

"SUNSET" COX.

A Gracious Recognition of His Services To the People of the West.

While Sunset Cox may never rank in history as a great statesman in the sense of formulating governmental policies or shaping the relations of the United States with the great powers, too high an estimate cannot be placed upon his usefulness. The secret of his success was that he recognized the measure of his own strength and devoted himself to a few things which he mastered perfectly. The life saving service, the free delivery system of the postoffice department, the tenth census and matters relating to the territories he understood from bottom up. When anything relating to those subjects came upon the floor of the house, Mr. Cox was ready with suggestions, explanations and statistics. It was the sense of his thorough acquaintance with his subject that silenced objectors and his fellow members found themselves forced to grant his demands because they were powerless to refute his facts and logic. It is also noteworthy that Mr. Cox, when he championed a cause, exhibited his breadth of mind by putting no questions of partisanship to stand in his way. It was of no consequence to him that the federal government was in the hands of the republicans when he made his plea for the free delivery system and the life saving service; it mattered not to him that all the applicant territories except one at the last session were outwardly in the hands of the party, when justice demanded their admission. Such a man forced respect even from his political adversaries, for he disarms every feeling except manifest patriotism.

The writer's last conversation with Mr. Cox was in the lobby of the house on the Sunday before congress adjourned and was on this subject. The territorial bill admitting Montana, Washington and the two Dakotas had been passed two days before. I asked him now that the democratic party was about to take control of the house what it had done to recommend itself to the future consideration of the people.

He responded: "It has followed the advice of Stephen A. Douglas and done an act of justice to the territories."

It is remarkable that Mr. Cox began and closed his congressional career working in behalf of the territories. Mr. Cox was on the committee on territories during his past term in congress. At that time the house met in Statuary hall. Mr. Cox and John Sherman, then a representative, are the only two now in public life who were present when the new hall was dedicated. Some pleasing ceremonies in honor of the event were performed when the house, as its first legislative act, went into committee of the whole to consider a pending territorial bill. Cox was charged with making the report. Several questions were asked until Cox arose and delivered a long extemporaneous speech in explanation of the bill. It was his maiden speech, but it was a brilliant effort and secured for him his rank. It is also remembered as the first speech in the new hall. There is something like poetic justice in the thought that after a long career extended over thirty years, he should have rounded the circle and have finished where he began—battling for the new states.

BONDS AND STOCKS.

Ups and Downs in Market Values on the New York Exchange.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The stock market today remained in the dull and listless state into which it has fallen, and outside of one or two stocks in the regular list and trusts, presented no feature of interest. THE REVISED LIST.

FROM GREAT FALLS.

Democrats Wide Awake and Prepared to Pull a Full Vote.

Special to the Standard. GREAT FALLS, Sept. 20.—Reports from the country districts are cheering. Large democratic meetings have been held at Belt and Cora. Hon. Robert S. Ford, Messrs. Crskill, Wringwald, Staten, Clark and other active democrats are making telling speeches in honor of the meeting are ablaze with enthusiasm for Toole, Maginnis and victory. There will be no split tickets among the democrats of Cascade county. They will vote to a man for the whole ticket including Jesus Day, the joint representative for Dawson and Cascade. Democratic rallies will be held at St. Clair on Monday and at Trully on Tuesday. Charles G. Bynum, the extensive wool grower, has returned from Helena. He predicts that the entire democratic ticket will be elected.

Delegate Carter, Major Eaton and other republican leaders raised the siege of Great Falls to-day and at last accounts were retreating hurriedly on Helena, convinced that they cannot capture the eastern city. A republican who offered as a bid to let $100,000 over on Carter was promptly met to-day. Another republican offered to bet $50,000 on Power, but backed out when met.

Joseph J. Jellat, a well known citizen, publishes a legal notice to-day warning the public that a false land contract has probably been made out on a sheet of paper which he signed in blank. The notice refers to an active republican and excites much comment.

Two of a Kind.

Washington letter in Providence Journal: It is said of the wife of a certain congressman, who has earned a sort of Mrs. Malapop reputation here, that she went, not long ago, to a local intelligence office to engage a servant. The first one to whom she spoke knew English imperfectly, but said, when asked what country she came from, "I am a Bohemian." "Goodness me!" replied the congressman's wife, with a virtuous shudder. "I am sincerely grieved to hear such a confession from a young person so apparently innocent as yourself. My husband has often told me that Bohemianism was simply another form for disreputability. However, I trust that there is still a chance for you to reform."

And with this she drew her matronly skirts away from the suspicious young woman of Bohemia, and went over to another girl, the closest situation. Nor did the latter fail to satisfactorily, though unconsciously, avenge her sister in matrimony.

"Please ma'am," she said, after a long and exasperating series of questions addressed to her prospective mistress as to the duties which would be expected of her, "I would like to ask your name."

Before she was before you were married. Before I take a place I always like to find out everything about the family I am to live with, as to respectability and so on."

His Night.

From the Hamburger Kalender. A young apprentice one day at breakfast suddenly exclaimed: "I am going blind! Ah! I am blind!" His master, alarmed, asked him how it happened.

"Don't know," was the reply, "but I am so blind I can not see butter on my bread."

The good-natured master, who had once been young himself, begged his wife to put a bit of cheese on the lad's bread.

After supper the old man inquired: "Well, my lad, how are your eyes now?" "Thanks, Herr Knieriem, they are quite well again. I could distinctly see the bread through the cheese."

The Reverse Side.

From the Burlington Free Press. Bald-headed and very homely old gentleman to photographer: "Dread such pictures! Can't you make me look any better than that after five sittings?" Photographer (thoroughly exasperated): "I think I can, sir, if you will allow me to take the back of your head. It hasn't so much expression as the other side, but it's a blamed sight prettier."

Riots in Mexico.

DALLAS, TEX., Sept. 20.—A special from Van Horn says S. M. Allen, who has just returned from the Rio Grand river, reports that Mexican citizens had a desperate fight with Mexican officers and soldiers in which 400 participated and many were reported killed. It is said the citizens succeeded in routing the soldiers. When the governor appeared on the scene to quell the rebellion, he was told to leave or lose his life. The trouble was over the collection of enormous taxes.

Big Saw Mills Burned. BURLINGAME, ORE., Sept. 20.—A special from Snohomish, W. T., says that fire which started in the dry house of Blackman Bros. saw and planing mill destroyed nearly all their plant. The loss is fully $150,000, with no insurance. It was feared for a time that the whole town would burn and several buildings had to be torn down.

Ready to Help Out.

From the New York Sun. Moneybags—You say you wish to marry my daughter? Well, you know I have three, and on the marriage of each I shall give her husband $10,000. Which one do you want? Jack Napes—I'll tell you what we'll do. You'll move out to Utah, and I'll take all three of them off your hands. I'm willing to do the square thing.

Limits and Elegies. From the New York Sun. Miss Pennyquick, referring to a funeral from which she had just returned:—And oh, ma, such a beautiful elegy the minister had for the occasion!

Mrs. Pennyquick (mistaking the allusion)—Oh, Almiry, can't I never teach you to be more polite? You done well to spell the word out and say I, e. g. instead of leg, but you oughter say limb every time.

Easily Explained. From the New York Sun. Henderson—Why is it that Dolan enters the saloon by the back door, Williamson? He used to be a man and walk right in the front door. Williamson—That was before he signed the pledge.

His Thoughts Were Elsewhere. Barber—Close shave, sir? Dipsly (thinking of something far different)—You bet it was. I had hardly dodged the old man's foot when the dog made a spring for me, and if I hadn't—Oh, excuse me! No, just go over it once.
