SHOT IN SELF-DEFENSE

That's the Way It Looked to All the Eye-Witnesses Save Gagner.

BAGLEY WAS A BAD MAN

The Preliminary Examination of Hank McCloskey on a Charge of Murder May Result in His Speedy Acquittal.

BUTTE, May 21.—The preliminary examination of "Hank" McCloskey, who shot Fred Bagley in a row on the flat south of the city on April 23, was commenced in Judge Turner's court today. The information against McCloskey charged him with murder in the first degree. Assistant County Attorney Booth conducted the prosecution and attorneys John W. Cotter, F. T. McBride and W. L. Lippincott appeared for the defense. The evidence that was brought out today went to show that the shooting was done in self defense, and unless the state can bring out some more damaging testimony to-morrow McCloskey will very likely be acquitted. Twenty-seven witnesses were sworn this morning.

John Gagner, who was with Bagley when he was shot, and who was also shot in the arm by McCloskey, was the first witness examined. He testified practically the same as at the coroner's inquest. He said in substance that McCloskey, Bagley and himself started to drive to Woodville late in the afternoon of April 23. When out beyond the Silver Bow mill Bagley and McCloskey got into a row over a bill which was alleged to be due to the former. The witness was under the influence of liquor at the time, and could not give a detailed account of the causes that led up to the shooting. After some words had passed between them, McCloskey jumped out on the right hand side of the wagon, and told Bagley that if he would get out he would put a head on him. Bagley accepted the invitation and got out on the opposite side and walked around behind the wagon to the place where McCloskey was waiting for him. McCloskey, the witness said, was jumping up and down and making hostile demonstrations. The witness then got down from the wagon and walked toward the others, telling them that they were good friends and should not quarrel. McCloskey then drew his revolver and fired a shot, and Bagley fell to the ground. McCloskey then turned the gun on Gagner, and saying, "perhaps you want some of this, John," he fired again. Gagner threw up his arm, and the bullet struck him in the elbow.

Gagner got badly tangled up and contradicted himself several times under the cross-examination of Mr. Cotter. He admitted that he could not definitely state on which side of the wagon either McCloskey or he got out, and, although he could not remember anything that passed between the two men while they were in the wagon, he was positive that Bagley did not say anything to provoke a quarrel. He was positive that Bagley did not have a revolver or other weapon. He said that McCloskey did not walk away from the wagon farther than 10 or 12 feet, when he returned to within about 6 feet of it.

Under the ruling of the state supreme court requiring the state to put all of the eye witnesses of a homicide on the stand, Marion Bean, Mrs. Nellie Bean, Annie Boenkingsop and W. J. Rowe, the other persons who witnessed the shooting, were examined in the order named. Their version of the affair was substantially the same. They saw the men driving along in a wagon and their attention was drawn to them by loud talking and a scuffle. Gagner tried to hold McCloskey in the wagon, but he jumped out and started out in a diagonal direction. Bagley and Gagner followed him. He pulled his revolver and told them to stand back. They kept walking toward him and he finally shot Bagley and then shot Gagner in the arm. Gagner started to run off and McCloskey called to him to come back and said he would not hurt him. McCloskey stood still after the shooting and asked Bean to arrest him. He told Bean he had to kill Bagley and did not want to get away. He said he was willing to take his chances with one man, but would not take the chance of two.

McBride then asked that the defendant be discharged, as he said, the evidence of the state's witnesses were conflicting and showed clearly that it was a case of self-defense. He said that no jury in the district court would convict McCloskey on the evidence of the state's witnesses. Both admitted that the evidence of the state failed to show any premeditation or malice, but he maintained that it did show a case of manslaughter. If the defendant was innocent, as his attorneys claimed, there was no reason why the defense should not be heard and the court put in possession of all the facts. The court overruled the motion for a dismissal and the witnesses for the defense were put on.

J. W. Cabbage, William Sutherland, Charles Kurz, C. L. Harris, Nell Peterson, George Myers, Carl Steinstrup, Sam Leck, E. Miller, Gus Olsson, Bert Yerra, George Schilling, James Williams, W. H. Henderson and James Page, residents of Butte and Woodville, testified to the bad character of Bagley. They all said that he was very quarrelsome, particularly when under the influence of liquor. Sutherland was asked by Booth if he had ever had any trouble with Bagley. "Yes," replied the witness, "and it was not my fault that I did not save McCloskey the trouble of killing him. He came in the door of my saloon at Woodville one night and I fired two shots at him, but it was dark, and as I am not a very good shot anyway, I missed him."

The testimony of all the witnesses named went to show that Bagley had provoked trouble with nearly every man in Woodville at one time or another. Gilbert Stuckler and Maxime Leland testified to a conversation which they had had with Bagley about a week or 10 days before the shooting, in which he stated that unless McCloskey paid him some money that he owed him he would take it out of his hide and would fix him. They told McCloskey what Bagley had said. At this point the case was continued until 10 o'clock to-morrow. The defense has several more witnesses to examine.

AN EVENTFUL FIRE.

It Didn't Burn Much, But There Was a Lot of Danger and Excitement.

BUTTE, May 21.—Fire broke out a little after 10 o'clock to-night in Eschel's plumbing shop, in the basement of the Thornton block in East Broadway. The fire created an unusual volume of smoke and caused a great deal of excitement. Owing to the location of the fire and the thick smoke, it was some time before the firemen could get near it, but they finally got a couple of streams on it and soon had it out. The blaze started in a pile of rope, near the center of the basement, and was either caused by combustion or was the work of an incendiary. As the basement contained nothing but tools and a quantity of iron supplies the damage will not exceed $1,000. Eschel's stock of fixtures was slightly damaged by water. The ceiling of the basement was badly scorched but was unburned. The damage to the building and stock is fully covered by insurance.

The Thornton block and the Forbis block immediately adjoining were quickly filled with smoke and nearly all of the firemen who undertook to remove their effects were driven back. Dr. Norcross happened to be directly across the street when the alarm was turned in. To this fact Pearl Whitmore, the young woman who attempted to commit suicide a few days ago, owes her life. The doctor's first thought was of his patient, and running across the street, he and a young fellow named Swanson climbed up the fire escape to the girl's room. The smoke by that time was so thick that it was out of the question to attempt to go up the stairs. They found the girl and a friend who had attempted to rescue her lying helpless and almost senseless just outside her room. The girl was quickly carried down the fire escape, and her friend recovered sufficiently to climb down himself.

From the immense volume of smoke it looked as if both blocks would be burned down, and a great deal of excitement was created. After the excitement was all over Judge Naughten discovered a diamond pin sticking in the sleeve of his coat. The pin will be returned to the owner on proving property.

GOT THE LIMIT.

Nellie Bly Pleaded Guilty But Found No Mercy Notwithstanding.

BUTTE, May 21.—Judge Naughten is lending the police his most hearty assistance in their effort to put an end to the robberies in the bad lands and with a few more such doses as one of them got today the probabilities are that East Galena street sirens will learn to keep off the grass. Nellie Bly, who assisted in rolling a man for $12 a couple of nights ago, and is one of the most notorious of the thieves, was up in police court this evening. Expecting to get off with a nominal fine, she entered a plea of guilty to the charge of running a house of prostitution, and when the little judge smilingly gave her the limit of $100 and costs she nearly fainted. Protests were useless and she was compelled to settle.

Lottie Liverpool, Pearl Wilson and Pauline, three colored females who participated in some of the robberies, were let off with $10 and costs each and a warning that the next offense would cost them their lives. Peter Joel, Dave Faulkner and Frank Duffy paid $5 and costs each for disturbance. Dan Hamilton, John Riley, John Kane, William Murray, Frank Martin, John O'Brien and Sam Hough, a choice assortment of vags, were taxed $30 and costs each and committed to the jail. Nellie Clair and Mattie Proulx, two of Nellie Bly's partners, will be given a hearing to-morrow.

FINISHED AND POWERFUL.

Warde and James sustain Their Reputation as America's Leading Actors.

BUTTE, May 21.—Frederick Warde and Louis James, those popular and talented actors, opened their Butte engagement to-night to a packed house with advanced prices. The play presented was the "Lion's Mouth," in which they have for several seasons appeared with tremendous success. Mr. Warde in the role of Rinaldo combines grace with power and plays the strong part of the hero to perfection. Mr. James makes a most effective Fra Diavolo, the villain, and his powerful acting brought out frequent bursts of applause. It is more evident each season that Warde and James are now the greatest actors in the legitimate drama in America. As usual they have gathered about them a very strong company, and in Elythe Chapman they have one of the most efficient leading ladies of the country. In her impersonation of Lionora to-night she was most successful. The other characters were also well sustained. To-morrow night "Julius Caesar" will be given.

BROADENING ITS SCOPE.

Western Federation of Miners Becoming a Mighty Power.

BUTTE, May 21.—Frank Hunter, Charles O'Brien, Patrick Gallagher and Joe Thomas returned to-day from the convention of the Western Federation of Miners, which began in Salt Lake a week ago today and continued through last week. The rest of the Butte delegation will be back to-morrow. Work of the utmost importance to organized labor in the West was accomplished by the convention. Up to a year ago every miners' union in the West stood entirely by itself. The Butte Miners' union was noted as being the strongest single labor organization in the West, but it had no alliance with other unions of miners or other unions of labor of any class. The troubles in the Coeur d'Alenes first showed the necessity of the various unions of miners in the West standing by each other. An organization was first formed of the miners' unions in Montana, and the bond between the miners and other laborers was strengthened when the Miners' union became a part of the Silver Bow Trades and Labor assembly.

Just a year ago the union of miners was broadened beyond the limits of Montana by the formation of the Western Federation of Miners in which the unions of Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, Idaho and South Dakota were embraced. This convention was held in Butte at a call from the Butte Miners' union and an organization was effected. The second convention has just been finished in Salt Lake, and at this one steps were taken for the still greater strengthening of organized labor in the West, on the motto that "in union there is strength." The Western Federation of Miners has included quartz miners only. It is now proposed to take in coal miners and also perhaps the American Railway Union in order that all may be able to act together in case of difficulty with labor. It is believed this union of labor interests will soon be effected.

The federation elected W. J. Weeks, a staunch and progressive member of the Butte Miners' union, president of the federation for the ensuing year. William Welch, an old, tried and true member of the Butte union, was chosen secretary and treasurer. Denver was selected as the place for next year's meeting.

A fuller report of the proceedings is expected on the arrival of the other delegates from Butte. Mr. Weeks, the new president of the federation, was the guest of Hon. C. W. Cannon while in Salt Lake. The boys say that Dick Thomas had to stay over to fill an engagement singing in the choir of the Mormon tabernacle Sunday, and Tony Matthews is said to have been so completely captivated by the charms of a lovely and estimable Salt Lake young lady that the date of his return is not certain.
