OH WHAT A DRUBBING

The Pastimes Weren't Common Amusement for the Blue Coats.

ALL POUNDED INTO A PULP

The Soldiers Knocked the Local Ball Team Over the Fence and Kicked Them After They Got There.

BUTTE, July 29.—If the United States regulars that are now stationed in Butte can fight as well as they can play ball, they are "corkers," and it behooves ordinary people not to come in contact with them in a serious way. For two hours this afternoon, 500 people watched the crack team of the Second infantry make monkeys of the Pastime team, or rather of a team that claimed to represent the Pastime Athletic club. This claim is seriously questioned by a great many people who witnessed the slaughter of the innocents. The soldiers went into the game with much the same spirit that they would display in entering upon a contest on the field of battle, and they sustained the reputation of the United States army in fine style. They picked their opponents up and threw them around as though they were rag babies, then, to complete the farce, they kicked all of the stuffing out of them. The Pastimes were never in the game and were hopelessly and helplessly beaten after the first innings. The Second infantry has a team that could keep up its end in any minor league in the country. The players are quick, active and enthusiastic young fellows, and they are all ball players. The game that they put up to-day was a brilliant one, and not so much as a semblance of an error was made. Their infield is to all intents and purposes a stone wall, and their outfielders cover acres of ground. Captain Trapper is a phenomenal second baseman, and he made several sensational plays this afternoon that brought down the grand stand. McCurdy also made a couple of brilliant plays at short. The soldiers are nearly all hard and sure hitters, and when they land on a ball it fairly goes. "Wally" Herbert and Gillis were the only players on the Pastime team who did anything to distinguish themselves. Herbert caught a fine game. Rose started in to pitch for the Pastimes, but he did very poorly. Gillis pitched, and when the third inning was very effective, but his support was miserable. The soldiers started the ball rolling in the first inning. Trapper went to first on an error by Pascoe, stole second and went on to third on an error by Wenrich, and scored on another error by Lloyd. McCurdy trotted to first on balls, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored on an error by Sullivan that let Duebrey to first. A fumble by Rose let Goode to first. Boucher drove one to Sullivan, who retired Duebrey. Shannahan and Heiss walked to first on balls, forcing Goode in. Norton lined out to single and Boucher and Shannahan scored. Trapper was hit by a pitched ball and McCurdy hit safe and Heiss and Norton romped home. Goode opened the second with a corking home-run drive. Boucher lined out a two-bagger and scored on two successive errors by Wenrich. Heiss hit safe and Shannahan scored. The boys in blue got four more men across the plate in the third on a home run by Duebrey, a wild throw by Lloyd, a single by Shannahan and errors by Heiss and Sullivan. In the fourth, Trapper's base on balls and stolen base, a passed ball and an error by Rose, gave them another. In the fifth inning, the Pastimes went all to pieces and the soldiers trotted across the rubber. For the Pastimes Lloyd drove out a home run in the third, Sullivan did likewise in the fourth and singles by Lloyd and Herbert and a double by Rose gave them three more bases on balls, and a passed ball gave them two more in the fifth. By that time the spectators were tired out and went home. The following is the score:

Table with columns: Name, AB, R, H, E, PO, A, E. Rows for Trapper, McCurdy, Duebrey, Goode, Boucher, Shannahan, Heiss, Norton, Lambert, Standly, Totals. WITH THE BOYS IN BLUE.

Camp Bites Atrocious Many Visitors in But 4—Some Soldiers Leaving.

BUTTE, July 29.—In accordance with instructions received by Colonel Bates this morning from General Brooks, commanding the department of the Platte, the four troops of the Ninth cavalry, colored, who came here with the troops from Omaha, started back to Fort Robinson in a special train at 4 o'clock this afternoon. This reduces the number of men at Camp Bates by a little over one-third. There are four companies of the Second and three companies of the Eighth infantry left, besides the four companies of the 20th infantry, under Captain Rodman, which are camped at the Athletic grounds. It seems to be the general expectation of the officers at Camp Bates that the detachment of the Second and Eighth infantry will remain here for some time, although they have no official information on the subject. The officers look upon the trip to Butte as nothing more than a summer outing and they are enjoying themselves immensely. The men also seem to be well pleased to get away from the monotony of post life for a breathing spell. The people of Butte are greatly interested in the soldiers and they never miss an opportunity to gain some insight into regular army life. The officers are all very courteous and willing to give any desired information, and their stories of post life are very entertaining and are always listened to with wrapt attention. One of the most interesting features of army life is what is known as the post exchange. The exchange is simply a general store of the old-fashioned type, where everything that is needed in the everyday life of a soldier is kept for sale. It is run on the cooperative plan and for the exclusive benefit of the enlisted men. The officer detailed to take charge of the exchange and his assistant, a sergeant who is known as the canteen steward, are both appointed by the commanding officer. A set of books are kept similar to those in any mercantile institution and the profits are divided pro-rata among the different companies. The proceeds are taken up by the company commander, in what is known as the company fund account, which shows every receipt and expenditure with properly authenticated vouchers. A certain amount of money is set aside by each company for an amusement fund, from which gymnasium supplies and athletic goods are bought. Each company has an average of $50 a month, as it's share of the profits of the exchange. By this arrangement, the companies are much better provided in messing than they otherwise would be as the straight government rations are hardly sufficient for good living. The canteen steward and his employees, with the exception of the man who tends bar, are all enlisted and receive extra compensation from the exchange fund. The accounts of the executive officer are audited by the post council of administration, which consists of the three senior officers of the post and an enlisted representative from each company, preferably a sergeant. These accounts must receive the approval of the post commander before they are considered settled. A full pint of beer is sold for five cents and this branch of the business pays nearly 90 per cent. profit. The canteen steward regulates the amount of liquor sold to each man and no liquor is sold to a man who shows any signs of intoxication. The men are entitled to a credit at the exchange of one-sixth of their current pay, which consists of the obligation assumed in the shape of a promissory note approved by the company commander. These notes are met by the soldiers after the payment succeeding their issuance. Any soldier who fails to meet his pecuniary obligations to the exchange is denied from its privileges. The post exchange scheme has proved beneficial to the men as it keeps them from buying poor stuff outside at exorbitant prices. It has also regulated drinking, which is a necessary evil in the army. The system has been attacked a good deal by the ministry, who believe that it has increased drinking, while in reality, it has had just the contrary effect. The greatly reduced number of confinements in the guard house immediately after pay day in recent years, has fully exemplified the wisdom in establishing the post exchange. The soldiers here are mostly all good shots and there are some crack shots among the officers. When the party came up out of the Parrot mine the other day, Superintendent Tibbey called attention to a single projecting above the top of a shaft, about 150 feet away, and asked if there was a man in the crowd who could hit it with a revolver. One of the officers promptly whipped out his revolver and in four shots put four bullets through the center of the shingle. The exhibition was a very clever one and a great deal of surprise was manifested at such good shooting with a revolver. William Smith, the last man in Butte for whom a warrant for contempt of court was issued, was arrested last evening. He furnished a $500 bond with T. F. Courtney and Henry Mueller as sureties. No other warrants are now out so far as is known. W. M. Davis, one of the Lima men, is still in jail. Union Labor. All goods made by nash and co., tailors, are made by union labor.

OTTO FLOTO AND TIM SHEA. Henry L. Haupt and His Innocent Victims Once More. BUTTE, July 29.—Otto Floto was arrested this evening for assaulting Tim Shea of Walkerville with a cane. Mr. Shea was one of the jury that tried and convicted the bear hall men not long ago, and the police state that it was his fault that he caused the trouble. Floto was released on a $50 cash bond. Chief Loyden received a letter to-day from John O'Connell of Ashland, Wis., asking for information in regard to the standing of the Montana Mining, Loan & Investment company of this city, and its president, Henry L. Haupt, and whether or not the concern has monthly drawings. Mr. O'Connell has been acting as agent for the concern at Ashland, and, having been informed that it is a fake, he wants to get at the truth of the matter.

NOT ANY TOO FLY. A Detective Robbed in an East Galena Street Dive. BUTTE, July 29.—A man named Jeffries, who is said to be a detective, was held up on East Galena street last night. He went into one of the joints run by one of the frisky females and when he left he was $20 short. He has not yet been able to recover his money.

Some Smart Aleck. BUTTE, July 29.—Some smart Aleck undertook to send Coroner Porter on a false errand this evening by notifying him over the telephone that there was a dead body between the athletic grounds and the race track. Tom Porter has not been in Montana for 30 years for nothing. However he quietly lit his pipe again and awaited further particulars. Later on it was learned that the body was that of a dog that had been run over and killed.

Heaps of Fun. BUTTE, July 29.—Two big wagons took a merry party of picnickers out to Columbia Gardens this afternoon. The sport of the day was enlivened by an impromptu bear fight, the breaking down of a wagon, the engulfing of a horse in a mud hole and an accident on the merry-go-round. Nevertheless all had a splendid time.

BUTTE, MONT. A Money-Making Week.

Midsummer dullness banished. Every day last week crowds of eager buyers came. They all made money, by spending it. Prices that tumbled and big lots were closed out. That's last week's story, to be repeated this week. The losses incurred by some of these offerings will make this emphatically a MONEY MAKING WEEK.

Every foot of the center portion of our main sales-room is rich with some bargain, and there's no trash there either.

DRESS SILKS—If you buy as you ought to buy from these offerings we will be poorer by several hundred dollars at the end of the week. Printed China Silks, the 50c qualities, at 25c. Plain 22-in. China Silk, 15 colors, at 35c. Moire Silks in black and colors at 30c, value 75c. $1.50, $1.75, $2 Fancy Silks down to $1.

DRESS GOODS—Never in the history of the store has such a volume of Cotton Dress Goods been sold as during the past four weeks. Now we are hustling out the odd pieces and the short lengths—enough of each sort for a dress. Here shows price savings. Challies at 5c, have been 8 1/2c. Light Prints 4c, have been 6c. Best makes standard Prints, 15 yards for $1. Satin Stripe Organdies at 15c, were 30c. German Satines at 30c, were 45c. 20c Crinkler at 10c. Half Wool Challies at 18c. White Goods at Cost. 10c Gingham, 5c.

WOMEN'S COSTUMES—It's really remarkable to have all wool, ready-to-put-on dresses for $5. The making alone would cost that, ordinarily. Others at $7.50, have been $12.

LACES—When we say prices are about half what they have been, it is just as stated. All the novelty Butter Laces are among the reduced lot and are particularly desirable.
