rifle over his shoulder and the younger brother was trailing along behind when in some unknown manner the gun went off. The bullet struck the child in the head and passed through the other part of the brain. Little hope is entertained for the recovery of the boy.

BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADER WIRE

Chicago City, Colo., Sept. 17.—While returning from a hunting trip Elmer Gould accidentally shot and probably fatally, injured his brother, Marshall, about 5 years, near this city last night.

The older boy was carrying the rifle over his shoulder and the younger brother was trailing along behind when in some unknown manner the gun went off. The bullet struck the child in the head and passed through the other part of the brain. Little hope is entertained for the recovery of the boy.

BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADER WIRE

Chicago City, Colo., Sept. 17.—While returning from a hunting trip Elmer Gould accidentally shot and probably fatally, injured his brother, Marshall, about 5 years, near this city last night.

The older boy was carrying the rifle over his shoulder and the younger brother was trailing along behind when in some unknown manner the gun went off. The bullet struck the child in the head and passed through the other part of the brain. Little hope is entertained for the recovery of the boy.

BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADER WIRE

Chicago City, Colo., Sept. 17.—While returning from a hunting trip Elmer Gould accidentally shot and probably fatally, injured his brother, Marshall, about 5 years, near this city last night.

The older boy was carrying the rifle over his shoulder and the younger brother was trailing along behind when in some unknown manner the gun went off. The bullet struck the child in the head and passed through the other part of the brain. Little hope is entertained for the recovery of the boy.

AZTEC Fuel Company

Gallup Lump
Gallup Stove
Native Wood
Sawed & Split
Mill Kindling

PHONE 251

Have you seen the Cronemeyer Blankets?

Come to the southwest corner of Gold avenue and Third street—in the old Dunbar office—and see the immense stock of fine Navajo Blankets being sold out regardless of cost by order of the Court!

Don't be afraid of not getting a good one—hundreds of blankets are yet in the bales and have not been shown—new goods are displayed every day!!

OPEN EVERY NIGHT PHONE 931

Aspirin is made by only one company.

To get the genuine Bayer Tablets of Aspirin see that every package and every tablet bears

"The Bayer Cross—Your Guarantee of Purity"

The trademark "Aspirin" Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. is a guarantee that the non-toxic aspirin tablets in these tablets is of the reliable Bayer manufacture.