

MORNING MELANGE.

It was an Oshkosh man who took his best girl to a funeral and gave her a chip of coal to be a "momentum of the occasion."

There is a man in Schenectady, N. Y., getting rich from a dog. He owns a canine which he has sold several times, but it always returns home, no matter how far it is carried.

Sarah Holland, a woman evangelist preaching among the negroes at Brunswick, Ga., distributes a load of watermelons free at the meetings. The crowds that go to hear her preach are enormous.

A musical clock over 100 years old furnished twenty-four pieces of music for the entertainment of the guests at the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Schneider of Helleboren, Pa., on Sunday.

A remarkable wedding took place at Goshen, Ind., recently. Messick Carpenter, aged 85, was wedded to Mrs. Phoebe Condit, who has seen 69 summers. Both of the contracting parties had been wedded three times before, and they were accompanied at the ceremony by their grandchildren.

At Belfast, Me., a sail-boat capsized in the harbor the other day, and W. H. Howe went overboard. His 5-year-old daughter, standing on the bank, exclaimed: "Hold on, papa! Stand right on your feet. I'm coming to you as soon as I can get my shoes off." And she proceeded to prepare to go to the rescue.

At the "old settlers'" meeting recently held in Cass county, Indiana, a good old lady got up to tell of the early life in the country for the first time, and as it was her first attempt to speak in public she had a severe attack of stage fright. At last she said: "My friends, I am an old citizen. I can remember when these great oak trees were nothing but hazel bushes."

A young man in Piscataquis county, Maine, who lives in a region haunted by those trials of newly married couples known as serenaders, seems to have got the better of his tormentors the other night. Instead of trying to dodge the visit he invited the musicians to come up, and only after they had given some of their choicest selections did they learn that the bride was 20 miles away.

If you want to get quick and intelligent service in a restaurant, says an old patron, do not whistle at the waiter. He doesn't like it, and if you repeat it he will try to get even with you some way, giving you a tough beefsteak or a muddy cup of coffee. If you are in a hurry rap on your glass or hammer the table. That's restaurant etiquette that I've learned by a good deal of experience.

Edward Kennedy, employed on the Samuels farm in Windsor, Conn., has unearthed in one of the fields an ancient silver coin, bearing the colonial stamp of Massachusetts. It is bright and the date and inscription are as plain as ever. On one side is the word "Massachusetts," with a tree in the center, and on the other "New England 1652, VI" (shillings). The coin is one of the rarest of the colonial pieces. At the time it was struck the colonists had but little coin, because they had to send their money to England to buy supplies. Trade was carried on by barter, wampum, Indian corn and even bullets being frequently the mediums of exchange. Finally, in 1652, the Massachusetts legislature authorized the coining of Pine Tree shillings, like that found by Kennedy.

DANCING WITH FOREIGNERS.
Young Girls at Newport Who Did Not Find It Very Pleasant.

The French and Austrian men-of-war which visited Newport this season added not a little to the gaiety of the early season, writes a Newport correspondent. Entertainments were given in their honor on board ship and elsewhere, and the officers, it is said, with the susceptibility characteristic of their profession, admired our pretty young girls very much. Their method of dancing was not, however, calculated to recommend them to the American feminine heart. Whatever may be the objects of our new world civilization, we have made vast improvements in the art of dancing. Our young ladies, accustomed to the graceful American methods, were quite overpowered at the manner in which these foreign officers pranced up and down the decks, never reversing, and stopping the dance with such suddenness that their partners, dizzy with the rapid motion, were obliged to grasp at gun carriages, railings or any near object in order to avoid falling. One young girl told the writer that she did not recover from the fatigue of dancing with these foreign partners for two or three days, although she was a buxom and hearty looking maiden.

WOMAN'S DRESS.
Vandyke and sandal are new eeri shades. All the new browns have more gold than red in them. The shades of gray now worn are absolutely lovely. "Ox rouge" is the name of a new red gold color, with more red than yellow in it. Pure white toilets, prepared for autumn, are exquisite in their artistic simplicity. Several new and pretty shades of lilac and violet cashmere are shown for new dresses. Half shawls of white muslin and lace are worn with hats of shirred muslin to match. Full velvet sleeves are a feature of silk and wool gowns prepared for autumn trousseaux. Stuart frills of costly lace falling over the corsage are worn over many bodices slightly open at the neck. In new autumn gowns there will be less use made of goods in combination than of handsome solid colors richly bordered. Light-colored but warm wooleens will be worn all through the autumn till the stormy days of early winter impose darker tints. Very striking plaids are imported with a silk surface thrown up above soft wool goods, and many of these are in Madras colors. The favorite ribbon for dress garniture is a rich gros grain, irregularly striped with satin or else with a border of satin on each edge. The gray and silver shades are strikingly beautiful this season, and in very many cases these tints take the precedence of all others.

In the Sweet By and By.
There will be peace Without strife For suffering but heads by and by. For frost will seize And quickly freeze The frisky, festive, frolicish fly. —Washington Post.

Slightly Mixed.
From Harper's Bazar.

"Who was Paris?" asked the reader of an Oklahoma paper; to which reply was made that Paris was the serpent that gave Eve the apple.

"Happy as a King."
From the Fliegende Blätter.

"King Milan is fearfully short of money and utterly without credit." When Brokely read this he thrust both hands into his pockets up to the wrists and exclaimed melodramatically: "Now I know what it is to feel like a king."

DEMOCRATS OF MONTANA.

THE most important election in which the people were ever called upon to participate is but thirty days off.

Never since the organization of the territory has the Democracy been so united or seemingly so invincible. Our cause is just, our candidates invulnerable, and our victory ought to be certain. There is but one danger to be feared, and that is a failure to register. Let every man that deserves well of the coming state see to it that he is not disfranchised by that vicious and partisan law, which ought to have been entitled "An act to disfranchise the farmers, miners and stockmen of Montana," and which was born of the first republican legislature of Montana.

Register, and do so at once, and thus rebuke the party that enacted such a law. Delay is dangerous. In order to vote you must register on before September 15.

Let the naturalized citizens of this territory who have been voting unmolested for years, hunt up their papers that they have not seen for ten years, and go to the place of registration and register, and at the same time register a vow to rebuke the political party that puts you to this great inconvenience and practically disfranchises you by the absurd provision which requires you to produce your papers, and in some instances to travel a hundred miles to register before you can exercise the rights of freemen.

We ask all who are interested in good government to read the platform of our party. Examine the public and business records of our candidates, pursue and investigate them in all their relations to the public, to the last and final analysis, and we are confident that you will find them worthy Montanians, men who will guard and protect her interests at all hazards.

Register and tell your friends to register.

The Misunderstood Dentist.
A woman came in from Dearborn one day this week, says the Detroit Free Press, and went up to the office of a dentist. "I want my teeth fixed," she said, "and you can give me chloroform or ether." "We don't give either nowadays," said the dentist respectfully. "Very well, then, give chloroform," she said as she climbed up into the velvet chair. "But we don't give chloroform, either," explained the dentist. "I don't want chloroform either; I want just plain chloroform," said the toothache sufferer. "Allow me to explain, madame," responded the dentist, exhibiting an inclination to smile. "I give laughing-gas to patients, but neither chloroform nor ether, neither of which is in use now." "The woman slipped down out of the chair and tied her bonnet on with a bump. "Let me out of this," she exclaimed. "I believe the man is crazy with his ether, neither, and such stuff. I'll go to a dentist that knows his business," and she shut the door with a slam that started every tooth in that dentist's head.

The Wrong Sex.
From the Jewish Messenger.

Good-natured Dr. — In his later years had grown very deaf. One day he was asked to make the address at a funeral, and in his florid manner began the introduction. Then he continued: "My dear friends, a noble man has departed." The sexton tugged him by his gown and whispered, "A woman." "A noble man has gone from earth." "A woman, a woman." "He was again whispered, "A noble man has passed to life eternal." "A woman!" was finally shouted in his ear, and all went well afterward, but the solemnity was gone from that funeral.
