A STENOGRAPHER'S ROMANCE

BY JANE PHELPS

NELLIE'S FIRST PARTY

Chapter 41

The feeling that they had a home made the girls so happy that Nellie constantly feared something untoward would happen to dampen their joy. Cora held them strictly to her plan of buying a hot noon day meal, so simplifying the house-keeping. But many little dainties, at least dainties to them, were cooked by one or the other on the shining stove—Nellie's pride.

Sunday they cooked all three meals, and took delight in the house-keeping. But many little dainties, at least dainties to them, were cooked by one or the other on the shining stove—Nellie's pride.

"Heaven can't be better than this!" Nellie declared. "Just think, girls, it's home!"

It really was pathetic the emphasis the poor girl put upon the word, how often she spoke it. "A home at last!" Or "Think what we missed all my life and no home."

It was fortunate that both Cora and Gladys appreciated this feeling, this love of the poor little rooms, the only home she ever had known, and upon which she poured all the enthusiasm of her nature.

Gradually the three girls added all they could to make it comfortable and attractive. Cora mentioned to her mother that they hoped to have some muslin curtains and Mrs. Baker wrote to send on the material and measurements and she would make them.

Nellie insisted upon buying the muslin, Gladys would buy ribbon to tie them back. Cora's share was her mother's sewing.

"What a difference curtains make," Gladys said, as they hung the crisp muslin at the windows. Nellie was almost speechless with delight.

"I wish everyone I know, even Miss Carter, could see us in these lovely rooms," she finally said. "I guess they would think I was somebody!" They were to treat me as if I was nothing but a machine to wait on them. I wish Miss Dorothy and Mr. George could know too."

"They probably would think it very small and mean," Gladys said, not seeing the warning look on Cora's face at her answer. "They give their servants better than this, I expect."

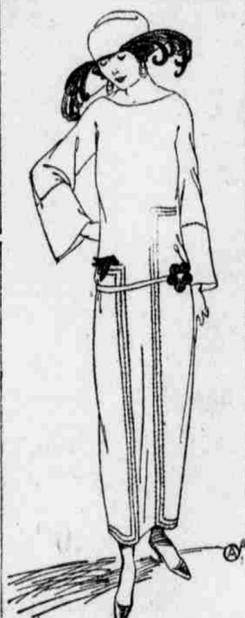

Nellie's face dropped.

"I wish they could see us so nicely fixed too," Cora said. "I am sure they would know it was better for us; and also that it helped us do

While the dull crepes continue to hold their own in the ranks of fashionable fabrics, there are those who whisper that first place will have to be yielded to the crepes with lustrous surface. A lovely, satin-faced crepe is very popular form for autumn wear. It is shown in the attractive frock illustrated today in that charming new yellow shade of brown called bamboo with heavy ribbed silk stitched in the same color, and a touch bright green in the batik handkerchief which peeps from the pocket on the right side, the same vivid repeated in the circular cluster of stiff flat roses which finishes the centre on the left side.

TODAY'S RECIPES.
Steamed Veal—Take one and one-half lbs. veal steak, one egg, bread or cracker crumbs, one tablespoon of butter, one pint milk, blespoon flour, salt, pepper and pinch of soda. Cut veal into serving pieces, dip into beaten egg with little water added, then into crumbs and fry brown in hot fat. Season and remove to steamer, and when all is browned make a sauce of the milk, using flour, salt, butter and soda, and pour over veal. Steam until tender.

Creole Sweet Potatoes—Peel and cut into half six large sweet potatoes. Mix together one cup dark brown sugar and one and one-half tablespoons flour, one large tablespoon butter and one and one-half quarts water. Turn over potatoes (they should just be submerged) and cook over a slow fire, turning often. When potatoes are done the sauce should be thick and sugary. Apple, cabbage and Beet Salad—Cut one-half head cabbage into fine pieces, peel, core and dice four medium tart apples. Combine and cover with boiled salad dressing thinned with cream or top milk. Arrange on salad plates and garnish with cooked beets and dots of salad dressing.

Bacon Dressing Over Toast—Cut in inch square pieces, three-quarters cup of sliced bacon; fry crisp, pour off part of fat, brown heaping tablespoon flour, add to the remainder and add milk to make thin dressing. Pour hot over toast.

SELIGMAN SAYS THE CAMPAIGN HAS BEEN CLEANEST IN YEARS

Arthur Seligman of Santa Fe, who was chairman of the democratic state central committee for several years, was in the city last night. Mr. Seligman said the present campaign has been the best and the cleanest he has seen in the state in several years. He said he was not prepared to give an estimate of the results of the coming election, but it is his opinion that Senator Jones and the democratic state ticket will be elected.

11,573 VOTERS REGISTER FOR BALLOT IN CITY

Total in County Reaches 28,423; Books for City Divisions to Be on Display in City Today.

Registration in the two city precincts for the election of November 7 totals 11,573, according to official announcement by the boards of registration. The registration in the county precincts is 16,850, making a total for the city and county of 28,423.

The registration for the city is the largest in its history. Two years ago the total was near 10,000. Judging by the ratios that have prevailed in previous elections, leading politicians said yesterday that a vote of from 7,000 to 8,000 will be cast in the city.

The following statement was given to the press yesterday by the registration officials for the information of voters:

"The registration books for Precinct 12 and Precinct 26 have been bound and will be delivered to the county clerk this morning. By noon today, a copy of the registration in each division of Precinct 12 will be on display at the drug store of B. Ruppe, 203 West Central. A copy of the registration of such division in Precinct 26 will be on display at Briggs' drug store, 469 West Central.

"If the name of the voter is not found on the list in his division and his precinct, it will be necessary for him to have an affidavit made out and present the same on the day of election to the judges, and if he is a qualified voter, the law provides that he may vote by means of this affidavit, although the election judges have a right to inquire as to his qualifications as a voter.

"The workers from both parties, who have made up this registration for the registration boards have endeavored to place the name of each voter in his proper division and district. There are 11,573 names on the registration books. The registration from each division is as follows:

Precinct 12.
Division 1B, 350; division 1A, 842; division 2A, 1,155; division 2B, 1,211; division 2C, 1,056. Total, 4,914.

Precinct 26.
Division 1D, 555; division 1C, 645; division 1B, 1,238; division 1A, 1,219; division 2A, 1,321; division 2B, 1,709. Total, 6,679.

"John Baron Burg, for the republican party; L. C. Merfeldter, for the democratic party, and Herman Mohr, for the boards of registration wish to express their appreciation and to thank the ladies of both parties, who so kindly gave up their time and worked so hard, patiently and earnestly in getting up these books at the earliest possible date.

"Because of confusion in registration and the irregularity of districts, and the large number of names to handle, this has been a huge task and unappreciated by most people. We had 25 clerks and stenographers working most of the time for six days. While all have done the best they could, the committee feels confident that many names have been overlooked or placed in the wrong divisions.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty years old and married. We have two children. My husband got to staying out nights and so when he came home one morning he had some words and he left. I stayed at our home for nearly a week waiting for him to come back, but he didn't come, and so I went home to my folks with the children. He did not leave me any money and I had him taken up for non-support. He told me while he was in jail he would go to house-keeping if I would get him out of it. I did, and when he got out he told me he would live with me in two years if I was good to the children during that time.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young girl twenty-six years old, dark hair and brown eyes. I have

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young married woman about twenty-four years old. I have been married seven years and I have four little children. My baby is two years and nine months old now. I am just crazy for an infant son, but my husband doesn't care for children. I guess it is because he is so much older than I am. Every time I say anything to him about an infant he says we have more than we can say grace over. He is good to me and gives me anything I ask for as far as he is able. I do believe that he loves me. I am in good health and so is he and I don't see why he doesn't love children. His mother was the mother of eight children and my mother was the mother of fourteen. All of my sister's husbands love children and they have from two to six children. Please advise me what to do. I would like to gain his love for children in some way.

Kentucky Lady Tells How She Became Strong and Healthy—Recommends Cardui to Weak Women.

Mount Vernon, Ky.—Mrs. Cynthia Vanhook, formerly of Stanford, but now residing here, says that after her third child was born, she undertook to resume her housework too soon, "and this caused me a great deal of trouble."

"My doctor told me my imprudence had caused shock to the nervous system, and the thing to do was to use a tonic to build up my strength."

"He recommended Cardui. . . Very soon I saw an improvement in my condition. I used three bottles of Cardui and . . . my health was restored."

"I am a strong, healthy woman."

This Kentucky lady adds that she "never fails to recommend Cardui to weak and run-down lady friends."
