EMMA WANTS LIBERTY

She Married Walter Urie and He Proved a Failure.

RICE COOKED BY THE COURT

He Swiped Some of Hattie Shaw's Stuff and Will Spend the Next Two Years in the Penitentiary.

GREAT FALLS, Jan. 4.—Mrs. Elizabeth Maurer, mother of the Maurer Bros., the Central Avenue merchants, died yesterday after a severe illness, which commenced with a gripple and developed into a more serious complication. The deceased was 60 years of age and had been living here with her son's family for several years past. The remains will be taken to Wilton Junction, Iowa, for interment.

Last evening, in Knights of Pythias hall, Deputy Grand Chancellor Nick O'Brien installed the following officers for the ensuing six months: John A. Duncan, chancellor; commander, Morris Bridgman, vice chancellor; F. M. Buck, prolator; Charles Bimbaum, master of work; Charles Wagner, M. of E.; W. D. Benson, K. of R. and S.; John Terhune, M. of F.; M. F. Henderson, inner guard; John Mitchell, outer guard. After the installation the knights adjourned to the banquet hall, where a splendid supper was served.

Work has been resumed in the coal mines at Belt which were shut down about 10 days. The railroad company has orders for 70 cars a day hereafter. Belt promises to be about the liveliest town in Montana from now on.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen will hold their annual ball Feb. 14, in Realty hall.

John Gunn, a miner in the Broadwater mine at Neihart, ran a candlestick through his hand.

George Rice, who was arrested several days ago and pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Justice Hawkins on a charge of burglary preferred by Hattie Shaw, changed his mind yesterday and, sending for the county attorney, said he guessed he would plead guilty. An information was accordingly filed against him and he was vacated the statutory time and was taken before Judge Benton where he pleaded guilty and asked to have sentence passed at once. The court sentenced him to two years in the penitentiary.

Emma Urie has brought suit for divorce against her husband, Walter Urie. She asks permission to resume her maiden name and to have the custody of her 2-year-old child and the possession of a ranch belonging to the defendant, about four miles from Monarch. The complaint says they were married in Washington, Mich., in April, 1890, and everything was serene until along in November, 1892, when he is alleged to have struck and beaten her in a cruel manner. On the 23d of last month, she alleges that at Barker he repeated his brutal treatment. The ranch owned by defendant is said to worth about $300 and he is reputed to be earning $3 per day.

Richard Olson and Sophia Peterson both of this city were married yesterday. The funeral of Matt Fiskio, who died at the Columbus hospital early Wednesday from the effects of being run over by a train, was held yesterday from the Power undertaking establishment.

IN A RUSSIAN PRISON.

Horrible Experience of a Company of American Sailors.

From the San Francisco Chronicle. Two emaciated and woe-begone travelers arrived on the steamer Peru from Yokohama last evening. They are John Johnston, master of the fishing and sealing schooner Emma, and P. Riley, one of the hunters. They are direct from a Siberian prison and tell a fearful tale of suffering and privation.

The schooner was driven out of her course during a storm and sought shelter under the lee of Saghalien island. She was spied by a Russian gunboat and captured as a poacher. The Emma was hauled up on the beach and the crew sent to Vladivostok. There they were held under trial for six months and were finally sent to jail for a year.

One of the men went crazy under the cruel treatment and committed suicide. Another broke down under the hardship and had to be sent to the hospital. He remained there a month and when Johnston and Riley left Vladivostok he was serving out the time he had been sick.

"It was something awful," said Captain Johnston, when telling the story to a Chronicle reporter last night. "We were not treated as badly as the convicts, but still nearly died under the strain. The convicts are herded together like cattle and men and women are chained together in long rows. When on the march and a halt is made for the night they are driven into an open shed, and are there compelled to pass the night.

"The Emma sailed from Juneau, Alaska, about two years ago on a fishing and sealing cruise. While in the Sea of Okhotsk a terrific storm came up and our rigging was carried away. We got a jury-steering gear rigged and ran for Saghalien island. Several times the schooner broached to and almost went down. We finally got under the lee of the island, but just as we were preparing to repair damages a Russian gunboat came along and seized our vessel. We had been driven there by stress of weather. The Russians would take no excuse and we were towed in as a prize.

"On our arrival in prison we were marched to the jail, and 350 prisoners were set to work to haul the schooner up on the beach. In doing this they broke her in two and made a complete wreck of the smart little craft.

"From Saghalien they took us to Vladivostok, and there we were kept for 11 1/2 months, six of which were consumed in our trial. The place in which we were confined was 12 feet by 16 feet and was dirty in the extreme. It was infested by vermin and ankle-deep in slush and filth. Forty-eight of us had to live in that space, and at night we had to take turns in getting a chance to lie down.

"Bob Olan, the owners brother, went crazy under the strain, and one day he Beaten in a Horrible Manner Landusky Pulled His Gun to Defend Himself But He Never Lived to Use It.

GREAT FALLS, Jan. 4.—Advice received here from Fort Benton state that Under Sheriff Buckley and Coroner Gilbertson have returned from Landusky, where they went in their official capacities upon learning of the killing of Powell, or "Pike," Landusky.

The story they brought respecting the manner in which Landusky met his death appeared to confirm the rumor published in the STANDARD that it was a case of downright, premeditated murder. It seems that Pike was leaning upon the bar in Jim Jake's saloon and store, when Jew Thornhill and Loney Curry entered and called the clerk to the rear to make some purchases. In a few minutes Harvey Curry came in and assaulted Pike, knocking him down and beating him in a horrible manner.

As the bystanders showed a disposition to interfere Thornhill is reported to have pulled a gun and threatened to shoot the first one who interfered. When Curry had ceased pounding Landusky, the latter arose, drew his revolver and attempted to shoot, but Harvey Curry wrenched it from him and threw it to one side, at the same time pulling his own gun and firing twice. The one ball hit Pike in the abdomen and the other in the breast. As Landusky fell Curry fired the third time but missed him.

After the shooting the Curry boys and Thornhill drove away, the crowd turning its attention to the wounded man, who died in a few minutes. Thornhill and the Curry boys are supposed to be in hiding in the bad lands along the Missouri.

THOUGHT SHE WAS A BOY. That is Why Albert Rides Out With Another Girl Now.

The park was almost deserted in the dusk and their bicycle lamps made a will-o'-the-wisp effect through the mist. Both were young and both were pretty, but one of them were boys while the other displayed a skirts-looking costume of shirt, jacket and attenuated bloomers.

"They say that Albert is perfectly devoted to you," remarked she, as the doctor, after a short silence.

"What an idea! To be sure, he does call rather frequently and we always go out for a spin together Sunday afternoons. O Louise, what do you think he will say to my bloomers?"

"H'm. I don't know—I don't care to wear them myself."

"Of course not, dear; but you will feel differently about it when you gain flesh from the fresh air and exercise."

"Perhaps. But about Albert—I thought you didn't like him; you said that you could never really respect a man whose necktie was always over his collar in the back."

"Oh, well, if one was married to him she could tell him when his tie slipped. Besides, Susie is awfully jealous yet?"

"Has he said anything definite yet?"

"Well, no—that is, nothing except to ask me if I could make my own gowns."

"That shows he is thinking."

"Yes. Somehow I have an idea that he will say something that settles it when he sees me for the first time in this costume."

"If he does you must tell me every word he says."

"I will. I do believe that is him now coming behind us; it sounds like the tone of his bell."

"Well, you must like him if you even recognize that."

"Sh—ah! don't speak so loud—if he really loves me he will know it is I, even if it is almost dark and he has never seen me in bloomers. Here he comes right behind us! Oh, I wonder what he will just then he came up with them and what he did say?"

"Hello there! Say, do you happen to have a light about you?"

And now she has returned to her skirts, while he rides out with another girl on Sundays.—Chicago Tribune.

The conductor was leaning against the brake softly whistling. "If you love me darling, tell me with your eyes." There were three other men who had fallen into a conversation.

"I see that President Cleveland is in favor of the Baltimore plan of issuing money," said one man.

"Yes, and I was rather surprised at that. That doesn't let the banks issue all the money, does it?"

"They wouldn't do," said the third man. "They'd get a corner on money the same as Partridge gets it on wheat. Somebody told me the Baltimore plan was to make all the money in Baltimore."

"That's a mistake," said the first speaker, firmly. "It's called the Baltimore plan because some man in Baltimore got it up."

"The banks have got all the money now," remarked the conductor, as he rang twice for the gripman to go ahead. "I don't think they ought to have anything to say about money."

"Well, I don't know. If they're willing to turn it out and save the government the expense, it ought to be a pretty good thing."
