THE LAST STITCHES Tell in completing a suit. High class tailoring always tells, especially in the perfection of workmanship in every detail. We carry a stock of woolens not to be surpassed in the past, and what's equally to the point, we know what to do with woolens when we have them. We make them up handsomely, and those who wear them look handsome, too. The fit is the great point in their reactions. Just now we're leading the clothing with the great p-p-erations. Wash and Co., 41 East Park street, Butte.

Under the new time card which went into effect on the Great Northern yesterday, No. 20, local train, will leave for Helena at 8:30 p. m. instead of 2:40 o'clock, and will connect with a train from Anacona to No. 1, which will arrive at Helena at 10:40 a. m. instead of 11:40 o'clock and will run through to Anaconda on the P. A. P. No. 25, the through train from the East, will arrive at 9 p. m. as before. No. 24 will leave Anaconda at 8:00 a. m., and will leave Butte at 9 o'clock a. m.

Some of the lines running out of Butte are trying to convince the public that the train runs through a fertile country, and that they encounter no sand deserts, their cars being dust proof, etc. Such statements made in July or August might be considered by the inexperienced traveler; but in midwinter, with six inches of snow on the ground, they seem a little out of date. At present, the lines are wondering how to travel and keep warm. This can be done by using the Northern Pacific, as winter blankets, rain and sleet have no terrors for passengers using this line. Their sleeping, dining cars and day coaches are vestibuled.

IN THE DAYS OF LONG AGO Columbus and His Achievements Eloquently Discussed.

BY REV. WILLIAM ROLLINS

A Sermon Which Deals With One of the Most Interesting Chapters in the History of Time.

BUTTE, Jan. 27.—Rev. W. Rollins spoke on "The Discovery of America and Its Significance" at the Mountain View church to-night, it being the third in his series of lectures on the general subject of great events of the Christian era. Mr. Rollins said in substance: "The century, stretching from 1425 to 1535, in art, literature, religion and discovery, throws into obscurity any of the centuries preceding it. Some might except the first century, but to its there is no exception. Among the immortal men of that century Columbus commands a prominent position. Born somewhere about 1451, he stood in the very blaze of the revival of learning and shared in the first electrical shocks that waked the people out of their long sleep. There were epoch making men in those days. Europe was trembling with her new life shocks, and this new life was expressing itself in many ways.

"Each country, however, had its dominant thought direction. In Italy it was art; in Germany, religion; in England, literature; in Spain, exploration. Born in the seaport town of Genoa, Columbus took to the sea almost as naturally as a bird to the air. His father, an obscure wood comb, could not give the boy such an education as he desired, still we are told that he spent a time in the university of Pavia. He excelled in mathematics and as a draughtsman, and his maps enjoyed general admiration. He was endowed with a genius for navigation. After leaving school he spent 10 years at sea, without when apprenticeship his name would never have been known in history.

Although an Italian by birth, he professed the great purpose that had dominated his mind and his ambition. At that time men felt the need of a new continent for the fuller development of their ideas. Population was congested along the western shores of all the old world countries, the soil was impoverished, the resources exhausted and its people beggared. There were hints of undiscovered worlds which had come from the ancients, and Marco Polo's fascinating description of Asia and its vast riches had given a new impetus to navigation.

The Portuguese were seriously contemplating making an effort to find this golden land by sailing around by the cape of Good Hope. Columbus firmly believed he would find it in a westerly voyage, and so India and the roundness of the world were constantly before the eye of the enthusiastic Genoese. The idea of the sphericity of the earth was not original with Columbus, but by conversing with old seamen he gathered some of the facts which might inspire him. "By long and weary travels he was provided with a pocket book and it was soon the case of the inquisitive navigator. He turned to Spain and sought to create enthusiasm in the hearts of Ferdinand and Isabella; but Ferdinand would not entertain as he could not see any return of gold and jewels. Next he heard and wearied with hopes defeated Columbus was about to seek assistance from Henry VII of England and Isabella cried out, "I will pawn my jewels and furnish the requisite assistance," and thus, through the influence of woman, was the new world brought to light. What a pity that Isabella could not have seen what she was contributing to the elevation of woman when she turned the adverse tide in favor of Columbus; what a pity that she could not see the woman of today, intelligent, self-reliant, struggling hard toward absolute freedom, the descendant of Columbus!

When you study her unrelenting hatred of the Protestant cause; think again of her enthusiasm in lifting out Columbus from obscurity and let this important fact be a veil for her other faults. "On Aug. 2, 1492, Columbus started on his voyage, and on Oct. 12, of the same year, he landed and sang the Te Deum in celebration of the discovery of the new world. Thus, Charles Sumner declares to be the greatest event in secular history. Columbus, till his death, labored under the mistaken idea that he had reached India. He did not know that he had found a land in comparison to whose extent and wealth India was but a child's game. Spain's love for gold impelled Columbus to let that otherwise would not have occurred at all, and his actions were approved by priests, bishops, senators and statesmen. They were in accordance with the times.

"It is a singular fact that almost every nation has claimed the crown for having discovered America. Spain says she discovered it in the 15th century, the Northmen claim to have discovered it in the 10th century, the Welsh before the Northmen and the Chinese before the Welsh, even so early as the 6th century. But if you mean by discovery the introduction of European people, European enlightenment, European religion and politics, and the founding of a new civilization, then unquestionably Columbus was the discoverer.

"But, cries out another, it was a mere accident and so does not deserve such eulogiums as have been bestowed. Then upon the same ground you would deny praise to all the great discoverers. The astronomer finds worlds he has not been looking for; Archimedes steps into the bath, his foot displaces water and he discovers a new physical law. Galvani goes into the kitchen to make broth for his invalid wife, a couple of frogs' legs lying on the table come in contact with a copper wire, he notices a twitching in the legs and so voltaic electricity is discovered; Galileo enters the cathedral of Pisa and notices the vibrations of a hanging lamp and so the time measurement of pendulums is discovered. Newton is asleep under an apple tree; an apple drops and strikes him and the great law of gravity is discovered. Wait is before the fire warming his hands when the lid of the tea kettle begins to dance and the expansive force of steam is discovered. Marshall, in 1849, is excavating for a mine and in California and finds a nugget of gold, and so on.

"Does society withdraw its praise from these men because they were not looking for what they found? Spend all day, call it accident, if you wish, but I prefer to call it Providence. The discovery of America has given women opportunity for wealth and leisure which was little known before the 15th century. It has given a free field for the development of the great principles of freedom, liberty and progress. It has resulted in the best type of civilization the world knows anything about. Isabella created a monument on which she had inscribed 'For Leon and Castile Columbus discovered America.'

The sentiment is too narrow, it should have read, "For Truth, for Liberty, for the Elevation of the Race Columbus Discovered America."

THOMAS W. KEENE.

The Great Tragedian Will Appear Three Nights in Butte.

BUTTE, Jan. 27.—Thomas Keene, the great tragedian, opens his brief engagement to-morrow night. He will be in this city for only three nights. Popular prices will prevail and the outlook favors a most successful engagement. "Hamlet" will be given on the first night, "Louis XI." on Tuesday and "Richard III." on Wednesday night. "The Merchant of Venice" will be played at the Wednesday matinee. Mr. Keene is on his way east after a phenomenal season, such as houses from the East and traveling up and down the Pacific coast from the Mexican line to British Columbia. The success with which he and his company have everywhere been received, and the showers of successes which have fallen on them serve to establish Thomas Keene as the foremost exponent of legitimate drama in America.

HIS NAME IS JOHN GRAY.

And His Present Address is the City Jail.

BUTTE, Jan. 27.—A suspicious looking individual, who gave his name as John Gray, was gathered into the city jail today by Detective Murphy on suspicion of being one of the men who went through Stock Inspector Collins' residence about a week ago. Gray was shaking dice in the Combination gambling house, and in taking some money out of his pocket he accidentally pulled a pawn ticket out with it. A bystander picked the ticket up and noticed that it called for two revolvers, similar to the ones which were stolen from Collins. Detective Murphy was notified and Gray was locked up.

Hand-omely Entertained.

BUTTE, Jan. 27.—Midwinter sociability was launched in a most entertaining fashion by Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Pincus on Sunday last at their residence in Broadway. The honors of the evening were shared by Mrs. L. J. Lachman and Mrs. Louis Bernheim, both brides of many charms and accomplishments.

The guests of the evening were: Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Lachman, Mr. and Mrs. De Bernheim, Mr. and Mrs. Kahnweiler, Mr. and Mrs. Sultan, Mr. and Mrs. Bender, Mr. and Mrs. Schlesinger, Mr. and Mrs. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Max Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Strassburger, Misses Blanche, Rose and Jennie Morris, Messrs. Edmund and E. Strassburger, Messrs. Julius Caesar Rosenberg, William H. Hallio, Geo. Simon, Herman Strassburger, Adolph Schilling, Mayer, Le Roy Schlesinger, Robert Fields, Herman Blank and others.

At the Hotels.

BUTTE, Jan. 27.—The Southern: Mrs. P. Gallagher, Miss Hanson, Smith Lodge; W. H. Rhee, Bogeman; B. N. Deery, J. C. Conley and wife, Belt; J. F. Gorman, Idaho; F. D. Whitmore, J. J. Carter, Wheeling, W. Va.; Mrs. B. B. Peesman, K. and W. K. Lachman, E. W. Mason, Geo. Idaho; W. H. Williams, Will Hareley, Cokedale; James Graham, Portland; E. J. Smith, Great Falls; J. H. McIntyre, Livingston; Mrs. Noleld, Redwood; P. J. O'Mara, Charles Byrne, Omaha.

Y. M. C. A. Officers.

BUTTE, Jan. 27.—The newly organized Y. M. C. A. met at the Congregational church this afternoon and elected permanent officers, Dr. Howard being chosen president and C. M. Buck secretary. The executive committee will meet Tuesday evening to draft a constitution and by-laws. The membership is already quite large and steps will be taken at once to secure a suitable room and fit it up as a gymnasium.

Travel in Comfort. Beware of the "Wet shaken after taking" railroads. If you desire comfort when traveling, the Great Northern offers you a smooth roadbed and easy-riding, elegant and comfortable through sleepers to eastern points. Dining cars on all trains, thus avoiding delays at eating stations. The Great Northern caters to second as well as first-class traffic. For the accommodation of such passengers an upholstered, well-ventilated tourist sleeping car is attached to every through train. No extra bedding required for these cars. Porters in charge furnish bedding and make up the berths. No desert or dust is accommodated via this line. Time—Butte to Chicago, 60 hours; 30 minutes. For tickets, maps and information apply to J. E. Dawson, general agent, 106 Main street.

From now on the Great Northern sleeper will run through to St. Paul without change, and beginning Monday, Jan. 29, will be run on through trains in and out of Butte.

RIBS AS SOUVENIRS

Ghastly Relics of Butte's Prightful Catastrophe.

AS THE INQUEST GOES ON

Gossip About Two Homes That May Be Broken Up as a Result of the Disaster—Sent From Salt Lake.

BUTTE, Jan. 27.—The inquest into the cause of the death of those killed on the evening of Jan. 15, will be continued at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning, and it is probable that the investigation will last nearly, if not quite, through the week. A good many have expressed the belief that the material facts have been brought out and no more evidence is needed for an inquest, but it is likely that most of the people will agree with the coroner that the witnesses asked for by the two hardware companies should be examined. This will probably be done. This will prolong the investigation and it is expected that the duties of the coroner in this case will be over by Thursday at any rate.

Some people have pretty ghastly ideas respecting the preserving of relics. One man up in Centerville has secured two ribs from the scene of the explosion and is keeping them as souvenirs of the great catastrophe. Another man has for a souvenir a piece of a skull. Cart loads of souvenirs of a legitimate character have been carried away from the mass of ruins and nearly every family in town has some curious relic to show illustrative of the terrible night of the explosion. The ghastly remains which a few have carried off should be turned over to the coroner at once.

There are two homes in Butte which were not rendered desolate by the loss of any relative or friend at the late catastrophe but which will be very unhappy in fact two sets of couples which seemed very loving up to the night of the explosion have appeared all broken up since then. Two divorce suits have resulted from that night of terror. It seems that two loving husbands who work on night shift, hurried home after the explosion to assure their wives that they were not all killed by the explosion, that all was over and that they should not be alarmed any more. When they got home each of these young men found his wife another young man comforting his wife, and the cases will be settled by Judge Speer.

The Salt Lake Herald of Saturday notes the return to that city of Dr. Dunford and his daughter, Miss Leah, from Bloomington, Idaho, where they had buried their son and brother, Alma Bailey Dunford, one of the victims of Butte's terrible explosion. The body of Bailey Dunford, unlike most of the bodies recovered, was not mangled or torn, the only mark on the face being a slight abrasion on the nose, death having been caused by a blow on the head from some flying missile.

The same paper states that Dave Coleman, another of the victims, has arrived in Salt Lake for treatment at St. Mary's hospital. He has a bad wound over the left eye, a couple of badly crushed fingers on the right hand and an ugly wound in his left arm, caused by a flying piece of an iron pipe. Coleman was taken to Salt Lake for special treatment needed.
